CUNDURANGO.
The wonderful remedy for Cancer, Scrofula, Ulcerous and other Blood Diseases. Dr. P. T. Keene, having just returned from Ecuador and brought with him a quantity of the genuine Cundurango bark, secured through the official recommendation and assistance of His Excellency the President of Ecuador and the government of that Republic, we are prepared to fill orders for it, to a limited extent, and at a price nearly one-quarter of that which the cost of the first very small supply compelled us to charge. Spurious articles are now advertised and sold as Cundurango. We have, at considerable expense, and with the co-operation of the authorities of Loja, Ecuador, the province where the plant grows so directed the channel of our supply as to ensure that none but the genuine shall be sold by us, and we particularly call the attention of the public, for their protection, to these facts. WHERE SHALL WE GO TO PROLONG LIFE?
In no part of the world is the existence of man more prolonged than in those countries which are temperate and exempt from sickness.
The beautiful city of Los Angeles, Cal., possesses both these qualities in an eminent degree, and owing to this, as well as to the beauty of its suburbs, which are full of beautiful orange groves and vineyards, is daily increasing in population, without taking into consideration the numerous travelers who fill the new and magnificent hotel called the Pico House, which has been established in that city.
Those who enjoy only moderate health, or those who desire to prolong their lives without being deprived of the comforts and pleasures of life, should go to the city of Los Angeles. Men of business can also find there excellent opportunities for employing their time and money.

VOX POPULI.

The mystery of the Ring is solved at last. The house divided against itself has fallen with a crash which must bury every vestige of its mushroom architecture in the ruins. Notwithstanding the anxiety with which every development in the war upon Tammany has been watched by the people, and the fever beat of the public pulse, events have marched with a rapidity which beggars all previous break-ups of the kind. It recalls forcibly the Arab legend wherein at the rubbing of the ring a powerful genius appears of mighty power. The "Ring" has been rubbed rather hard, and has appeared. Here the simile fails, for the genius of the people breaks the "Ring" which chained it. From the hour that the injunction was made permanent by Judge Barnard the demon of confusion has revelled among the Tammany leaders. Four names were on every tongue, and their every utterance was hung upon in the expectation that either Tweed, Connolly, Sweeny or Hall would give some sign whereby the future might be divined. Matters thus stood when the Comptroller appointed Andrew H. Green his deputy, and handed over to him the department under his control, that its interests might be rolled out before the eyes of the Joint Committee. It will be recalled that the Mayor, believing this to be an ipso facto resignation of the office, thereupon appointed General George B. McClellan to the Comptroller's office. The public

WAITED BREATHLESSLY FOR EVENTS.

The answer came from Connolly, quick, sharp and decisive, that he did not mean to resign, and quoted Hall's first letter as to the Mayor's inability to remove him. Next followed the legal opinion of Charles O'Conor, sustaining the Comptroller upon the point of law involved, and declaring that the Mayor's only resource was impeachment. With Judge Loew absent the Court of Common Pleas could not meet, and the citizens chafed at the idea that they would have to wait for the settlement of their disordered municipal affairs through

THE SLOW PROCESS OF THE LAW.

The Mayor, on his side, was not slow to invoke a legal opinion through the medium of the Corporation Counsel, which we publish to-day. Through the mellifluous sentences of Mr. Richard O'Gorman is negatively admitted that the Mayor has no right to remove the Comptroller, and through a dexterous but useless dodging of the main question he advises Mayor Hall to "treat with Mr. Connolly as Comptroller." Needless is Mr. O'Gorman's polish to the end that such a course will avoid "the continuance of that public excitement and sense of insecurity." How absurd it is to speak of allaying public excitement! The giant will not be or compromises, and as soon as the news was spread that O'Gorman's answer to Hall, for all its periods, meant no the excitement culminated. The loud defiance which was ringing in the Mayor's ears must have borne a more significant tone when he received a letter from General McClellan declining the office which he wished to hand over to him. Friends were raising up for Connolly, not that they believed him better than the others, but that there seemed, in the phrase which came to everybody's mouth, even his own, a desire to make him the scapegoat of Tammany's sins. Mayor Hall must have felt yesterday, as in all the curses upon Tammany, there was one in each for his head. The meeting of the Council of Seventy took place, and that body with one voice approved the appointment of Mr. Green, and drew up resolutions to that effect, which they presented to that gentleman. Now comes the point where all the interest centres in the announcement by the Comptroller that there are greater rogues than he, and that, so far as he is concerned, he will make restitution for all he can be proved to have taken, and that all others who have shared in the spoils and now wish to bury their shame in his ruin

TERRIBLY ISOLATED

MUST FALL ALONG WITH HIM.

This announcement once made and this determination once taken the end is clear. Deputations of citizens may wait upon Mr. Tweed and express a ridiculous confidence, Mr. Tweed may affirm until he is hoarse that Peter P. Sweeny is wise for keeping in the background, Mayor Hall may fortify himself behind his position; but if Connolly lets out the facts of combined fraud (and none can speak more by the card on this matter than he), then the fortress of Tammany will have fallen like a house of cards. Confidence, background statesmanship and high position will be laid bare as the man who, in his desperation at the backsliding of his friends of the "Ring," against himself and the others. Further evidence of the earnestness of this man, too "slippery" to be crushed easily, finds shape in the following, from the Evening Post of yesterday evening:—

TURNS STATES EVIDENCE

It is whispered again among well-informed men that Mr. Connolly has already guaranteed the gentlemen who recommended Mr. Green against any betrayal on his part, by writing his resignation, addressed to the Mayor, and putting it in the hands of a small committee, consisting of ex-Mayor Havemeyer, Mr. Tilden and another, to be used at their discretion. This committee can then, at any time, make a vacancy in the Comptroller's office, if Mr. Hall will agree to appoint a man acceptable to them.

The rumor that Mr. Sweeny has been out of town for several days past is not true. That he has advised the Mayor to accept the situation is probable enough, but it comes rather late to save either. The feeling alluded to before as gaining strength in Connolly's favor takes still another form, but one easily understood, and as stupid as it is interested. A body of

intend to have a torchlight procession over his confession. Why are they in such a hurry to bury him? Wherever information was to be found on the all-absorbing topic the reporters of the HERALD went in quest of it. The views of the Hon. Fernando Wood, which will be found in these columns, will be of interest, for Mr. Wood has passed through municipal storms of his own. He does not think that this difficulty will lose much to the party if the obnoxious men are promptly removed. He does not think that it will injure

THE CHANCES OF CARRYING THE STATE,

a wish which many would like to share with the white-haired Feraando. His cynicism of reform movements founded on his experience will be worth perusing. What took place at the various public departments, the headquarters of Hall, Tweed, Sweeny and Connolly will be found interesting reading of how coolly men can comport themselves

FIVE MINUTES BEFORE AN EARTHQUAKE.

Interviews with the various prominent men in the controversy will be found, all of their own feature of interest, with the voice of the rank and file of the citizens, who will have to foot the bills, no matter who wins.

Of first rate moment in this regard is the account of Mr. John Foley, of the Council of Seventy, and the citizens in whose name the injunction was demanded upon the city. He says the committee will not affiliate or coalesce with Mr. Connolly or any one else who can be proven to have shared in the city spoils. They do not except the Mayor, and all will applaud their firm resolve.

INTERVIEW WITH MR. JOHN FOLEY.

Important Determination of the Council of Seventy—Connolly's Confession and Vow of Revenge—His Offences Will Not Be Condoned.

So many conflicting stories of the action of the citizens' committees were afloat last evening, that to set matters right a HERALD reporter, out on the scout for latest news, resolved to call on the gentlemen whose untiring energy in behalf of reform mainly caused the present muddle in our local political affairs. Mr. John Foley was found busily engaged in the office of his store on Broadway, but nevertheless he received the representative of the HERALD with his usual courtesy, and asked him to be seated.

Mr. Foley, besides being a man of action, possesses extraordinary conversational powers, and he was not slow in displaying them to the reporter. It is needless to say that the

CONVERSATION WAS MUTUALLY AGREEABLE.

"Glad to see you," said Mr. Foley. "Sit down and be comfortable."

"Thank you. How does the political situation stand now? There are all sorts of rumors floating about, but it is hard to get at the truth."

"Well, of course there is a good deal of mystery; but I can tell you, without violating any pledge, some news that will gratify the public."

"What! More about the Tammany row than I know already? Now, now, Mr. Foley!"

"Yes, I can! Just listen a moment and I'll show you. The Committee of Seventy met to-day and held a highly important meeting. Speeches were made endorsing Mr. Green, and offering the support of the committee in whatever action he might take to expose the frauds of the Ring and bring the guilty parties to justice. It was resolved, in the words of Judge Pierrepont, to meet law with law and force with force."

"IN DEFIANCE OF MAYOR HALL?"

"In defiance of anybody and everybody, acting outside the law. Hall is outside the law and has not a leg to stand on. He dare not impeach his confederate, Connolly, for the reason that if he did he would expose himself, and not himself only, but Tweed and Sweeny, the other members of the Ring. I believe, as Horace Greeley believes, that Hall is mad. If he were not mad he would scarcely declare one day that he had no power to remove the Comptroller and the next affirm that he had. But it is characteristic of madmen to imagine other people insane. We fully expect to see him in the State Prison, with his confederates, soon."

"But, Mr. Foley," mildly suggested the reporter, "is not Richard B. Connolly now your confederate?"

"Not at all! We have

NO AFFILIATION WITH CONNOLLY WHATEVER.

He is equally to blame, but not more than the others, except, perhaps, Tweed. Connolly has offered the Committee of Seventy to pay back to the city, to the last cent, all the money he owes——"

"He will make restitution?"

"Yes; he will pay every cent. Oh, he will make full restitution. But he will do more. He has offered to submit statements which will criminate and send to prison Sweeny, Tweed and Hall."

"Has he done it or merely promised to do it?"

"I guess he has done it. The committee have the whole evidence in their hands."

"Then it is intended to save Connolly from the consequences of his crimes so that his rivals in the Ring may be punished as they deserve. Is that it, Mr. Foley?"

"Not by any means! There will be

whatever, or with any of the infamous Ring. My impression is that the whole four will have to go to State Prison."

"Then Connolly has not turned state's evidence exactly, but is so overwhelmed with shame that he is anxious to make restitution and abide the verdict of the courts in his case?"

"That's about it," answered Mr. Foley, and after nodding meaningly continued:—"Connolly won't go to prison, if he does go, without taking with him the rest of the gang."

"So, then, you think that the power of the Tammany Ring is effectually broken?"

"I am quite confident that it is. Look at the crowd. They are blundering about in despair, while we are preparing our case—the case of the citizens against them. They are utterly powerless. Hall is the worst off of the lot. For many years to my certain knowledge he was for the other three of the Ring. When they wanted him they sent for him, and he had to come. He was a tool, but a willing tool. I am sure his pickings were light compared to those of the others; but that he had pickings we can prove. Good Lord! Just think of the Chief Magistrate of the city, sworn to guard the interests of the people, signing away six millions of money to a lot of villains in a few minutes, without examining the papers he signed. And for nothing? Oh, pshaw!"

"But, Mr. Foley, you

MAY BE PREJUDICED

against the Mayor and the other city and county officers."

"No, sir; I'm not particularly. As a taxpayer and citizen I want to have a good government, and I believe and know the members of the Ring I have named to be a set of corrupt scoundrels. I am heartily glad that it was my action which initiated the movement against them."

After some further conversation the reporter withdrew, leaving Mr. Foley to the enjoyment of his private business affairs.

THE COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY.

Meeting in the Chamber of Commerce—Ex-Judge Pierrepont's Remarks—Resolutions in Support of Mr. A. H. Green—A Committee Presents Them—Speeches by Chairman Stebbins, Comptroller Connolly and Ex-Mayor Havemeyer.

About forty members of the now famous Committee of Seventy assembled in the meeting room of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday, shortly after twelve o'clock, and at once proceeded to business. Mr. Henry G. Stebbins, President of the Seventy, occupied the chair. After the usual warning that all present who were not members of the Committee would be required to withdraw, reports of the several sub-committees were read and approved. A member then addressed the meeting in

and proposed the following resolutions:—

Resolved, That we congratulate the citizens and taxpayers of the city of New York upon the appointment of Andrew H. Green to the office of Deputy Comptroller for the assurance it gives of an honest and intelligent administration of the finances of the city in the immediate future.

Resolved, That if the Mayor, in his recent request for the resignation of Mr. Connolly, was actuated by a desire to fill his place by a man of fitness and fidelity he could not have made a happier choice than the selection of Mr. Green, so well known to the community for his spotless integrity and able and honest management of the public trusts heretofore confided to him.

Resolved, That we call upon all good citizens, by their moral support, to sustain Mr. Andrew H. Green in his present position as guardian of the public funds of the city.

Resolved, That the Committee will aid Mr. Green pecuniarily and by counsel to the extent of our power in all lawful ways to retain the position in which, fortunately for the people, he has been placed in this trying epoch of our municipal affairs.

The resolutions were duly seconded.

Ex-Judge EDWARDS PIERREPONT then rose and said that he supported the resolutions. It was necessary that the action of the Comptroller should be sustained by the Committee. He had nothing whatever to say for Mr. Connolly nor any of his confederates of the Ring, and he had no intention of asking for him any particular consideration; but is voluntary action in submitting his accounts to the scrutiny of the committee of citizens and his readiness to answer questions deserve favorable mention. Especially was his action, in appointing Mr. Andrew H. Green,

AN HONEST DEMOCRAT

and a gentleman, to act for him pending investigation into his conduct worthy of remark. The condition of the city and county finances had long warranted decided action on the part of the citizens, for every department was well known to be outrageously corrupt. The peculations of the Ring were evidently flagrant, and were such as to call for instant investigation and remedy. Andrew H. Green, he continued, has always been a man whose integrity was unquestioned and in whom for years the people have had the most implicit reliance, so far as his honesty and probity were concerned. With them we, too, are satisfied, and he is just the man who should have the investigation of the city accounts. No politician, be he lawyer or merchant, can take any exception to his being

DEPUTY COMPTROLLER

because of his character—that is beyond cavil. Again, Mr. Green has always been identified with the dominant party, the democrats. Therefore, no objection can be raised to his appointment on the ground of his politics or because of his being a republican. After all, and more than all, he is an honorable, upright gentleman, from whom a truthful report may be expected. We must sustain him in his position at all hazards. If the Ring attempt to remove him by law we must meet and combat them with law. If they are determined to effect his removal by force we are prepared and will use force to protect him. We will meet

LAW WITH LAW AND FORCE WITH FORCE.

Loud cheers followed this last remark of the speaker.

The resolutions were then passed amid applause. Then Mr. Barrett observed that, inasmuch as the advice of Mr. Havemeyer to Mr. Connolly and Mr. Green seemed to have been solely a personal matter, it were just as well to appoint a committee of five from this Committee to wait upon Mr. Green and Mr. Connolly, to notify each of the purport and passage of the resolutions sustaining Mr. Green's appointment.

A COMMITTEE OF FIVE

gentlemen was then appointed to wait upon Mr. Green and present the resolutions. It was composed of the following named gentlemen:—Myer Stern, Edward Pierrepont, Jackson S. Schultz, Robert B. Roosevelt and Thomas A. Ledwith, and on motion the President, Vice-President and Secretary were added—Henry G. Stebbins, William F. Havemeyer and Roswell D. Hatch.

The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair.

The committee immediately started for the Comptroller's Office to present these resolutions to Mr. Green, and on their arrival there they were cordially received by that gentleman.

SPEECH OF MR. STEBBINS.

Mr. STEBBINS, the chairman of the committee, in presenting the resolutions, spoke in substance as follows:—

Mr. GREEN—I am entrusted with the gratifying duty of presenting to you the resolutions passed this day at a meeting of citizens who represent the meeting held at the Cooper Institute September 4, and known as the Citizen Committee of Seventy. These resolutions and the action of the committee to-day have grown out of your late appointment as Deputy Comptroller, and the very deep interest felt by your fellow citizens in your selection for

of that office. It is a source of great satisfaction to me personally, knowing you as well as I do, to be made the medium of stating to you the cordial and earnest unanimity with which these resolutions were passed, testifying, as they do, to the high opinion entertained by your fellow-citizens of your great ability and unimpeachable integrity, demonstrated in many important and highly onerous public duties. Nothing, I am sure, would have been more grateful to you had you been present and witnessed these unqualified evidences of the estimation in which you are held by men of both political parties.

EX-MAYOR HAVEMEYER'S REMARKS.

Mr. HAVEMEYER then took the floor and said that he had known the Comptroller, Richard B. Connolly, for many years, and he for one did not believe that he was the only or the biggest rogue in the Ring. From the highest to the lowest they had

ALL HAD THEIR "RAKE"

from the city treasury and the biggest share did not fall to the lot of Mr. Connolly. When the explosion occurred the Comptroller went to him (Havemeyer) immediately for advice and he (the speaker) proffered advice, with the condition, however, that, whether palatable or otherwise, Connolly should accept and act upon it. The latter, having unlimited confidence in his friend, agreed, and the advice given was to appoint Mr. Andrew H. Green as deputy, with the powers of the chief, as already known. The Comptroller expressed his utmost willingness at the time to do this and seemed to have much less than some other members of the Ring. And while Mr. Havemeyer did not endorse Richard B. Connolly as a perfectly honest man, he was willing to leave the financial interests of the city in his and Mr. Green's hands pending this investigation, and he was not willing to see him made a scapegoat of to shield greater rascals. Mr. Green was also complimented by the speaker.

SLIPPERY DICK'S CONFESSION.

While this little speech was being delivered the Comptroller (who had been absent when the committee entered his office) came in and heard the closing remarks and promptly responded. He said he did not consider himself immaculate, but he knew and believed that there were about the City Hall. They had tried to shield their own rascality by throwing him overboad; but he had no idea of allowing himself to be made the scapegoat for the sins of Tammany. He acknowledged he had sins enough of his own to bear, and he sometimes felt scarcely able to stand up under the burden; but he would not go under without taking with him some of those who are now trying to get rid of him. He was ready and willing, he said, to hold his ground and to abide the result of the investigation of the citizens and taxpayers' committees, and would not shirk such punishment as the law might impose upon him. He cheerfully offered the fullest and freest access of the committees to all the books and vouchers of his department.

At the close of

THE COMPTROLLER'S REMARKS

Mr. Green briefly replied to the spirit of the resolutions which the committee had presented. It is understood that Mr. Green has mastered the combinations of all the safes in the Finance Department, and taken ample precautions against another theft of vouchers during his administration.

The Committee of Seventy desire the representatives of the press to understand that the refusal to admit them to its sessions does not arise from any discourtesy to themselves or their papers, but rather because the premature publication of much of their proceedings would naturally and inevitably tend to defeat the very objects of the investigation upon which they have entered. The secretary or his assistant will always most cheerfully furnish the press with any news of interest to the public and not detrimental to the committee's investigation.

On this action of Mr. Connolly the Evening Post has the following:—

At the close of these proceedings Comptroller Connolly entered the room. In conversation with the committee he said he had been obliged to ask for advice. He went to a friend—ex-Mayor Havemeyer—and not to an enemy. Mr. Havemeyer asked him if he would follow his advice if he gave it. He told him he would. He said, "Appoint Andrew H. Green your deputy, and then throw open your office for investigation." He had followed that advice. There were men in the city government who wished to destroy him to save themselves. He did not propose to be sacrificed to save any one, and the citizens should know all the workings of the office, and who were interested in them.

THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

The Joint Investigators Have a Field Day—Two of Them Speak of Deputy Comptroller Green—Warren and a Mysterious Ledger—John Hardy, of the High Joint, Interviewed.

The recent turnover of political parties seems to have thrown the

composed of Aldermen and citizens, into the shade, and not one of them yesterday was disposed to be a "shadow." At an early hour yesterday morning a representative of the HERALD "threw himself around loose" in the "Latin quarter" of the new Court House, which, it is claimed, has cost millions of money. At that time not a veteran of the investigating committee was present, although, allegorically speaking, it was learned that William A. Booth, the chairman of the "high joint," had been there at an earlier hour, and had issued his orders for the day.

In the rooms of the Supervisors, where the committees are supposed to meet, the only persons found were Fullerton, McGowan, King and other attachés, who were later reinforced by Captain Young, the fat boy, who fills the position of Secretary of the Board of Supervisors. In response to queries the answer came—

"Don't know anything about this committee, do you?"

"Yes; I know that Booth was here this morning. Where is he now?"

An attaché was in the act of answering, when an Alderman slipped into the breech, and,

DRAWING UP HIS PUGILISTIC FISTS,

said, mildly,

"The committee are at work."

"What committee?" asked the reporter. "Do you speak of the high joint or the 'subs.'"

"I speak of all. They are all at work—have been at work all day, and will remain at work until after the election."

"Until after the election?" queried the reporter, "what do you mean by that?"

"That this excitement will not terminate until after the November election, when all will be quiet. That is seven weeks hence. It will then be satisfactory to all parties who are good democrats."

Another Alderman was sitting with his feet resting upon the cushions of the new Court House, and up to this time had maintained a happy neutrality.

The reporter ventured to ask the Alderman of the Joint High Commission—

"It is said that

GREEN, OF THE PARK COMMISSION, IS AN HONEST MAN.

He it is who succeeds Storrs as Deputy Comptroller. It is strange that none of the papers say aught against him."

The quiet Alderman at once jumped from his seat and seizing a morning two cent paper of no reputation in the community exclaimed:—

"Read this."

The reporter, who had read it, asked the Alderman to read it, and he read it.

The other Alderman laughed and remarked:—

"Green's an honest man. I tell you he has made money ever since he has been in public life. When I was a youngster—I am now nearly forty years old—Green was a school trustee in the Fourteenth ward. He was a good trustee; but when he became a Park Commissioner he used his vote for a purpose, and his

THREE VOTES COST THE CITY THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

He is a pretty man to be Comptroller. I don't ask you to take my word for Green's record; take the official reports of the Park Commission. He is a sweet fellow to throw dirt at Sweeny."

Later in the day, after Ledwith, James O'Brien, Havemeyer and many others had bored Green and Booth's high joint and "subs" could not be found, at 3:45 Warren, the expert of the high joint, and a light-haired youth repaired to one of the wings of the Comptroller's office and were ushered into the presence of

named Bostwick, who had the custody of certain ledgers. For fifteen minutes Warren, the light-haired hero, who will be referred to hereafter, and Bostwick were engaged in examining the ledgers. Bostwick turned over the leaves, Warren made memoranda and the light-haired youth looked on and said nothing. A HERALD reporter was near by and observed that as Bostwick turned over certain leaves the light-haired youth suddenly put his hand down and

TWO PAGES WERE TURNED BACK.

Between the folds of the ledger were found a half sheet pasted in, which Warren, the expert, carefully scanned, to the discomfiture of Bostwick, who possibly was not aware of the

they were admiring.

Later in the day the HERALD reporter had pleasant chats with various Aldermen of the committee and other political lights, and finally, finding that Booth and all the citizens of the committee could not be found about the Court House, as a dernier ressort, repaired to the office of ex-Alderman John Hardy, clerk of the High Joint Committee.

"Hardy, I have been hunting the high joint today," said the reporter. "You are its clerk; do you know anything?"

"Nothing," said Hardy, looking very wise.

"In that event, may I say that I have had a hint that Booth and the high joint have, in view of recent complications, decided to until after the Committee of Seventy, who have just gone in, with Tom Ledwith as the rear guard, show their hands?"

Hardy, clerk of the "high joint," left his chair suddenly and exclaimed,

"Sir, it is a mistake."

"Then," said the reporter, "may I ask where the members of that committee are?"

"All about," said Hardy, "at work—have been here all day."

"But," ventured the reporter, "I have been here all day, and with the exception of yourself, Pearsall and certain Aldermen, I have seen none of them."

"They were here, nevertheless," said Hardy. "Warren has been at work all day."

"Yes, Warren has been at work. He is always at work. But, Hardy, can you tell me who that light-haired gent, who searched the ledgers of Mr. Bostwick, and detected a pasted page, is?"

Hardy, who up to this time was remarkably noncommital, at once left his chair and said:—

"Remain here, and I will go and see Bostwick and find out."

Hardy left the reporter took Hardy's seat, and twenty minutes later Hardy returned and announced that the only man who was in the presence of Bostwice, with Warren, as far as he could learn, was Mr. Kennedy, President of the Bank of Commerce. It is problematical that Mr. Robert Lennox Kennedy, of the Bank of Commerce, was the light-haired youth who found in Bostwick's ledger the sub-page.

But to return to the active work of the committee. All the sub-committees were in session yesterday, but each member of them positively refused to divulge the secrets of what had transpired inside. It is a little singular that the high joint, whose members had proclaimed last week that an "open session" would be held on Monday, did not meet, and that after announcing an open session for Wednesday, at two P. M., Clerk Hardy was yesterday instructed by citizen Booth to announce that the "open session" will occur on Thursday, at two o'clock P. M. When Thursday comes it is very likely that a later day will be set for divulging the work of the Investigating Committee.

AT THE COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE.

General Absence of Excitement—Story of the Feline Visitors—Interview with the Comptroller—"Little Mac" with "a Head on Him."

The difference between yesterday and the day before was something wonderful to note in the offices in the Department of Finance. Behind the partitions there were not so many clerks as usual. None had been discharged, but there were not so many attending to the business. That they were not present was very evident. The portly Storrs was not at the office till late in the afternoon, and the County Bureau and Stock Department were comparatively deserted. The outside delegations were also very slim and there was nothing like the excitement or crowds of Monday. True there were a few members of the St. Patrick Mutes on hand. Counsellor Callaghan was around and had an eye to business. Captain Dolan was also around; his mustache was as long or longer than usual, but the massive blackthorn which he sported on Monday was not to be seen. The unusual scarcity of attendants and hangers-on was accounted for by the fact that they were

some at the funeral of Stock Clerk Dyckman's daughter and others at the funeral of Judge Stuart, whose efforts had probably saved many of themselves or their friends from the cells, if not the gallows. Early in the morning, however, Comptroller Connolly and Mr. Green were on hand and attending to business. A HERALD reporter had an interview with Mr. Connolly in the County Auditor's Bureau shortly after noon. The Comptroller stood consulting with County Auditor Lynes, and although looking somewhat anxious was nevertheless quite pleasant. His profile resembled that of Washington perhaps more than ever, and he carried himself with a nonchalance most extraordinary in view of the exciting and troublous incidents connected with the situation. When he had completed his interview with Mr. Lynes he granted the HERALD reporter an audience and the following conversation took place—

"Well, Mr. Comptroller, how is it to-day?"

"Oh, elegant, sir, elegant. We are here you see attending to business and afraid of nothing."

"Have you seen General McClellan's views in regard to his appointment?"

"Yes, I have. I think its solid."

"A great many people discredit it, don't they?"

"Oh, I don't know. I don't see why they should. McClellan is no fool."

"Has there been anything unusual going on in relation to the situation?"

"No; nothing. There has been no attempt made to get us out, and I don't think there will be any."

"Whom do you suppose the Mayor will appoint now, since General McClellan has declined, if he will appoint anybody?"

"I don't think he will try it."

"What do you think of the committee which met last night?"

"Oh! that's all right; that will go ahead."

"Are you in with it?"

The only answer to this was a knowing wink of the left eye, which seemed quite impressive behind his gold-bowed spectacles.

"Is there anything I can say for you more than has already been said?"

"No, only that we are attending to business."

"What about those documents that it is said Mr. Green furnished the committee with?"

"We have placed all the documents, books, papers and everything else at the service of the committee."

"What about that consultation it is said you had with Judge Barrett and others in relation to preparing charges against Hall and Sweeny and others?"

"Oh, nothing. The newspapers get up a good many things that I don't know about. Charley (turning to Charles Underwood O'Connell), did you tell him about the cats? Just tell him that; it's a good story."

Bidding the reporter good day he withdrew. Then Mr. O'Connell, brushing out his neatly trimmed beard and striking a position, related as follows

THE STORY OF THE CATS:—

"Once upon a time—a few nights ago—there was a cat—a black cat—black as the ace of spades. The office was closed, and we were here at work, straightening things up, when, what should we see but a big black cat jump through that hole in the pane of glass (ponting to the hole the "burglars" made). She came in with a bounce and a kitten in her mouth, and she came around inside here and left the kitty—we didn't know where. We looked upon it as a "voucher" of her respectability, and did not interfere with her. She went out again as she had come, but without the kitten, and shortly returned with another; and, then again, another, and another.

of her fidelity to her offspring. Where she came from we do not know; whither she went we know not; but she is still around the office pursuing the even tenor of her way. Nobody interferes with her, and she interferes with nobody. I am not superstitious, but the Comptroller regards it as an omen of good luck."

ANOTHER FUNNY EPISODE

occurred yesterday morning. Mr. Cleveland, one of the bookkeepers, started to go for lunch. In size and stature he resembles General McClellan. He has a handsome aquiline nose, an elegant mustache, a clear, piercing eye. He has a bad scar on his forehead, where he has been nursing an elegant boil. (Evidence of corruption in the Comptroller's Office.) One of the miniature Gallowglasses who lined the hallway said, "there goes

LITTLE MAC, WITH 'A HEAD ON HIM.'

He's just been up to see Green and Connolly, and they've laid him out." Doctor Fleming was seen rushing into the office, pulling his nobby side whiskers in nervous style, and he must have been sent to fix up Little Mac's wounds. This, of course, was enough to start a crowd after him. The bootblacks caught up the cry and persisted in asking the gentleman if he did not want a shine. They ran ahead of him, stared into his face and alarmed him considerably. He struggled through, however, not knowing how great a hero he had been made in a few minutes.

CALLERS ON THE COMPTROLLER

were many, and included a number of leading merchants and others who are in sympathy with the Committee of Seventy. A delegation from this committee called during the afternoon and presented to the Comptroller an address and resolutions, which may be found in another column.

Chief Clerk Justus Storrs was engaged during the day in preparing a roll of the attaches of the office, the duties and salaries, and laid it before Mr. Green, at whose request it was compiled. Beyond this nothing more than ordinary occurred during the entire day.

AT THE MAYOR'S OFFICE.

The Mayor "On Exhibition"—General McClellan Declines the Proffered Post—Opinion of Corporation Counsel O'Gorman—Mayor Hall Virtually Yielding to the Situation.

Mayor Hall appeared at his office at the usual hour looking as hearty and happy as ever he did. He wore a bran new suit of check stuff, a check shirt and a necktie of check silk. It was noticed that the tiles in the City Hall corridors, over which he wended his way to the office, looked more checkered than usual. Might all these be considered physical emblems of the political situation? Contrary to usual custom the doors of the Mayor's office were thrown wide open, and visitors passed in, were listened to and disposed of, in old-time business manner. When the HERALD reporter called the "member from Sligo" was awaiting his time to interview the Mayor, and inside the inner room was Michael Madigan, member of Parliament, from the First district. Michael had in company with him a venerable young man. They interviewed the Mayor briefly; and the gentleman from down town being assured by the Mayor that it was all right, withdrew. A conversation then took place as follows:—

"I see, Mr. Mayor, you are keeping open house to-day?"

"Yes; I was said to be crazy, and all that, so I thought I had better place myself on exhibition for a day or so. People need not be afraid to come near me, because you see I am

IN FULL CHECK"

(alluding to his habiliments). At this two or three who were in the room smiled aloud.

"What do you think of that interview with McClellan published in the English newspaper this morning?"

"I never read that paper—that is, I have not read it in over seven months. I don't do it on principle."

"Well, it says that General McClellan told you he would not take the position, and that he approves of the appointment of Mr. Green and eulogizes him as a most excellent man for the position."

"I expect a letter from General McClellan every moment now in relation to the affair, and also an opinion from Mr. O'Gorman."

"Suppose McClellan should refuse to accept, will you appoint somebody else?"

"I don't know."

"William R. Travers, William R. Travers, he is the man," broke in the member from Sligo.

"Why," said Mayor Hall quietly, "is he your broker?"

"Oh!" said Sligo, "he's a splendid man for the place, and if I had the giving of it I would give it to him."

At this juncture the following letters from General McClellan and Richard O'Gorman were handed to the Mayor. He scanned them over and then handed them to Mr. Cardozo to be given to the reporters.

GENERAL M'CLELLAN'S LETTER

is as follows:—

New York, Sept. 18, 1871.

Hon. A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor of the city of New York:—

DEAR SIR—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th inst. conveying to me the very flattering offer of the Comptrollership of this city.

While I would willingly render a service to the public, were it in my power in an emergency like the present, nevertheless a due regard to my public and private duties at this time compels me to decline the appointment. With my sincere thanks for the compliment you have paid me, I am, very truly, yours,

GEORGE B. McCLELLAN.

CORPORATION COUNSEL'S OPINION

To Hon. A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor:—

MY DEAR SIR—I regret that my absence from the city on Monday has prevented my seeing you as you desired. I have since then carefully examined the cases, opinions and memoranda submitted by you as affecting your future action in the matter of the office of Comptroller of the city of New York. It seems to me that you should be governed in the matter more by considerations of expediency and sound policy than by those merely of strict legal rights or power.

Even on the assumption that you possess the power to remove a person holding that office, or that a vacancy unquestionably existed and that a new appointment made by you be primarily upheld by the Court, there is nevertheless, as you inform me, an antagonistic claimant who would have the right to appeal from the decision of a single judge against it and who would no doubt prosecute such appeal.

The law's delay is proverbial, and during the progress of the litigation, at a very critical period of the financial condition of the city, already complicated by one lawsuit and injunction, there would be presented the indecorous spetacle of two persons claiming to be entitled the office of Comptroller, each advised to defend his own claim and contest that of his rival. From this state of things great confusion would inevitably ensue, and great damage to the city treasury and to the public creditors, who would be seriously and not unreasonably dissatisfied at the delay which would be sure to occur in the payment of just and legitimate claims.

If it had been your desire to bring about the accession of a new incumbent into the office of Comptroller, you seem to me to have exhausted every legal expedient that could have suggested itself for that purpose, even at the risk of some apparent inconsistency.

Under all the circumstances, therefore, and with the opinion of the eminent jurist, Charles O'Connor, before me, I cannot advise you to take any step that would lead to complicated and mischievous litigation.

The refusal of General McClellan to accept the position of Comptroller, of which I am informed, is an additional reason for such a conclusion on my part.

Legal discussion might, as you intimate, bring up questions of law which you think could not have been presented to Mr. O'Conor's consideration. Among them I select from your memoranda these:—Whether the Comptroller, having powers and duties conferred on him by many general laws other than the laws of 1870 and 1871, commonly called the charter, and as a member of various committees can transfer these powers and duties to a subordinate by virtue of a section in an act which may be regarded as a "local act," or whether that section may not possibly be unconstitutional in so far as it permits the Comptroller to relinquish not only charter powers but all other powers, or whether an abdication of all functions beyond and embraced in the charter may not, ipso facto, amount to a resignation and create a vacancy.

These and various other questions suggested to me are no doubt open to discussion, and it is, I think, probable that a legal contest in this matter would present novel and important considerations as to the law of implied resignation, vacancy and removal; in addition to those which the eminent jurist to whom I have referred may have thought it necessary to advert in his opinion.

But, returning to the question of expediency and sound policy, which I think of most importance in this case, and laying aside these legal questions for the present, as head of the law department I now advise you not to make another appointment, to withdraw your notice to the various departments and to treat with Mr. Connolly as Comptroller.

If you do not think him as entitled to fill the office de jure, by treating him as Comptroller at least de facto, you will adopt a course which is, in my opinion, necessary to prevent financial difficulties, complications, and the continuance of that public excitement and sense of insecurity which a prolonged legal controversy in this case would inevitably intensify.

It should be borne in mind, also, that long before that controversy could be determined a new Legislature will have assembled, who will then be able more calmly and deliberately to consider any matters connected with this case which may be properly submitted for their consideration. I remain, my dear sir, yours faithfully,

RICHARD O'GORMAN.

Scarcely had this been read and copied when another came from the Corporation counsel in relation to

by process of law. The letter was immediately answered by the Mayor, and from the correspondence it will be seen that the Corporation counsel and the Mayor play a sort of battledore and shuttlecock business with the question. The correspondence is as follows:—

LAW DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF COUNCIL TO THE CORPORATION,
CITY OF NEW YORK, Sept. 19, 1871.

Hon. A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor, &c.:—

MY DEAR MAYOR—Since the decision of Judge Barnard, in Foley vs. The Mayor and Others, in which he gave a quasi judicial sanction to the rumors which have been rife in this city, of gross extravagance in some of the bills presented by various contractors, and paid to them out of the funds of the city. It has seemed to me proper and necessary that some effective legal steps should be taken by the Corporation to recover these moneys if sufficient evidence of fraud can be obtained to sustain action. I have been so incessantly occupied for the last few days in attending to official business—writing opinions, &c.—which has accumulated during my absence in court, on the Foley case that I have not been able to devote my mind specially to the question; but I think it a question of pressing importance, and I beg to call to it the attention of you as chief executive officer of the city, and to ask you for your instructions in the premises.

Yours faithfully, RICHARD O'GORMAN,
Counsel to the Corporation.

The following is the Mayor's response:—

NEW YORK, Sept. 19, 1871.

MY DEAR SIR—You are the head of the Law Department. Yours is the full discretion to bring any action at law which you deem it best to commence for promoting the good name or better prosperity of the city, or of its treasury. And I have such entire confidence in your judgment and experience that I leave the matter within that discretion. I know that you will do your duty, when you have ascertained it, regardless of such consequences as fall outside of duty's sphere. Very truly, your obedient servant,

A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor.

Mr. RICHARD O'GORMAN, Counsel to the Corporation.

The letters having been disposed of the interview was renewed.

"Do you intend, Nr. Mayor, to accept Mr. O'Gorman's opinion as binding?"

"Well, General Grant accepted Attorney General Akerman's advice when he didn't believe he was right."

"Then we are to understand that you will recognize Mr. Green——"

"Nothing is to be understood."

"Have you been notified of Mr. Green's appointment?"

"Well, I have had no official notification. Heretofore, whenever Mr. Connolly wished to delegate his powers to anybody, he would send notice to the departments, and especially to this office, that he had delegated Mr. So-and-So, and he would be empowered to sign checks, and his signature would, therefore, be respected. I don't know why he has deviated from his usual custom in this particular."

"Mr. O'Gorman's opinion is binding, is it not, as he is the legal adviser?"

"He is the adviser of the city government. If General McClellan had accepted the post I would, I I think, fight it through, because I think he is a man worth fighting for. But with any other, in view of the turn affairs have taken, it would scarcely be worth while to go into a litigation that may, and undoubtedly would, run through months and do perhaps a great deal of damage in one way or another."

After some further desultory conversation the reporter withdrew and left the Chief Executive to the mercy of a number of eager interqiewers.

INTERVIEW WITH EX-MAYOR HAVEMEYER.

All Over With the Ring—Hall to be Defeated—Interview with Judge Havemeyer.

Last night a reporter called at the residence of ex-Mayor Havemeyer, 335 West Fourteenth street, to get his views on the present aspect of the difficulty between the Comptroller and the Tammany Ring. Mr. Havemeyer politely invited the reporter into a boudoir, and lighting a lamp which diffused a delicious odor, invited him to ask any questions he pleased relative to the action of the Committee of Seventy to which he belonged, remarking that honest citizens had nothing to conceal from newspaper men, in a general way, as to what they were doing and intending to do and how matters were progressing. He thought the public had a right to know so much.

Reporter—Well, sir, I want to know first of all your opinion as to whether Mr. Connolly will give way under the pressure?

Mr. Havemeyer—I do not think so. I have no idea that he will, even considering his personal determination. What should he give way for? There is no reason why he should give way.

Reporter—Then, you think, sir, that Mayor Hall will come off second best?

Mr. Havemeyer—I cannot tell; it is the luck of the fight; my opinion is that he will be defeated as a matter of course.

Reporter—Do the Committee of Seventy at all anticipate the use of physical force against the Comptroller?

Mr. Havemeyer—That altogether depends on the line of action the Mayor and party are going to take. They may if they like. All things are possible sometimes, but to say they are probable is very different. Everything depends on the stand they take.

Reporter—When the committee were endorsing Mr. Green at the Chamber of Commerce to-day were they aware that Mr. Green considered himself aggrieved by the Tammany Ring?

Mr. Havemeyer—All I know is that he was a member of the Park Commissioners. The Committee of Seventy endorsed him because he is an honest man and likely to be economical in his new position, and a faithful and honest administrator of public affairs. He is a member of the Park Commission. How they treated him I don't know. He is not answerable, at all events, for that department, whether he disagrees with them or not. I am sure I will not be governed by any feeling arising from matters on that position.

Reporter—I had the pleasure of interviewing Mr. Green the other night, and considered him an honest man. But what do you think will be the issue of the present municipal dead-lock.

Mr. Havemeyer—Dead-lock is a strong term. If Mayor Hall makes a fight on the Comptroller's Office that is a matter which will be determined by the courts and by the rights of each party.

Reporter—Do you the Mayor or the other side will invoke the aid of Judge Barnard? What about ejecting the Comptroller?

Mr. Havemeyer—I cannot tell anything about it. But I do not think anything can touch the Comptroller. He is in his office legally and properly, and if he has committed any misdemeanor the rest are equally to blame. The very fact that when called upon te resign he refused to yield shows well for him. He came to me for advice, and I told him to hold on and put Mr. Green there, as every knows, and he did properly in that.

Reporter—Were the members of the Committee of Seventy disappointed or otherwise at the "declination," as the newspapers call it, of General McClellan?

Mr. Havemeyer—They had no opinion one way or the other. They were perfectly satisfied with Mr. Green, and as you were at our meeting to-day, you know that we called on Mr. Green this evening and expressed our confidence in him.

Reporter—Did it ever occur, to your knowledge, that any of the Committee of Seventy suspected that Mr. Connolly and the rest of the Ring in their newspaper warfare were playing into each other's hands?

Mr. Havemeyer (decisively)—No, sir; not in the least. That is impossible. No suspicion attaches to either of collusion to effect any object.

Reporter—Were the republican members of the Committee of Seventy to-day perfectly satisfied with Mr. Green?

Mr. Havemeyer—This is no party question. They are all united, republicans and democrats, to effect the object they are all interested in. We have nothing to do with talk of parties affiliating with Tammany. Whigs, democrats or republicans, we have confidence in Mr. Green.

Reporter—You know that Tammany is strongly intrenched, how do you propose to capture their position?

Mr. Havemeyer—Well, we go about it in this way. They are, as we know, behind their ramparts, with plenty of provisions and sinews of war. We commence with a big army—the Committee of Seventy. Then we don't march up to the breastworks and let Sweeney and the rest of the fellows take us in flank—we know better than that. Instead of storming the ramparts we undermine their position, and by G—d, sir, we'll blow these rascals up. (Here the ex-Mayor laughed heartily.)

Reporter—I must say I admire your generalship; but are you sure of victory?

Mr. Havemeyer—Certain. Their hangers-on are demoralized; the prestige of victory is with us; we have stopped the supplies and the enemy will have to evacuate and let honest men take possession.

The reporter then bade the venerable gentleman adieu.

WHAT JUDGE LEDWITH SAYS.

He Thinks Mayor Hall Will Resign—The Young Democracy Jubilant.

The Young Democracy are in a state of jubilee over the collapse of Tammany. They fought so hard to be something or other and got so badly whipped that the object of attack, now so humbled and beaten, is to them the source of

"SWEET REVENGE."

As is well known, Judge Ledwith is and has been for some time past one of the bitterest of Tammany's foes, and none of the "strikers" feel more jubilant than he over the city's difficulties. His court room is daily the centre of attraction for all the "boys" of the Young Democracy, and the Hon. Thomas feels quite at home when surrounded by men who know a thing or two about the corruptions of the Ring, and who rejoice to circulate the evil of which they are cognizant. Among the daily visitors are Tom Costigan and Pat Anthony, both hard workers in the political field, and each a model of punctuality in his respective line—not to mention a host of others from whom the Judge receives reports of

HOW THE OLD THING WORKS.

A Herald reporter, in a conversation with the Judge yesterday, ascertained his views as to the pending struggle:—

Reporter—What do you think of the trouble, Judge?

Judge—Well, I rejoice to know that the thieves are brought to bay. They were at it a long time, and, to say the truth, I did not expect they would be caught so soon.

Reporter—I presume the Young Democracy share your feeling on the matter?

Judge—Yes; we are all glad that this exposure has come. The public now see that the Young Democracy was right when they demanded the expulsion of these men from power. It was plain during our contest with them that they were a pack of rascals, and we would have beaten them then had it not been that they bribed and tricked.

Reporter—How do you think this muss will end?

Judge—My opinion is that Connolly will drive Hall to the wall. I have no doubt that Hall will be forced to resign. He cannot hold out against the attacks of Connolly when the latter is in earnest; for the weapons against him are too many, too sharp and too keen. Connolly will show himself to have this game in his own hands.

AT THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

The "Boss" in Town, and Pursued by a Big Crowd of Friends—A Few of the Assemblymen on Hand to Have a Talk.

The vestibule adjoining Mr. Tweed's private office, at the Department of Public Works, yesterday, was crowded from an early hour with the friends of the "Boss" and a few bakers' dozen of gentlemen who are always on hand at the department to ask favors and charities when they have an idea the "master of the house" is about. Among other callers the great legislative adjourner, Jim Campbell, sauntered into one of the back offices during the afternoon. So did the never-to-be-forgotten Carey, who was so well sustained in his place in the Legislature last year by the efforts of one Twombly. Jim the worst way, and Carey was just as anxious as any one of the many who are clamorous to get an audience in room No. 4. Ex-Coroner Flynn also put in an appearance, while Carey was trying to make one of the messengers understand that if he didn't see the "Boss" in less than five minutes he (the "Boss") would have to go away without having the honor of being talked to. The messenger appeared to be wonderfully impressed, and Mr. Carey, it is supposed, was successful in the end. It was rumored that he had an important project on foot, by which he hoped to settle the difficulties of the Comptroller's Office, and only wanted the "Boss" to give it his countenance to make it a triumph for all hands. If such was the case Mr. Carey was very reticent on the subject.

The crowd in the hallways were quite talkative, and spoke their minds freely about the doings in the Comptroller's office. One or two of them, small east side politicians, appeared to find considerable amusement in "jibing" a few of their friends who had attended the Apollo Hall meeting the night previous.

"Well, Tommy," said one, "that was rough on your gang, wasn't it?" And Tommy thus spoken to turned on his heel and looked at his interlocutor straight in the face as he jerked out:—

"Well, what gang? We wasn't up there to do nothing; we wasn't."

"Oh, no; guess not. Only went up there to see what it was all about; disinterested spectator; no hopes for the future; don't want to get an office, eh?"

"Why, look a here. That meeting was a fizzle. It was. D'ye suppose I'm goin' to jine them fellars what can't stick to one another even? I had enough of that last election."

"You folks went up then, didn't ye?"

"You bet; but we ain't agoin' to get caught again. I tell you that much."

"Then what were your fellows doing up there last night?"

"Lookin' on."

"What do the boys think about it?"

"They think the thing won't go down. Talk about uniting all the organizations against Tammany. Why it can't be done, no how. That meeting showed it. All these folks wanted was to get up a ring

ON THEIR OWN ACCOUNT.

Mooney's motion made the wire-pullers show their hands."

"How about the boys in your ward?"

"Why, the Fourteenth wouldn't have anything to do with this new-party idea. They say it is a sham. I've been among 'em a good deal to-day, and they're goin' to stick to Tammany through thick and thin. We got enough of the Young Democracy folks last year. They hav'nt got a decent man among 'em who knows how to lead."

"What about Jimmy O'Brien?"

"Well, I did think Jimmy had something in him until last night; but I swear he showed what poor stuff he's made of. He had a good chance to make a big thing for himself, and help some of his old friends at the same time; but he did not have the head to see through the plans that were proposed. He can't manipulate worth a curse."

At this point the Herald reporter succeeded in getting from one of the back rooms into the hallway and reaching the entrance to Mr. Tweed's private office. The "Boss" was busily engaged at his desk signing a pile of letters which his clerk had just written out. He beckoned his visitor to a seat near at hand, greeting him with a pleasant "How d'ye do?" as he took his seat. The letters all signed, he turned his chair round and said,

"WELL," WHAT'S THE NEWS?"

The idea of the "Boss" asking what the news was of the reporter, who was in search of news at what he considered the fountain head, made him grin rather broadly and sorrowfully express his great regret that he did not know what the "news" was, but that he would be glad to find out then and there anything new about the rumpus in the Comptroller's Office.

The "Boss" smiled pleasantly as he wheeled his seat a little from the table, and replied,

"You ought to know all that's going-on."

"Haven't you anything to say about the situation?"

"Why, no;" was the reply, and the "Boss" smiled pleasantly again, as he began to search among his papers for some missing document.

"You have no opinion to give as to what way the present difficulties will end?" persisted the reporter.

"No; they will end some time or other in some way;" and the "Boss" chuckled good humoredly.

This piece of information the reporter didn't exactly consider "news;" but he had to take it for anything he liked, for a few more ventures in the question line showed him that the "Boss" would not talk about the City Hall affairs, having evidently become heartily tired of the persistency with which he has of late been pursued by interviewers, and that he had determinedly resolved to keep mum. The visitor came to this conclusion, rose and bowed himself out, the "Boss," all smiles, bidding him, in his cheery way, a very goodby.

AT THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC PARKS.

All Quiet Along the Line—A Few Stragglers and No Excitement.

There was no fuss in or about the Department of Parks yesterday. In fact, all day long such a quiet pervaded the hallways and the passages leading to the office of the clerks that one of the foremen who dropped down from the Park during the forenoon for instructions got it into his head that he had made his way into and was about to go to a neighboring drug store and search in the Directory for the "Headquarters" number, when he happened to see Mr. Van Nort examining a lot of specimen plants in a back room. The day previous there had been considerable excitement and quite a crowd about the place; but somehow the bottom seemed to have fallen out of the rumpus tub yesterday, so far as the department was concerned, and nobody appeared to care whether school kept or not. The business of the office went on as usual. Barker was engaged all day with a bulky ledger in which the diggings and ploughings and measurings of the Park workmen were all rendered, and paid no attention whatever to anything that was happening across the street at the Comptroller's office. The clerks worked their way through their papers and journals as quietly as ever, and even the small boy who goes of errands and sees to it that nobody gets behind the railings unless he happens to have sent in his card and had it accepted beforehand had not a word to say about the Connolly row.

put in an appearance bright and early and went directly into his private office, where he busied himself about the Central Park and its multiplicity of improvements. He was "visible" to every one of the few callers who came to see him, and confined his conversation strictly and exclusively to the business of the office. A Herald reporter called upon him, among others, to find out if possible, first, what he thought about the city "situation." He found him, as usual, courteous and affable to the last degree, but when questioned as to what was his opinion of matters and things relating to the row he preserved

A DIGNIFIED SILENCE.

The fact is Mr. Sweeny was proof positive against interviewers. He received every one that came to pump him as graciously as could be, but when the pumping was started the conversation was dexterously made to enter into some channel as far removed from the "situation" as one of the poles is supposed to be from the other. It was in vain that the Herald reporter exercised his ingenuity to draw him out—to make him say just one word about the row. Mr. Sweeny smiled blandly all the time, listened patiently to the opinions the reporter ventured to give in the hope of "hearing the other side," but that was the end of it. The other side did not make any reply.

Mr. Sweeny remained the greater part of the day at the office, and when he left he looked as cheerful and chatted as good humoredly as he passed out into the street as though Connolly had not done his best to rile his spirits and raise Cain generally with the party in the city.

POLITICAL SMALL TALK.

Ledwith Men, O'Brien Men and Small Fry Politicians Discussing the Downfall of the Ring in the Political Exchange.

Yesterday the demand for information was quite brisk, stimulated by rumors that "Connollys" and "Tweeds" were falling. About ten o'clock the market became easier, and the political brokers around the Court House became unusually agitated by the news that Connolly, to save himself, had promised, through his deputy, Mr. Green, to yield up all the papers on file in his office that could tend to criminate his partners in guilt. Then another relapse came, and there was a fair call for Sweeny, which steadily increased until late in the evening, when it was reported that the foreign exchange had fallen without any demand being made for purchase.

A Herald reporter visited different places throughout the city during the day and evening for the purpose of feeling the public pulse and ascertaining the sentiment of the honest masses. General consternation reigned among the politicians at the threatened exposé which it is supposed will be published to-day of the alleged enormous frauds on the city treasury. Every one of these fellows' faces looked blank with horror and astonishment at the turn which things have taken.

The Herald reporter, while making his visits, kept a diary of public feeling as the barometer as it rose and fell. We give the diary from actual observation.

TEN A. M. CITY HALL.

Four men, rather rough-looking fellows, are standing on the City Hall steps discussing the situation. One, with a large red blossom on his nose, says to his friend:—

"That meeting on Saturday settled them fellows that were working for Hall against Connolly. He's a tough man. Every Connolly man feels good this morning. He'll beat them yet and turn them overboard, I'll bet a hundred dollars."

STRONG O'BRIEN MAN.

"That was a bully meeting last night at Apollo Hall, on Broadway. Our fellows were there and had a good time. We worked for Tweed as hard as we could, but there was something wrong with Bob Roosevelt. A man can't tell which way he kicks. O'Brien is the only man to lead the fight against Tammany after all. He's got the fight in him and that's the kind of man we want.

Emphatic Ledwith Man—That's all damned humbug. O'Brien's working as hard as he can for Tweed and Connolly. He was the first fellow to give the stolen figures to the press, and although he is a strong advocate, if he is to be believed himself, he has done all in his power to break up the democratic party. He has endeavored, as well as he could, to identify the democratic party with fraud and thieving, and now, through Tweed, I suppose he expects to be rewarded with a Senatorship for his betrayal of trust. Why, I tell you, he is no better than this fellow O'Rourke, who has acted his part to the letter. Tweed cannot hope to be called a democrat any longer no more than Connolly. O'Brien made this fight against Connolly on the ground of honesty and prudence and justice, and now, how is it? Why he is hand and glove with Connolly, the very same man whom he had promised to place inside the walls of a prison before six weeks went by from the beginning of the fight.

Strong O'Brien Man—I tell you, O'Brien's the biggest man in this fight, and he's sure to win. Your man is too quiet and too backward when the brush comes, and no large party of democrats can ever take him up for any large office. We want a fighter to do anything, and Ledwith is not the man.

Emphatic Ledwith Man—I think you are mistaken about that. Where was there ever a better fight than that made by Ledwith in his own ward against Peter B. Sweeny? Talk as you please, that was a good fight. The Ledwith men had a meeting last night at the Sinclair House, and you can talk as much as you like about your Twenty-first ward meetings, and your barrels of flour and your tons of coal, but there was genuine enthusiasm in that meeting. John McCool, who used to be Register of the city, presided, and the enthusiasm was terrific. One hundred thousand dollars was guaranteed from the Sixteenth and Twentieth wards to place Judge Ledwith at the head of any organization that might be needed to bring reform into our city affairs.

Strong O'Brien Man—I have heard a good deal of this kind of talk about O'Brien giving the city and State into the hands of the republicans. If that happens whose fault is it but the men who have been standing right and left, as if they could never get enough? O'Brien had to defend himself as well others. If his enemies come to the wall who is to blame? I believe myself that the Legislature will go republican, and that all the police justices—Dowling, Ledwith, Shandley and the rest will be removed—and the city will be thrown into the hands of the republicans. That's the end of all this business, and it will be a good thing if it happens.

Emphatic Ledwith Man—Well, then, I suppose that every democrat ought to turn around and applaud O'Brien for his treason and help to elect him to some big office. For my part, I don't believe that honest democrats can trust O'Brien a dollar ever again in any cause.

TWELVE O'CLOCK M.—HOUSTON STREET AND BROADWAY.

At this well-known lounging place for bummers, loafers and gamblers there was a small knot of persons basking in the noonday sun who seemed quite excited over the flying rumors. Every few minutes a few of these hard-looking rascals would walk across the street, enter the drinking saloon, pour a little poison down their throats, and then emerge to "buzz" with each other over the events of the day. Said one fellow with a red moustache dyed black—

"What the h—l is this that they are giving out in Wall street this morning, that Connolly is going to 'squeal' and tell everything he knows? Did you hear about it, Hank?"

Hank the Heeler—I don't know, but I suppose it's so. Them snoozers always weaken when there's any show for a fight.

Slinkey McGuffin—I understand O'Gorman has written a big long letter, full of jaw-breaking words, telling Hall he'd better git up and git. Hall ought to send him some of his tough Latting talk, and that might make him sick.

Pete, the Muffin Man—I don't think there ever was such a damned set of fools in the world as them fellows down at the City Hall. They are all at sea when there's any row, and a fellow ain't sure of his place a week when a fuss comes. I have kicked more heads off than I can count for some of the gang that's got the pull, and now when I ask them for a fence or a dollar they coolly tell me, as the head of my department told me this morning—that he'd have to "take me off the pay roll," as there was too much talk in the papers about the "office holders." How can a man have the heart to work for such people as these at a primary election or take a hand in a muss?

Slinkey McGuffin—It's no use atalking, boys, for it's all up. There's no more show for a fat thing. Well, I had a pull at it for four years, and I suppose the thing is clean gone now. But when I git into politics again I'm going on the winning side. The thing is played out, so let's go and get a drink.

The three ruffians disappeared at this moment into a rum shop and were not seen any more for the day.

At six o'clock in the evening it was pretty generally known all over town among the initiated that Connolly had betrayed his confederates of the Ring to the Committee of Seventy, and that Andrew H. Green was engaged up to a late hour the night before in rummaging among the loose documents among the archives of the Comptroller's office in ferreting out the most damning proofs of robbery and plunder. In every bar room in the city, last evening, where politicians do congregate, it was generally admitted that all was up for the Ring, and that nothing could be done to save them.

CONNOLLY'S FRIENDS.

Meeting of the Ward Delegates to Arrange for the Connolly Demonstration.

Last night the delegates from the several Connolly ward clubs met at the corner of Thirteenth street and University place for the purpose of appointing a chairman and a committee of seven to make arrangements for a procession and meeting en masse. The resolutions below were unanimously adopted, after which three cheers and a vote of thanks were given to the Eighth Ward Shannon Association, the Twenty-second Ward Independent Democratic Club, the Seventh Ward Limerick Guards and the Seventeenth Ward Shannon Association for the interest they manifested in the cause of Comptroller Connolly. All the wards in the city were represented but the Twelfth, their absence being ascribed to the fact that there was being held a mass meeting of the friends of Harry Genet in their ward. Coroner Soren made a speech and was warmly applauded, although he did not lacerate Mayor Hall sufficiently to the satisfaction of some of the hot-headed delegates.

Resolved, That we approve of the manly and firm course taken by Comptroller Connolly in defence of law and order and the sacred trust committed to his hands by the people as well as the charter passed by our State Legislature.

Resolved, That a chairman and a committee of seven be nominated to carry out the arrangements for the mass meeting and procession, which committee will confer with the several delegates from the various wards, with power to fix the time and place of said meeting and procession.

Resolved, That Mayor Hall, by his refusal to co-operate with Comptroller Connolly in carrying out the present financial affairs of the city government, has created discontent among all classes of the community and the execration of thousands of the workingmen and laborers, who may possibly be discharged from the public works should the Mayor and his diminished clique persist in such outrageous despotism; and in order to remove this dead-lock it is imperative in Mayor Hall to resign, and if he chooses to test public opinion at the polls of the coming election the people will render their verdict either for his condemnation or approval.

WHAT FERNANDO WOOD THINKS.

An Interview with the Hon. Fernando Wood.

The Democratic Party Not in Danger—Connolly, Tweed, Hall and Sweeny Should Stand Aside and Make Way for Better Men—Connolly's Action Endorsed—History Repeats Itself—The "Reform Movement" of 1859 and Its Consequences.

A Herald reporter sought an interview with Mr. Fernando Wood. He found him yesterday at his office in the city, busily attending to his morning correspondence; but, on receiving the reporter's card, Mr. Wood, very courteously and very kindly, postponed his clerical occupation to listen to the inquiries of the reporter and express his opinion on the great local question of the day.

"I have called to see you, Mr. Wood, on behalf of the Herald—more particularly in reference to the appearance of your name in this morning's newspapers as one of a 'new combination'—I believe that is the slang phrase—for a new Tammany Ring."

"Well, sir, I shall be very happy to furnish the Herald with any information I can. I was certainly very much surprised to see my name in the Herald this morning associated with the names of gentlemen who have taken an active part in reference to this local difficulty. I have not been thus associated. I have no intention or any desire to be so associated. I have desisted from any participation in local politics for the last four or five years. I am not identified with either of the contending factions of the party. I am in favor of a consolidation and unity of the party, so as to assist in the domination of the principles of the party nationally. I am, as is well known, and a thorough believer in the principles of the democratic party. Therefore the use of my name in connection with any of these movements, as against Mr. Hall, Mr. Sweeny, Mr. Connolly and Mr. Tweed is not founded in any authority of mine or caused by any action I have taken. I have taken no part for or against on either side."

A DEMOCRAT BY PRINCIPLE,

"Do you not think, Mr. Wood?" inquired the reporter, "that these charges of corruption, or whatever they may ultimately turn out to be, as against city officers, will have a disastrous effect upon the fortunes of the democratic party, and that, therefore it is needful that all leading democrats should clear themselves of any endorsement thereof?"

"I believe it will have a prejudicial effect upon the status of individuals as the leaders of the party, but I cannot see how it can have an operative effect generally either in this city, the State or in the nation generally; because, even admitting that these accusations are well-founded against these leading officials, yet the whole democratic party is not to be made responsible for it. If would break down any party the republican party would have ceased to exist long ago. No party has committed so much corruption as that party has, both locally and in the national administration. The recent elections show that the standing of the party has not been materially affected before the people. I conclude, therefore, that, notwithstanding the bad conduct of some men, that the city of New York will still remain democratic, as I hope and believe the nation will be in 1872."

"Yes, sir; all this is very true, but inasmuch as men like Mr. Samuel Tilden, Mr. Havemeyer, Mr. Charles O'Conor and Mr. Green have identified themselves prominently and actively with this movement, as against city corruption under democratic direction, there is, I think, a general impression on the public mind that you and other prominent democrats must declare yourselves in the present crisis, and that, sooner or later, you, with others, must take sides."

"I believe," replied Mr. Wood, "that the action of Mr. Tilden in this matter has been prompted by motives of public good and the welfare of the democratic party. I think as Chairman of the State Central Committee it was his duty to exercise his influence to redeem, so far as he could, the party from the degradation consequent on these exposures, and the course he has taken, in my judgment, in reference to these city matters is entitled to the respect and

SUPPORT OF THE PUBLIC.

I do not think Mr. Tilden has any motives aside from what would govern every well-disposed citizen and every leading democratic politician. The effect of his action will be, I think, even as a taxpayer, to establish the nucleus of a great and much-needed reform in our city government. As a democrat I think the personnel of the incumbents requires revision. Although the revelations as to these alleged frauds and the character of the men who have perpetrated them will have a disastrous effect politically for the time, I think the effect will ultimately be very good for the State of New York and upon the politics of the country."

"You don't think the loss of Tweed and Hall and Sweeny to the democratic party would be very disastrous?"

"No, I do not; I think we could lose twenty such men without it affecting disastrously the party. I think we should probably be the better for their loss."

"But the crisis is one that requires very prompt action on the part of the party, and these men are not disposed to move."

"No, but I think some one—indeed, why should not the influence of the Herald be brought to bear to urge these men who are charged with these corruptions to stand on one side, as far as the party is concerned, and make way for men in whom there could be no doubt the public would have confidence?"

"Yes; but that is the very thing they will not do, and even if they were to do it would not that be a tacit admission of their complicity with these frauds?"

"No; I do not think it would necessarily be a tacit admission. Mr. Tweed, for example, who, it is no secret, has long ago grown could exercise the same powers as Mr. Connolly has and appoint a deputy for the official direction of the public works. If he were to make as good a selection as Mr. Connolly has the public would be satisfied."

"But the temper of the public and the aggressive action of the Committee of Seventy is not much inclined, I am afraid, to so peaceful a solution."

"But if these men would look at this matter only in the light of their own interests I think they must see that standing on one side and making way for men whose reputations are without reproach is their only salvation. They are so far compromised as to make criminal action not quite an idle threat."

"Then I gather from what you now say, Mr. Wood, that the action of Mr. Connolly, in his recent appointment of Mr. Green, is a justifiable action?"

"Yes, I have read Mr. O'Conor's judgment; I think it very sound, and I am quite sure Mr. Hall, the Mayor, whom I greatly respect and of whose personal honesty I have not the slightest doubt, must know that it is sound and incontrovertible."

"Tammany, as Tammany proper, must do something, and that speedily, must they not, Mr. Wood?"

"Yes. The State Convention meets on the 4th of October. We are within a fortnight of that date. The Tammany Society has not been called together now for more than a year, and I question whether Mr. Tweed dare call it together now. I think it would be well if he were, purely in the interests of the party, to

"I believe when you were Mayor, Mr. Wood, you went through a similar experience to that Mr. Hall is now going through, as far as the antagonism of the republican party is concerned?"

"Oh, yes; history repeats itself. I was Mayor in 1855-56. I had absolute control of the police. All the appointments were made by the Mayor, the Recorder and the City Judge. The Mayor virtually had the control of the police. It has been admitted again and again since that it was the best police force we ever had. The whole cost of it was $825,000; now it costs over $3,000,000, and admittedly a worse force. The republican party, desirous of getting possession of the police and use it for partisan purposes, made a combination with Tammany Hall for wresting from my hands the direction of the police, and thus destroy my influence preparatory to the commencement of their political campaign. They made violent and

upon me just as they are making now upon the present Mayor. They charged me with using the police for improper purposes. They tried to prejudice me in the eyes of the public, and they raised considerable public excitement. The Times, the Tribune and the Evening Post were then, as now, very abusive. They went to the Legislature and succeeded in passing a law which not only took the police from me, but took away all guarantee that the police was organized for the public good. They then established commissions, and the city, being democratic, sustained me. The Legislature being republican, they got the Legislature to pass laws establishing these commissions. There was a commission to build a new Court House. They took from me the direction of the Central Park. I, with Edward Everett, Washington Irving, George Bancroft, William Cullen Bryant and Fred Hudson, laid that park out. They divided these commissions in such a way that it left the Mayor as the figure-head of the city government, without any power to steer it in any direction. Then commenced and corruption in the government of the city of New York, which, even if we admit that the present charge against the present city government is true, and taking into consideration the then and the present expenses of the city government, the corruption and the robbery was far greater than we have heard of since, and was the direct result then, as it is to a large extent now, of the action of the republican party."

A SYSTEM OF PLUNDER

"I think you were Mayor for some time; were you not, Mr. Wood?"

"Yes, I was Mayor for six years, and during the whole time that I held the office the annual expenses of the city did not reach $10,000,000."

"Then, Mr. Wood, you are in a position to form some estimate as to what, in your judgment, the expenses of the city ought to be."

"I have no hesitation in saying that the present expenses of the city are fifty per cent more than they ought to be."

"You are, too, Mr. Wood, a large real estate owner in this city, and, therefore, are interested very deeply in the fact that the present City Executive have powers for mortgaging that estate for the liabilities of the city."

"Yes, I feel that these powers are very dangerous, and that they are in the hands, to a great extent, of bad men. I have paid within the last few weeks to the city. But while that is the case, and I acknowledge it is a very bad position to be placed in, still, as a taxpayer, I think it is very requisite that great care should be exercised before there is any change, because it is just possible that unless the citizens are careful we may make a change that shall be quite as bad, if not worse."

"Do you think the position as far as the taxpayer is concerned could be worse, Mr. Wood?"

"Well, scarcely; but I remember an immense outcry for reform in 1859 in this city. The expenditure was then between nine and ten millions, but the reform movement ran it up to twenty-three millions in less than five years afterwards. This was done by the republican party in combination with Tammany Hall. Past experience, therefore, suggests great care, and the gentlemen who are now undertaking this reform movement require great industry and much self-sacrifice to accomplish their purpose."

"I am much obliged, Mr. Wood, for your courtesy and kindness. You have given me much to think about, and I wish you good day."

THE PRESS ON THE SITUATION.

General McClellan and Hon. Andrew H. Green.

[From the Journal of Commerce, Sept. 19.]

The Ring is broken by the retirement of Comptroller Connolly from the active duties of his office. The effect is the same whether he resigns or is dismissed, or is impeached and so removed, or designates a deputy possessing entire public confidence, to whom he surrenders the full powers of the Comptrollership. All beyond this is a question of detail. We should have preferred to have Mr. Connolly send in his resignation and quit the office in person. But he has not chosen to do that. Not resigning, he should be turned out if the Mayor has a warrant to rid the Treasury of him in that way. But, until Saturday, the Mayor himself did not seem to suspect that the charter gave him the right to remove the obstructive official, and all commentators had taken that fact for granted. But scarcely had the ink dried upon Connolly's letter offering the Deputyship to Hon. Andrew H. Green than the Mayor's counsel make the agreeable discovery that the dismissal of Connolly is entirely within the Mayor's province. We ardently hope that this opinion can be substantiated by law. The Mayor ought to have the power to unmake public officers as well as to make them, and we never shall have a municipal government of the first order till that power is put into the charter or judicially determined to belong there. We shall be agreeably surprised if the Mayor's later view proves to be correct, and General McClellan should accept and be installed in the chair of Comptroller. That appointment completely satisfies the most exigent demands of an outraged and captious public. Reasonable men of all parties would unhesitatingly confide the problems of the Comptroller's office to the clear-headed and honest solution of General McClellan. If he were convinced of the legality of the appointment, and would find its acceptance consonant with his own views of the public interest, he would confer a great favor on the city by taking it, though such an act would, of course, involve a sacrifice of his own comfort and feelings. To his high reputation already made General McClellan can add nothing by assuming the duties of the Comptrollership; but we do not believe that that thought would influence his judgment one way or the other if he should be convinced that the law justifies and the public necessity requires his appointment. Should it not be the good fortune of the city to have General McClellan as Comptroller, then is it a most lucky circumstance that another distinguished and most capable and trusted citizen comes into actual occupation of the Comptroller's seat. We expressed in Monday's paper our high appreciation of the choice of Mr. Green as an executive head and a financial manager, long experienced and bearing a reputation unsullied by any charge of misfeasance or jobbery or even the suspicion of it, so far as our recollection and present knowledge go. If the Mayor's second thought should turn out unsound, and the dismissal of the Comptroller unsanctioned, then, while we should lament over that fact and feel that the deprivation of General McClellan's services as Comptroller was a public misfortune, there would remain the consolation that Mr. Green, as custodian of the financial responsibilities of the metropolis, is one who, judging him from all his record, is entirely competent and trustworthy.

The Present Duty.

[From the Tribune, Sept. 19.]

Now, friends of honest government, hands off! The air is full of rumors about a bargain for relieving somebody in the further conduct of the campaign against the Ring. We give notice that no such bargain will be tolerated. We want no compact for the protection of Mr. Connolly against his late confederates—for the protection or toleration of Mr. Tweed—for screening anybody. We want the facts exposing the public robbery and fixing the guilt; we want every criminal dragged to the scorching light that now begins to stream upon the City Hall, restitution made, and the robbers punished. We are at last in a position to secure all this, and he who consents to accept less betrays us. Let us have an end of talk about understandings that Mr. Connolly, Mr. Tweed and Mr. O'Brien have reached, for striking hands with republicans and other honest citizens against Hall and Sweeny. Any man who pleases may fight in our ranks; but criminals cannot, in the present temper of New York, escape by the stale trick of crying "Stop thief!"

A Few Suggestions.

[From the Evening Mail, Sept. 19.]

The grand movement for municipal reform must not be allowed to be diverted from its legitimate and righteous fulfilment by the schemes of any mere selfish politicians, whether they call themselves republicans or democrats, or fight under the banners of the various factions of both parties. Between now and the November elections there will be many cunning combinations between the men who regard politics as a game and the people as their rightful prey; but the classes of our citizens who are at last awake to their political duties know all these unscrupulous partisans and will beware of such dangerous leaders.

We do not want to be handed over from one gang of partisan thieves to another. We do not want the city entrusted to the control of men who are known to have been connected with jobs, and who get rich out of politics as a trade. There is no reason why the municipal government of New York should be a party affair at all, or it should not be conducted on the business principle of filling the offices with the best men to be found, irrespective of party considerations.

Our City and Its Dangers.

[From the Evening Post, Sept. 19.]

The highest legal authority advises us that, under that cunningly devised fraud, the new charter, the Mayor has no control over the heads of departments whom he has appointed. Under the test of events this pretence of a government with a responsible head breaks down. The conspirators who contrived the charter never meant that there should be any direct responsibility to the people, nor any power in public opinion to control the administration by acting upon its head. They wove the net for the public; they are caught in it themselves, and it is not for them to complain.

But the situation is none the less full of difficulty and danger. Mr. Green has the confidence of the public and deserves it. But his present position is scarcely more than that of a referee in charge of official records for the purpose of ascertaining facts. He is not recognized by the Mayor as an officer; no warrant signed by him can be paid; and the whole influence of the city government goes to throw doubt upon the validity of his official acts. On the other hand, his mere access to the office depends upon the will of his superior officer, Mr. Connolly, who might at any time effect a reconciliation with his old associates in misgovernment and shut his doors upon Mr. Green and the public.

The utter disorganization of the city government must result if this situation continues. There is already serious danger of disorder, and the danger will only increase every hour, as long as the government is made helpless by dissension. Any open attempt by Mayor Hall to enforce the views he expresses in his letter to Mr. Connolly, by seizing the Comptroller's office, could now be made only at the risk of a riot far more terrible than that of last July. Yet, by quietly submitting to have the most important office in his gift filled and its powers exercised under an authority which defies him, he would accept a humiliation which cannot fail to weaken his whole government and bring his own office into contempt. It is not surprising that Mayor Hall shrinks from either alternative. His official pride will not permit him to accept Mr. Green as an officer of the city; his duty as guardian of the public peace will not permit him to use force for expelling Mr. Green.

What remains for the Mayor to do? Nothing but to make Mr. Green, not the deputy, but the successor of Mr. Connolly. The Times asserts that Mr. Connolly is ready to resign if Mr. Green can be appointed. This appointment, then, will be acceptable to all the parties interested; it will remove the legal difficulties and the practical dissensions which now disturb the city government; it will vindicate the Mayor's official dignity, if not his personal pride, and it will restore public confidence to the financial administration of the city far more effectually than a temporary and disputed appointment as deputy. If Mr. Hall is personally ready to meet before the public all the facts which appear upon the Comptroller's records, he can have no motive strong enough to overcome these reasons for accepting Mr. Green as Comptroller.

Unless this be done Mr. Green cannot properly give up the vantage ground which he holds, not for himself, but for the people. Admitting that he holds it in violation of sound principles of government, and by virtue of a technical trick of legislation which is disgraceful to its authors and to the city, yet the violation of principle is not his, but theirs who framed the charter. The disgrace belongs to the Mayor and his associates, who contrived for others the trap which now catches them. Until the people have the facts which belong to them, but which Messrs. Hall and Connolly have sedulously and cunningly withheld from them, they are right in taking every advantage they can against concealment. The public must know just what has been stolen from them and just who has stolen it; and, in order to obtain this information, which is their right, all legal measures are justified.

But it cannot be denied that the Mayor and his associates have the power not only to sacrifice the public peace by attempting violence against Mr. Green, but seriously to endanger the public peace by simply continuing their refusal to recognize his authority. The moral authority of the city government is already greatly impaired; the restraints which control the disorderly elements of our society are already weakened, and the passions of men are already so much heated that there is a growing danger of disturbance. A little thing might to-day fill our streets with violence and crime. There are prominent men in the city who are eager for disorder; it is their element and will multiply their power. These men are not now the friends of the Mayor, but by maintaining the present situation he is but aiding them and giving them the opportunity they watch for.

As the guardian of the public peace, Mayor Hall is called on to offer to Mr. Andrew H. Green his appointment as Comptroller of the city. If he cannot accept and execute the people's will in this matter, now so important to the public safety, the sooner he resigns the trust they have given him the better. They will then elect a Mayor in November who will regard himself as the servant and agent of the people, and not of his own petty and personal pride.

A JOURNALISTIC MELEE OVER THE RING QUARREL.

Matthew J. O'Rourke, the Tammany informer, taking umbrage at a paragraph in the Tribune of yesterday, which set him down as a "nuisance" and intimated indirectly that he was a liar, entered the editorial rooms of that paper yesterday and demanded to see the managing editor. The latter would not see him, however, and he then demanded of another gentleman in the office who wrote the offending paragraph. Upon this demand according to Mr. O'Rourke's statement, the whole editorial and reportorial force of the establishment went for him, and after hustling him over chairs and desks at a very disorganizing rate, attempted to toss him down the ricketty stairway. Thereupon the unfortunate ring smasher, fearing that he would be himself smashed, retreated.

The managing editor of the Tribune makes the following statement in regard to the matter:—

Matthew J. O'Rourke came to the office of the Tribune on Monday and indulged in loud and abusive language about the course of this paper. He was suffered to have his talk out and to depart unmolested. He then wrote an impertinent note to the Tribune, which he published in an evening paper. This was of course refused admittance to the Tribune of yesterday, and Mr. O'Rourke's conduct was referred to in terms suited to the occasion. Yesterday he came to the office again, and, after ascertaining that he could not see the managing editor, he approached the city editor with an uplifted cane and threatening words and manner, upon which the city editor rose, seized O'Rourke's stick with one hand and his collar with the other, and put him out of the office.

THE POLITICAL MEANING OF REFORM.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

There have been in the city administration malfeasances in office, political compromises and immense robberies. These have always been part and parcel of government since government was established. The people pay so much per cent on their property and earnings every year to make a fund for the expenses of administration, and of this fund it is certain that at least one-half will go to men who hang about lobbies and help to make the laws for the people. It was so in England under every premier who conducted the politics in the eighteenth century. France has never been without a political corruption fund. We who behold the present excitement in plaster politics forget that the excitement has occurred every year within our experience. There are always two parties clamoring for reform—the politicians, who mean to have one set turned out that they themselves may go in, and the people, who are anxious that no corruption shall exist, but who are never allowed to participate in the means to be used for this accomplishment.

In the present excitement it is evident to dispassionate observers whom the virtuous politicians of both sides have not succeeded in blinding that the plaster frauds are to be traced to the plaster jobs at Albany. The Court House money has been a standing fund for two generations of politicians. Whenever the party in power in this city has desired to obtain a charter for the government of the city it has been compelled to give country legislators a chance at the Court House for compensation. The present city charter was not obtained from the republicans and anti-Tammany democrats without a bargain that all bills for work done on the Court House should be paid. They have been paid, and the Board of Apportionment have only performed a political contract which the highest tribunal of the State imposed upon them last winter. The money has gone into cheese presses and cider mills, ward clubs and seaside palaces. The Court House still stands, and we have no doubt will stand as a monument of Legislative compromise for many a winter to come. The question is shall the New York republicans have half the sway or all? They are trying to get all. This is the meaning of reform.

What the end of the fight will be is easy to be seen. The democrats of this State must give up the Assembly this winter. Every politician in the State is alarmed because there has been plaster in politics and he is not richer by another cornice. The rush for Court House plunder will be unprecedented. Meanwhile Tammany is stolidly fighting for her accustomed half; and it seems somewhat small that the Custom House party, unsatisfied with plucking one federal goose and half of a Tammany gander, should now demand the brace. Yet they will gain the Assembly. But for Reuben E. Fenton they would have the whole bird. He will not give them the Senate. That power belongs to him by prescription, and while Tom Murphy leads the Republican Convention and enjoys federal patronage that Senate cannot be republican. Fenton will not allow Conkling to dictate the election of a United States Senator. While Justice Nelson lives, and Conkling is not the Supreme Court Justice in this district, the republican party must remain contented with half the corruption fund. The people must not deceive themselves with any hope that a Committee of Seventy or any committee will reduce the rate of taxation. The Citizens' Association did not do it, and the Committee of Seventy, in the hands of one or two politicians, will not effect any more. The question is, Shall Tammany own the committee or the committee own Tammany? The advantage in politics is on the side of the owners; they get half the swag and all the brokerage. The people who breathe the air of freedom must be content to pay an average of two and a quarter per cent on their property for that privilege—one per cent for improvements, a half per cent to each political party and the quarter for brokerage. It is plain that the city cannot be run on the Two Per Cent law. It is a quarter per cent too little. But let us remember a story of Charley Minott, once the great and eccentric Superintendent of the Erie Railway, who, when the directors met to decide whether they should discharge the entire force of Erie conductors for buying costly houses and expensive watches with railway collections, said, "Well, gentlemen, these men have got the watches and the houses. So far as I can learn they are all supplied. Now, if you turn these out and get in a new set, you've got to buy these watches and houses all over again."

REAL ESTATE AND THE RINGS.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

"The Ring" seems doomed at least to a temporary banishment from place and power. What will be the policy of its successors is the subject of anxious conjecture among the owners of uptown real estate. Will they vigorously but economically complete all improvements now in progress, and carry out all those in contemplation? Or will they seek to earn a reputation for economy and for saving the City Treasury and credit by stopping expenditures? As they shall approach nearer the one or the other of these courses, so will they prove themselves friends or foes to the progress and prosperity of the city.

Whatever sins of omission or commission may be charged against "The Ring," it is due to it to say that it understood better than any party that had preceded it the needs of this great metropolis, and it has conceived and proceeded to execute improvements upon a scale of magnificence and of great public utility undreamed of by its predecessors, and for which we might have looked and hoped in vain from any other body. It must be conceded that the enormous rise in property, and particularly in the prices of uptown lots, was due in a great measure to the improvements actual and projected of this so-called Ring. Granted that the cost of these improvements was exorbitant, and far in excess of what they ought to have been, yet the enhanced value of property was so far in excess of the cost that the cost became of minor importance, and was on that account borne more or less patiently, but always with the consciousness that upon the whole the property owners and the city were gainers. The expenditures were enormous, the assessments were very high, but the rise in value of property was more enormous still; progress and prosperity went hand in hand.

But the Ring is to be displaced, new rulers are to be installed, everything is to be reformed. Now, in what is reform to consist—retrenchment? Retrenchment may be well enough, but when applied to the affairs of a great city it may be as disastrous as the most profligate waste; and if by retrenchment is meant arresting improvement and stopping expenditure, there will assuredly be a change, but it will [illegible]. Many or all the contemplated improvements have been discounted, and if these, from an apprehension of the city getting too deeply in debt, are to be abandoned or even delayed, a great depreciation in the price of real estate must follow, and for progress and prosperity we shall substitute depression and distress.

If, on the other hand, our new rulers, with a better comprehension of the true interests of our city, [illegible] the ephemeral glory of effecting a mighty saving, shall vigorously and without [illegible] carry out all the great improvements [illegible] by their predecessors, allowing retrenchment only to the extent of preventing fraud [illegible] then truly will the people's interests [illegible] and the great and manifest destiny of [illegible] promoted, values and prices will be [illegible] and enhanced, and the people may congratulate themselves upon the change of rulers.

OUR PUBLIC CHARITIES.

Visit of the Emigration Commissioners to Ward's Island.

Commissioners of Emigration Wallach, Lynch, Nicholson, Hart, Superintendent Casserly and a select number of invited guests went on a visit of inspection to Ward's Island yesterday. The party left Castle Garden on board the steamer Andrew Fletcher at half-past twelve o'clock, provided with a plentiful supply of eatables and viands. On the trip up the appetites of the company were considerably sharpened by the sail and the pure air. Before reaching the island luncheon was served, to which all did full justice. At half-past one o'clock the company landed and proceeded to inspect the new lunatic asylum lately erected by the Commissioners of Emigration and which is nearly completed and ready for the reception of patients. The building was designed by Renwick & Sands, the architects, under whose supervision the large new Asylum of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction was erected, and which for architectural beauty cannot be excelled. The Commissioners of Emigration intended at first to erect a costly building; but when the architect returned his estimate it was found that such a building would cost at least half a million of dollars, a sum which the Commissioners did not feel warranted in expending for the purpose, and the idea of building a costly asylum was abandoned. The new asylum is 125 feet long by thirty feet in width, and is constructed of brick, two stories in height, with Mansard roof, and has all the modern appurtenances. The cost of the building is $30,000. When the Commissioners declined to expend a large sum for a commodious asylum it was agreed that a one story building would be sufficient for all purposes, but, as it looked insignificant, another story and Mansard roof were added.

The party, after a careful inspection of the building, proceeded to the new Asylum of the Charities and Corrections, where they were received by Warden Smythe, who afforded the party every facility in viewing the handsome edifice, which was much admired for its beauty of design and the many conveniences for the comfort and treatment of insane patients. Warden Smythe, of the Blackwell's Island asylums, informed the company that he had over one thousand four hundred patients, and that he could not comfortably accommodate more than 600 in the old buildings, and as insanity in its various forms is greatly on the increase, it is obvious that an additional asylum is not sufficient to meet the demand. The party then inspected the other institutions under the charge of the Emigration Commissioners and returned to the city at an early hour well pleased with their visit.

DROWNING CASUALTY IN NEWTOWN CREEK.

A boat, containing four men, was accidentally capsized in Newtown Creek yesterday, and two of the number, William Remmess, of Sixteenth street, [illegible] C, New York, and Henry Miller, residing in [illegible]town, were drowned. Their companions, Peter Collins and Henry Bush, were saved. The bodies of the drowned men were recovered.

FLEETWOOD PARK.

Fine Trotting, an Elegant Attendance and Delightful Weather.

The grounds of the Fleetwood Park were finely filled yesterday afternoon by the lovers of sports of the turf, and the Club House and grand stand presented a magnificent appearance. The trotting consisted of two contests for purses, besides the unfinished race of the previous day, which was one of the most stubbornly contested events that ever took place in this country, eight heats in all having been gone through with before a result was arrived at. On the previous day four heats came off, Charley Green winning two and Medoc two. When the horses appeared for business yesterday the winners of the heats of the day previous were great favorites over the others; but neither of them won another heat, while Young Bruno, who did not act well on the first day, came out on the second full of life and vigor and won the race.

Then followed the regular business of the day, which was two trots for large purses, the first being for horses that had never beaten 2:50 and the other for horses that had never trotted faster than 2:38, each race being mile heats, best three in five, in harness. In both races there were nine entries, but in the first there were only four starters and in the second but five. The first race was decided in three heats, while the second had to be postponed until to-day at two o'clock, after three heats had been trotted, the last one being a dead heat.

The starters in the 2:50 purse were M. Rodin's bay gelding Castle Boy, G. M. Furguson's bay mare Bright Eyes, J. J. Bowen's brown gelding Jack Poor, and D. Pfifer's bay mare Louisa Moore. Castle Boy was the favorite before the start over the field. He won the race quite easily in three straight heats, Bright Eyes winning second money and Jack Poor the third. Castle Boy is a beautiful trotting horse, and has a brilliant career before him.

The starters in the second race were Alden Goldsmith's bay gelding Bodine, A. Patterson's chestnut mare Belle of Oneida, J. Splan's brown mare Constance, L. Morris' bay mare Nettie Morris, and H. J. Doremus' chestnut gelding Joe. The latter was the favorite over the field before the start, but he acted so badly that he was distanced on the second heat. This horse came from California about two years ago and was taken to Pennsylvania, where he has been kept in the shade waiting for a "good thing." The good thing came yesterday, and the horse got it as well as his sanguine backers. This horse has a great turn of speed, but he has a will of his own, and he will trot only when it suits him. He ran away with Dan Mace on the second heat, and acted like a brute, as he is, and his backers fell heavily in consequence.

The following are the details of the trotting yesterday, commencing with

THE UNFINISHED TROT OF MONDAY:—

TIME.

	Quarter.	Half.	Mile.
First heat	37	1:13¾	2:30¼
Second heat	37	1:12¾	2:30½
Third heat	35½	1:13½	2:29½
Fourth heat	36¼	1:12½	2:28½
Fifth heat	36½	1:12½	2:28
Sixth heat	37¼	1:13	2:30½
Seventh heat	38	1:14	2:32½
Eighth heat	38	1:13½	2:32¾

Fifth Heat.—Medoc was the favorite. After a great deal of manœuvring the horses were given the word and got away in a straggling manner, Charley Green in front, Medoc second, Lady Ross third, Sea Foam fourth, Susie fifth, the others trailing. At the quarter pole they were in the same positions. This point was passed in thirty-six seconds and a half. Going around the lower turn Susie worked her way through to the front and led one length at the half-mile pole in 1:12½, Charley Green second, Lady Ross third, Sea Foam fourth, Medoc fifth, Dreadnaught sixth, Young Bruno seventh and Lady Augusta eighth. Going up the backstretch Susie kept in front, and Sea Foam went up to Charley Green. Coming into the homestretch the struggle was exciting between these three, and they had a close engagement to the end, the other horses being practically out of the fight. Susie won the heat by two lengths, Sea Foam second, one length in front of Charley Green, the latter being several lengths in advance of Lady Ross, Medoc fifth, Lady Augusta sixth, Dreadnaught seventh, and Young Bruno eighth. Time, 2:28.

Sixth Heat.—Susie was away first, Young Bruno second, Charley Green third, the others in a bunch. Susie led to the quarter pole in thirty-seven and a quarter seconds, Sea Foam second, Lady Ross third, Young Bruno fourth the others trailing. At the half-mile pole Susie was still in front, Young Bruno second, Sea Foam third, Lady Ross fourth, Charley Green fifth, Dreadnaught sixth, Medoc seventh and Lady Augusta eighth. Time, 1:13. Sea Foam trotted rapidly up the backstretch, and took the lead before she reached the quarter pole, but she broke up as she came into the homestretch and fell back. The struggle was afterwards between Susie and Bruno, and as they passed under the wire Bruno had a few inches the best of it. Susie was second, Charley Green third, Lady Ross fourth, Dreadnaught fifth, Lady Augusta sixth, Sea Foam seventh and Medoc eighth. Time of the heat, 2:30½.

Seventh Heat.—Lady Augusta was then withdrawn. When the word was given Young Bruno, Medoc, Susie and Lady Ross were side and side, Charley Green fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh. At the quarter pole, which was passed in thirty-eight seconds, Young Bruno led, Charley Green second, Lady Ross third, Susie fourth, Medoc fifth, Sea Foam sixth and Dreadnaught seventh. At the half-mile pole, which was passed in 1:14, Bruno led one length, Lady Ross second, Charley Green third, Susie fourth, Medoc fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh. Bruno kept in front to the end, being pressed all the way by Charley Green from the half-mile pole. He won the race by two lengths, Charley Green second, Medoc third, Lady Ross fourth, Sea Foam fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Susie seventh. Time of the heat 2:32½.

Eighth Heat.—Lady Ross had the best of the send off, Charley Green second, Young Bruno third, Susie fourth, Medoc fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh. When they passed the quarter pole Young Bruno was in front, in thirty-eight seconds, Lady Ross second, Susie third, Charley Green fourth, Medoc fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh, the latter having broke up badly on the way. At the half-mile pole Bruno was still in front, in 1:13½, and he continued to lead up the backstretch, notwithstanding that Charley Green ran all the way. Bruno kept steadily at his work; but when he got into the homestretch Charley Green came on with a rush, and as they passed under the wire the latter was a neck in front of Bruno. The judges, however, gave the heat and race to Bruno and placed Susie second, Charley Green third, Medoc fourth, Lady Ross fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh. The time of the heat was 2:32¾.

Second heat	36	1:12	2:30¾
Third heat	36¾	1:13¾	2:33

First Heat.—Joe was the favorite over the field at odds. Bodine had the best of the send-off, Oneida second, Nettie Morris third, Constance fourth and Joe last. The latter broke up as soon as the word was given and never recovered until he was a distance out. At the quarter pole Bodine led three lengths, Oneida second, Constance third, Nettie Morris fourth and Joe one hundred yards behind. Time, thirty-six seconds. At the half-mile pole Bodine was several lengths in front, Oneida second, the others practically out of the race. Bodine came on steadily and won the heat by three lengths, Oneida second, Constance third, Nettie Morris fourth and Joe just inside the distance flag on a run. Time of the heat, 2:31.

Second Heat.—Belle of Oneida took the lead, Bodine second, Nettie Morris third, Constance fourth, Joe fifth. At the quarter pole Bodine was three lengths in front of Belle of Oneida, Constance third, Nettie Morris fourth, Joe, on a break, far behind. The time to this point was thirty-six seconds. From this point to the finish Bodine kept in front, and there was no chance of place by the other horses. The half-mile pole was passed by Bodine in 1:12, and he came home an easy winner of the race in 2:30¾. Belle of Oneida was second, Constance third, Nettie Morris fourth and Joe distanced.

Third Heat.—Bodine had the best of the start, Constance second, Nettie Morris third, Belle of Oneida fourth. At the quarter pole, which was passed in thirty-six and three-quarter seconds, Bodine led three lengths, Constance second, two lengths in front of Belle of Oneida, who was two lengths ahead of Nettie Morris. At the half-mile pole Constance, Bodine and Nettie Morris were close together, Bodine having cast a shoe on the lower turn. Time, 1:13¾. Belle of Oneida went to the front on the backstretch, and at the three-quarter pole she led two lengths, Bodine second, Constance third and Nettie Morris fourth. Bodine then forgot the want of the shoe, and, trotting faithfully to the end, made a dead heat with Belle of Oneida. Constance was two lengths behind, Nettie Morris fourth. The time of the heat was 2:33.

Darkness now closed in on the track, and the judges postponed the trot until to-morrow at two o'clock, when a general stampede took place by the assemblage.

Fleetwood Park To-Day.

In addition to the unfinished 2:38 purse, the trotting to-day at Fleetwood Park will be of the most exciting character. The first event is the purse of $4,000, free for all horses—$2,500 to the first, $900 to the second, and $650 to the third horse. Entered for this are three clippers, these being Dan Mace's brown gelding George Palmer, M. Rodin's bay gelding Henry and Benjamin Daniel's bay mare American Girl. This race has been earnestly talked of for many days, and it is expected to be one of the grandest struggles seen on the turf in this section for a long time.

The second event, a purse of $2,000, is for horses that have never beaten 2:31—$1,300 to the first, $500 to the second, and $200 to the third horse. For this are entered Benj. Mace's sorrel gelding Climax, Jno. H. Whitson's chestnut gelding Clarence, M. Degonge's sorrel gelding Fleetwood, R. Johnson's bay mare Lotta, D. Tallman's brown stallion Daniel Boone, Dan Pfifer's gray gelding Lottery, B. Daniel's bay mare Topsy, Thos. S. Foster's brown stallion Dauntless, and C. Hoagland's gray gelding Gray Jack.

Pools were sold on these events last night at the rooms of Messrs. Marshall & Johnson, Broadway and Twenty-eighth street. The sporting assemblage present was very large and the betting of the most spirited nature. On the "free for all" purse at least $10,000 was deposited in the box. The following figures will give a good idea of the prevailing feeling as to the favorites:—

HONORS TO THE DEAD.

Funeral of Ex-Judge Stuart.

A numerous gathering of the friends of the late Judge assembled at his residence, No. 84 West Eighty-fourth street, yesterday, to pay the last rites of friendship and honor to the departed.

The remains were enclosed in a large rosewood casket, lined with white satin, and the plate and handles were of solid silver. The hands of the corpse were crossed upon the breast, and at the feet was placed a cross and anchor, composed of camelias and tuberoses. A long line of sympathizing friends passed in single file through the parlors and turned around the coffin to take a last look at the dead friend and associate. Among the visitors present were District Attorney Garvin, Judges Bedford, Larremore, Jones, Curtis, Cardozo and Dowling; James Hayes, Michael Tuomey, Thomas Whalen, Henry Hill and several prominent lawyers.

The Rev. Dr. Chapin delivered the funeral discourse, which was followed by prayer, and the remains were removed to the family vault in Greenwood.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In your obituary, in yesterday's issue, of Judge Sydney H. Stuart, there are some inaccuracies which, with your permission, I will point out. Judge Stuart was born at Branchville, Sussex county, N. J., at that time a hamlet lying at the foot of the Blue Mountains, and twelve miles, or thereabouts, this side of the Delaware River. He received a common school education at his native place, under the instruction of one Simeon Bishop, a man of superior education and abilities to those usually found in those days following the avocation of "country schoolmaster." When young Stuart left school he learned the trade of saddler and harness maker, which, as apprentice and journeyman, he followed until about 1832 or 1833, when he came to New York and for several years thereafter was salesman in an auction store on Pearl street. So far from his being unable to read or write at the time of his coming to New York he was, during the first year, the author of a play, which was, I think, produced at some one of the minor theatres. His subsequent career is well known, and is as stated in your obituary notice.

MRS. J. J. CONNOLLY.

She is a Raving Maniac and Removed to an Asylum.

Mrs. J. J. Connolly, wife of the late Dr. Connolly, who a short time since destroyed two of his children and subsequently committed suicide, was yesterday afternoon declared by Dr. Willard Parker to be a raving maniac, and an order was demanded from Judge Dowling to have her forwarded to Bloomingdale Lunatic Asylum. It will be remembered that about a fortnight since Mrs. Connolly was in the French cathedral at Montreal, and while the service was being performed she was seized with a sudden aberration, and has since lost all control of her mental powers. She returned to New York a few days ago, and put up at the Metropolitan Hotel; but she has gradually become worse, until her friends applied for an opinion from Dr. Parker as to her case. The Judge was desired to call at the hotel last night, when an order was signed for her removal to the asylum. The Doctor stated that hers was an almost hopeless case, and in his mind grave doubts arose whether she could ever recover.

THE VAN BUSKIRK CASE.

Madam Van Buskirk and "Doctor" Benjamin Perry, of New York, who were indicted on the charge of having caused the death of Miss Emily A. Post, of Somerville, N. J., were arraigned in the Brooklyn City Court, before Judge McCue, yesterday morning. Mr. Cooney, for the defence, asked for a postponement in consequence of the recent death of ex-Judge Stuart, the senior counsel in the case. Mr. Cooney said that he was unprepared to go on with the trial of the case by himself, and, therefore, he wanted a delay of a few days before entering pleas for the prisoners. District Attorney Morris, for the people, said he would be ready to proceed to-day (Wednesday), but would consent to a delay until Thursday. Mr. Cooney asked for a postponement until Monday, but the Court refused to grant it, and the trial was finally set down for Friday.

HUNTING HOBOKEN HOGS.

At the Common Council meeting in Hoboken, last evening, a resolution was introduced recommending the immediate prosecution of several citizens residing on the meadows for harboring hogs within their doors. A crowd of hog owners was in attendance, and evidently made an impression on the Aldermen, as the latter postponed action on the resolution. Though the hogs are a decided nuisance, it is generally considered very hard to deprive upwards of a hundred paupers of the only means which they have of eking out an existence, especially when the animals are confined to the meadows, which are far more dangerous to public health than the hog tribe.

THE WASHINGTON TREATY.

Mr. Russel Gurney's Arrival in New York—Time Appointed for the First Meeting of the American and British Mixed Commission.

Mr. Russell Gurney, Recorder of the city of London and Commissioner of the British Commission, arrived in this city yesterday on board the Cunard steamship China. The United States and British Mixed Commission, under the Treaty of Washington, of which Mr. Gurney is the Commissioner representing Great Britain, for the investigation and decision of claims of the two countries other than the "Alabama claims," will commence their meetings in Washington on Monday, the 25th inst.

Mr. Gurney's Departure from Southampton—Liberals and Conservatives Unite in Wishing Him Godspeed in His Mission.

Just before his departure for the United States the Corporation and citizens of Southampton, England, presented an address to their Member of Parliament, the Right Hon. Russell Gurney, appointed by the English government one of the Commissioners, under the Treaty of Washington, for the adjustment of the Alabama claims. Both liberals and conservatives took part in paying this compliment to the high character of Mr. Gurney. The address was presented by the Mayor in Hartley Hall, who took occasion to say that a more competent or better man could not have been chosen for the difficult and delicate duties of arbitrator. When Mr. Gurney rose to respond he was received in the most enthusiastic manner, and, thanking the audience for the cordiality of their reception, he said he knew that the meeting was meant not merely to show personal kindness to himself, but especially to indicate a hearty interest in the work he had undertaken and in which he was soon to be engaged. He did not consider the language of the address too strong when it said that there was reason to hope that the Treaty of Washington will form an era in the history of civilization and of the English nation. He said that he did not go as the advocate of British or as the opponent of American claims. "We are to consider," said he, "every claim that is brought before us, without considering for a single moment by whom that claim is preferred or by whom it is opposed, and in so doing I believe I shall be best consulting the interests of both countries. It is a matter of very small importance to a country like Great Britain or the United States whether a smaller or larger sum of money be paid or received by one country or the other; but what is important to both of them is that the people of both countries should believe that the questions that have arisen between them have been fairly and justly decided. I believe that it would be less serious to the interest of either of those countries that they should be called upon to pay almost any sum that can be named than that it should be a matter of belief among the people of the country that the payment had been avoided by unfairness in the arbitration. I confess that I have no fear of any such termination of our labors. I have for my colleague, appointed by the United States, a gentleman who has for a long time filled the office of judge with honor to himself, and I know of nothing so calculated to fit him for the office of arbitrator under the treaty as a long judicial experience, which almost necessarily has the effect of forming habits in the mind of the person who has had it, which prevented his being advocate instead of the judge, and at the same time almost necessarily secures his impartiality. Thus it is not merely that sense of duty which I believe would, under the same circumstances, animate all men alike, but it is the habit of mind and thought, formed by long judicial experience, which will lead my colleague to look to both sides of a question, and to ground his decision upon a fair examination of both sides. For the third commissioner we have a gentleman of high position, who has taken the office at the earnest request of both governments—a gentleman of perfect honor and great intelligence, in whom both governments have unlimited confidence. This, ladies and gentlemen, is the tribunal, and I think, therefore, I am justified in saying that I have every confidence as to the result. I know perfectly well, from information that has already reached me, that the causes which will be brought before us are numerous; some, no doubt, will be of a complicated nature; some will involve difficult questions of maritime and international law; but I have very great faith in our honest endeavors to do right. Feeling as I do that that will be the determination of both my colleagues, and trusting that I myself shall not fail therein, I must again, though it does not become him that putteth on the harness to boast himself like unto him that taketh it off, yet I cannot doubt that we shall be able to arrive at that just decision in the matters referred to us which is most earnestly desired by the governments and peoples of both countries. For myself I can only say that if at any time, amid the difficulties and anxieties of the untried scenes which are before me, I should be disposed to regret the sacrifice I have made of home, ease and comfort, I shall be cheered by the recollection of the kindly feeling that has dictated this address.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

Nineteenth Triennial Conclave of Knights Templar in Baltimore—Four Thousand Knights in Attendance.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 19, 1871.

The Nineteenth Triennial Conclave of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States commenced in this city this morning. Notwithstanding the cloudy and threatening sky, at nine o'clock the several commanderies which took part in the procession left their headquarters and marched to the general rendezvous, in front of Barnum's Hotel, for the purpose of escorting the Grand Commandery to the Masonic Temple on Charles street. The procession was a display of the most brilliant and imposing character. The magnificent but chaste uniform of the Knights—full suits of black, with chapeaux and spotless white plumes and burnished swords—notwithstanding the lack of sunshine, presented a grand spectacle. Thousands of spectators crowded the streets along the line of march. The entire city is dressed with Masonic banners and national flags.

The ceremonies at the Masonic Temple were short and simple, consisting of a welcome address to the Knights by Most Worshipful J. H. B. Latrobe, Grand Master of Freemasons of the State of Maryland, which was responded to by Sir William Small Gardner, Grand Commander of the Grand Encampment of the United States.

It is expected that fully 4,000 Knights Templar will attend this conclave, representing every State in the Union.

NORTH CAROLINA KU KLUX TRIALS.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 19, 1871.

In the Ku Klux trials the testimony on the part of the State concluded at half-past twelve to-day and the defence announced that they had no testimony to offer. The Court then adjourned till four o'clock P. M.

In the afternoon session T. C. Fuller led in behalf of the defence and spoke for two hours, and was followed by Colonel Mark Erwin, for the prosecution. Mr. Erwin spoke three-quarters of an hour, and the Court then adjourned till ten o'clock to-morrow morning, when George Strong will close for the defence. The case will then be put to the jury. Great interest is manifested in the result.

It has leaked out that Judge Bond has refused the injunction restraining President Warren and Speaker Jarvis from appointing directors and proxies in the North Carolina Railroad Company.

YELLOW FEVER IN CHARLESTON.

The number of cases of yellow fever in course of treatment does not exceed an average of two in each ward, and the number of persons sick from other causes is astonishingly few.

COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS.

Before Judge Dowling.

The question of overcrowding the street railroad cars has frequently been discussed, but no practical results have ever been arrived at to prevent the city railroad corporations from carrying more than three times the legitimate number of passengers in their cars—much to their own profit, but greatly to the disgust of the general public. About two weeks ago the indomitable Bergh, Chief of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, saw a car belonging to the Forty-second street and Crosstown line loaded almost to suffocation, and, in addition to the load, he saw that the horses were lame. The latter fact at once called for his services as an officer of the society, and he had the car stopped for the purpose of releasing the animals. The crowd stepped off the car and Mr. Bergh counted the passengers, ascertaining their number to be seventy-five. This struck the humane Bergh as being monstrous, not so much against the horseflesh as against humanity, and he immediately arrested the conductor and driver—Thomas Boyle and Peter McLaughlin.

Generally Mr. Bergh's arrests are of minor importance, and the proceedings in the courts unworthy of much public comment; but in this case he maintained that it involved a principle as to whether human beings should be subjected to treatment such as men would scarcely inflict on horses, without the offence being visited with condign punishment. He maintained that to pack made to carry about thirty at the outside was a gross violation of every social and humane law.

The two prisoners were taken before the Court of Special Sessions last week, but as the Court wished to ascertain exactly the bearing of the law upon the case they were remanded until yesterday, so that a proper investigation might be instituted and a judgment rendered according to the statute.

The Court of Special Sessions was closely crowded before the proceedings commenced by conductors and other railroad officials, who evinced a lively interest in the case.

When the case was called Boyle only answered, the other defendant being sick—at least according to counsel engaged to defend him—and on this a motion to adjourn the case was made and promptly denied.

Judge DOWLING—It would be useless to prolong a case of this sort, involving, as it does, so much that is of general interest to the travelling public, and I therefore proceed to state my decision in the matter:—

JUDGE DOWLING'S JUDGMENT.

The defendants have been convicted for violating a most humane law. It is true, as has been urged in their behalf, that the law does not restrict them as to the number of passengers to be conveyed in a single car, and, as far as the Court is informed, the conductors and drivers have no orders to that effect from the superintendents or others having the management and control of the city railroads. But this cannot shield them from the consequences of a violation of law. Their own sense of what was just and proper and the common feelings of humanity most assuredly would have taught them that compelling a pair of horses to draw a car containing over seventy passengers was

A MOST UNNECESSARY ACT OF CRUELTY.

Of all animals the horse is most useful to man, and when men so far forget themselves as to abuse or ill-treat them they deserve and should be severely punished. It would be well, if possible, if those having the management of the city railroads could regulate the number of passengers to be carried in each car, so that the conductors and drivers might act understandingly, and if orders were then disobeyed they would have no excuse.

The question of punishment in these cases is one surrounded with embarrassment to the Court. The conductors and drivers are usually poor men, almost entirely dependent on their situations for the support of their families, and in nowise interested in the amount returned to their employers as the result of each trip. To inflict a punishment or penalty upon them would, it seems to me, be a great injustice and hardship. But if, in any case, it can be shown to the Court that these acts of the conductors and drivers are of the railroad companies, or if any of these officers are shown to be upon the cars, countenancing a violation of the law, the Court will visit upon them the severest penalty prescribed for such offence. Under the circumstances of this case, believing that the defendants did not act wilfully and maliciously, but heedlessly and without due thought or consideration, I have concluded not to punish them at this time, but to discharge them with the caution that if again brought for a like offence they must expect no mercy.

Judgment of the Court suspended.

ESSEX COUNTY (N. J.) COURTS.

The Pet Halsted Murder and Other Notorious Newark Criminalities.

The September term of the Essex County Courts opened yesterday at the Court House in Newark. Mr. O'Fake, a colored man, was among the Grand Jurors. Judge Depue delivered his charge, a lengthy document, the most important parts of which are those bearing on

by George Botts, and on the frightful slaughter on the Newark and New York Railroad.

The inquisition taken first in order was upon the body of Oliver S. Halstead, Jr., a known citizen of this city. The charge in the inquisition is that the said George Botts is guilty of murder. It is sufficient on this occasion to say that if the same testimony shall be produced before you in an indictment for the grave offence indicated by the Coroner's jury it should be found that the accused may be put upon trial.

THE BRILLS SWITCHES SLAUGHTER.

The second of these inquisitions was taken upon the bodies of five persons who came to their death upon the Newark and New York Railroad on the 9th day of July last, in a collision between two trains on that road, caused by a misplacement of a switch, which was then in charge of one William Thompson. The Coroner's jury find that the accident resulted from the carelessness of the switch-tender. The law on this subject has recently received consideration by the Supreme Court and is well settled. If the omission to perform a duty such as devolves upon a person having charge of a switch upon a railroad is wilful and death results therefrom, the crime is murder. If the default is the result of negligence the offence is manslaughter.

THE TRIAL OF BOTTS

will not take place for ten days. He has lately been extremely morose, and not long ago tried to obtain laudanum with which to kill himself. He still madly loves the woman Wilson. The latter has kept herself entirely secluded, since the Coroner's inquest, in her father's house.

THE FERRY ENCROACHMENT.

The Committee from the Board of Aldermen of Brooklyn Confers With the Representatives of the Union Ferry Company.

At noon yesterday Messrs. Morse and Smith, President and Superintendent of the Union Ferry Company, met the committee from the Board of Aldermen of Brooklyn to confer with them in regard to the question of encroachment of the new ferry house at the foot of Fulton street on city property. Messrs. Smith and Morse were seconded by the counsel for the ferry company, Mr. Benjamin D. Silliman. That gentleman opened the proceedings with a lengthy argument in support of the ferry company. He declared that the company had no selfish or mercenary motives in the construction of the ferry building to its present line, and that it was the desire of the company to harmonize with the city government and to respect the city officials. The substance of Mr. Silliman's argument bore upon the acceptance by the committee of a proposition from the ferry company to pay to the city the nominal sum of $1 for the privilege of using the ground encroached upon by the ferry building. The structure, he said, had cost the company $100,000, and the company would not receive an additional cent more fare by its construction. The city ought to be satisfied to yield the strip of land encroached upon for the public interest and for the nominal sum of $1. The counsel assured the committee in a positive manner that the ferry company was not organized or operated for the purpose of money making. That with its capital of $1,000,000 the directors of the company hold less than $28,000 worth of the stock. Their interests were in Brooklyn and they felt a pride in the growth and prosperity of the city. Of the 10,000 shares but 2,000 are held in New York and Brooklyn; the larger portion of them are held in Queens and Suffolk counties and other localities.

Coporation Counsel De Witt replied to the argument of Mr. Silliman, and considered it a "remarkable address," but he supposed that an examination was to be held between the ferry company and the city. The company, he remarked, had remained in the same position with their old building for twenty-five years, and when the officials of the Brooklyn departments were absent from the city in the summer the ferry company deliberately encroached upon the street and claimed ownership. He did not appreciate their interest as Brooklyn men nor the nominal sum proposed by the company. The company ought to pay rent for the ground encroached upon in accordance with its worth. New York, in yielding up her claim for a nominal sum, obtained one cent ferriage for a portion of the day, and he would suggest that the one cent ferriage be continued through the day.

Mr. SILLIMAN said the ferry could not be run for one cent fare, and that of the five ferries of the company the Fulton ferry alone pays expenses.

The committee adjourned and will report the result of their conference at the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

WEDDED WOE.

Another Complicated Divorce Case—Cruel Treatment Alleged on One Side, Extravagance on the Other—A Thirteen Years' Married Life To Be Dissolved—The Case Referred.

The divorce suit in which Maria F. Nooney is plaintiff and Robert B. Nooney defendant, came off yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas, before Judge Charles P. Daly, on affidavits of the parties. The facts as detailed in the affidavits present this as one of those singular cases which of late years, owing to "the progress of the age," have become so numerous as to occupy the attention of courts and juries to a considerable extent. Both the husband and wife, as appears by the papers, are parties moving in the "first society" of this city, and lived in a style of fashion and splendor up to the time of the separation. The plaintiff is a ladylike and accomplished looking person, and the mother of thirteen children, four of whom—three boys and a girl—are still living with her. The plaintiff now applies to the Court for alimony, on the following statement of facts set forth in her complaint:—On the 21st of August, 1854, the plaintiff was married to the defendant in this city, and has lived here since with him until he deserted her a year ago this coming October. Almost immediately the defendant commenced a series of cruel and inhuman acts towards her and her children, which continued until he abandoned her, using the most obscene and shameful language in presence of his children. In January, 1860, the mother of plaintiff being but two weeks dead, and the plaintiff having a nursing baby two weeks old at her breast, her husband asked her for some papers relating to her mother's estate, and because she did not forthwith produce them he beat her,

DRAGGED HER BY THE HAIR

along the floor through the house, nearly killing her and causing a severe fit of sickness, by which she lost the proper nourishment for her baby, who died soon after. On another occasion he took two of the children out in the street at one o'clock in the morning, in their night clothes, during a severe snow storm. In 1862 he dragged his wife down stairs by the hair. In September, 1864, the house in which they lived took fire, leaving only the cellar for them to live in, and for three weeks the plaintiff and her children were compelled to live in this cellar by the defendant, who would not allow them to go to the house of his wife's relatives, where they could find comfortable shelter. The defendant then removed them to the first floor of a house in Twenty-seventh street, the other floors of which were occupied as a house of prostitution, and during the time they lived there he was absent five nights consecutively, and on his return home he threw dirty water on the plaintiff. On Christmas Eve, 1864, he stabbed her in the shoulder with a penknife, hit her in several parts of the face and tore her clothes. At another time he threw her on her back upon the stairs with such violence as to cause the premature birth of twins. One evening he burned her in the face with a lighted cigar. After continuing this and until the 27th of October, 1870, he wholly deserted her and her children, leaving them without any means of support, and on the 11th of the same month had a notice published in the newspapers forbidding any one to trust her on his account. He has never since made any provision for her support except to a very small extent. After leaving his wife thus he came to see her on two or three occasions, when he renewed his brutal treatment. The plaintiff threatening legal proceeding, he induced her to enter into a written agreement with him on the 28th of last March by which she agreed that they should live separately, she to have the custody of the four children, and that the defendant should allow her to live upon. The plaintiff says she has fulfilled her part of this agreement, but that the defendant has entirely failed to carry out his part, concealing the actual amount of his income; that when she married him he had no means, but that her mother furnished him with money to purchase the business of a meat market, from which he now derives a profit of at least $15,000 a year. The defendant replies to the charges of his wife by stating that she was guilty of gross extravagance, which caused him much embarrassment in his business, she expending fabulous sums of money for dress, ornaments, furniture, &c.; that any misconduct of his has been caused by exasperation at her extravagance, and that she accused him of adultery and all kinds of misconduct. He claims, also, to have fulfilled his agreement with her, made in March last, and that his income does not exceed $7,000 a year. Judge Daly ordered a reference to Murray Hoffman to ascertain the amount of the defendant's income and what would be a reasonable amount to allow plaintiff for alimony and counsel fee.

ONE-THIRD OF HIS INCOME

A CASE OF HYDROPHOBIA.

Michael Lyden, a blacksmith, only nineteen years of age, died yesterday at 491 avenue A, of hydrophobia. On the 24th of March last Lyden was bitten by a dog not then thought to be rabid, notwithstanding which, however, the brute was killed the same day. The wound soon healed up, and little more was thought of it by Lyden till a few days ago, when symptoms of hydrophobia were developed. Dr. Powell was called in on Monday, but the patient grew worse, and died soon afterwards. Coroner Keenan was notified to hold an inquest on the body.

SLAUGHTERED ON THE RAIL.

Between five and six o'clock last evening a child named Julius Kaiser was run over by a South Fourth street and Bushwick car at Johnson avenue and Morrell street, Williamsburg, and had both legs terribly crushed. The little sufferer was carried to its parents' residence, 213 Johnson street, where it died in a short time. George Handy, the driver of the car, was arrested and locked up in the Stagg street station house to await the result of an inquisition by Coroner Whitehill.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

The Junior Champions of the North Defeat the Junior Champions of the South.

The Mutuals, of Washington, D. C., who, by the way, claim to be the Junior champions of the South, arrived in this city yesterday morning and were escorted to the Revere House by a committee of gentlemen from the Flyaway Club. In the afternoon they were snugly packed away in a fine stage drawn by four horses, which the Flyaway gentlemen had provided for the occasion, and were driven over to the Capitoline Grounds, where they played the Junior champions of this section, the Flyaways. The game was not remarkable for any particular brilliancy on either side, and was finally won by the New Yorkers, with the following score:—

Clubs.	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th.	7th.	8th.	9th.
Flyaways	4	1	13	0	3	0	0	5	4—33
Mutuals	4	0	1	2	0	0	0	0	4—11

Umpire—Mr. Rogers, of the Star Club.

To-morrow morning the Olympics, of Washington, D. C., start off on a Northern tour, and play the Pastimes, of Baltimore, in the latter city in the afternoon of the same day. The next day (Friday) they play the Mutuals of this city, on the Union Grounds, Saturday they play the Red Stockings in Boston, and Monday they again play the Mutuals on the Union Grounds, Williamsburg. The next day (the 26th inst.) they play the Eckfords, and Wednesday and Thursday they play the Haymakers at Troy. On the 30th inst. they play the Athletics in Philadelphia.

To-morrow (Thursday) the Eckfords and Mutuals play the last and deciding game of their series on the Union Grounds.

The Union nine will be as follows:—Birdsall, catcher; G. Wright, short stop; Martin (of the Eckfords), pitcher; Bellan, third base, Austin, first base; Smith, right field, Martin, second base; Beals, left field, Shelly, centre field and Reynolds as substitute. The Union Ground, Williamsburg, will be the scene of operations.

THE STARVATION OF AN INNOCENT.

More About "the Man with the Iron Jaw"—Story of a Citizen of Carmel—Will the Murderers of the Starved Boy be Punished?

A respectable citizen of Carmel, Putnam county, coming to this city yesterday afternoon called at the HERALD office and told what he knew of the revolting tragedy which has so lately occurred in that quiet village. His story is as follows:—

On Thursday morning the O'Brien Menagerie arrived in Carmel, and the company took lodgings at the hotel in which I am residing, kept by Mr. D. Lockwood. It was soon rumored around that they had with them

A VERY SICK BOY,

who was, in fact, in a dying condition. The manager of the troupe, whose name, I think, is Whittaker, said to the son of the landlord that the boy had been ailing for some time. During the day, however, the suspicious circumstances which have been related in the HERALD occurred. Toward evening I went down stairs from my room and happened to meet one of the showmen. In conversation with him I spoke of the sick boy, and he said:—

"I've just been up to see him."

"How is he?"

The man shook his head and said,

"He is very cold and is about dying. Poor fellow! he is

NOTHING BUT SKIN AND BONES.

He is as white as a sheet and almost as thin. He looks awful."

On the same day one of the showmen went to a drug store in the village several times to purchase alcohol. The owner of the store rode down in the cars with me this morning. He says that the man who came for the alcohol told him for what it was to be used—to bathe the body of the boy, who was covered with bruises, although already a perfect skeleton. "When I think of the poor child," he said with much agitation, "tortured in that way to such

A DEMONIACAL DEATH,

I feel so sorry for him that if I dared I would divulge things that would be sure to hang his murderers." When asked why he did not disclose the whole facts he said that he feared he himself would be implicated. His unguarded exclamations were undoubtedly actuated by remorse. A friend and myself sat up on Thursday night until three o'clock, engaged in playing billiards and smoking. I knew nothing of the boy's death until just before we went to bed, when the son of the landlord returned to the hotel with a coffin. It was a rude affair. Almost as soon as the dawn came, was thrust into it and borne to the Baptist burial ground, where it was quickly and unceremoniously lowered into a shallow grave and the earth tumbled in above it. On the same day the Man of the Iron Jaw and his wife left the village for Pawlings. Now, sir, there has been and no inquest. The body lies there in its nameless grave, and although the attending doctor has said distinctly that the child died of starvation, the authorities, to my positive knowledge, have taken no action to secure the vindication of justice and common humanity.

THE POOR, DEAD, EMACIATED CORPSE

Another View of the Case.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Sept. 19, 1871.

The authorities and some of the citizens of this town have made an investigation into the reported starving of the boy connected with O'Brien's menagerie. According to the papers in the possession of the French actors it appears that they took the boy from the House of Refuge in New Orleans about the 25th of March last and gave him duties of a light nature to perform, intending to advance him as he became more useful. He had, however, a broken arm at the time they took him, and immediately after was taken with chronic diarrhœa, and was supposed to be afflicted with a certain inherited disease. Mrs. Whittaker and other attachés of the company assert that since the 1st of May the boy has received good medical treatment and such care as could be given him. They say he has always been given sufficient food, though not always such as he desired, as it was deemed best for his health not to do so. It appears from the testimony that the boy had a very unnatural appetite, and would if left alone drink all his medicine or any filthy slops within his reach. Those engaged in the investigation say that if all be true which they have heard from the company in regard to the boy's filthy habits and condition it is surprising that he lived so long without a great deal of care and nursing. The committee do not believe the boy was starved, and think that if the company's statements are true great injustice has been done them. The report is signed by the Selectmen of New Milford and others.

ARREST ON SUSPICION OF MURDER.

Close Confinement, the Object Being to Extort a Confession.

Mrs. Hyer, a very respectable appearing woman, living on the corner of Seventy-sixth street and Second avenue, called at the Coroners' office yesterday afternoon to see Coroner Young in relation to her son, William, a youth of seventeen years, who had been arrested ten days or more ago by the Nineteenth precinct police, on suspicion of having stabbed and killed David Dorian, late of 172 Delancey street, on or about the 5th inst., near a provision and fruit stand in Jones' Wood, during the Scotch celebration. Mrs. Hyer states that her son, whom she alleges is perfectly innocent of the charge, was taken into custody and incarcerated in a close cell and efforts made to extort a confession from him, since which time she has been unable to see or communicate with him, that the fact of the arrest has been kept from the authorities outside the station house, &c.

Mrs. Hyer considers it an outrage that she is not permitted to visit her son and furnish him with some of the necessaries of life during the time of his imprisonment. Her object in seeing Coroner Young, to whom she had been referred by Superintendent Kelso, was to ask permission to see the prisoner, to learn when the investigation in the case of Dorian would take place and the probable length of time that would elapse before her son might be liberated; but owing to the absence of the Coroner Mrs. Hyer could not obtain the information she so ardently desired.

Young Hyer has not a clean record, he having been arrested some months ago for a serious assault, for which he suffered the penalty; but his mother strenuously insists that he is not a murderer, and demands a speedy investigation, to the end that his innocence may be established.

SUICIDE OF AN INVALID LADY.

Coroner Schirmer was yesterday called to No. 13 avenue A to hold an inquest over the remains of Mrs. Mary Pellintz, a German lady, sixty-seven years of age, who committed suicide. Mrs. Pellintz had been an invalid, at intervals, for years past, in consequence of which her nervous system had become completely unstrung. So intense were her sufferings that she was unable to sleep nights, and on more than one occasion she had threatened to terminate her existence; but the family seemed to entertain no serious fears that she would execute the threat. Mrs. Pellintz retired to rest, as usual, on Monday evening, but, during the night arose without the knowledge of her husband, and, by means of a towel, which she secured about her neck, hung herself to a hook in the wall in the rear basement. The act was not made known till daylight, when Mr. Pellintz found deceased hanging, quite dead, and cut the body down. Deceased has left a family of adult children.

THE MUNICIPAL MUDDLE is over. Laus Deo!

THE ERIE RAILWAY now puts in its claim for the refunding of taxes, amounting to one hundred thousand dollars.

PRESIDENT GRANT had a grand reception in Cincinnati yesterday. To be received with honor near one's old home is a reward that few of the prophets enjoyed.

CHIEF JUSTICE MCKEAN, of Utah, charged the Grand Jury of that Territory yesterday, it being composed altogether of Gentiles, that bigamy was a crime in Utah as well as elsewhere, and that it was their duty to present persons guilty of it for trial. Evidently Brigham is in an unsatisfactory situation.

THE WASHINGTON TREATY COMMISSION.—Mr. Russell Gurney, of London, the British member of the Commission to decide upon the claims of British citizens for damages during our civil war, arrived in this city yesterday. The Commission, which was created by the Treaty of Washington, will hold its first meeting in Washington city on the 25th inst.

PROGRESS OF THE CHOLERA.—The cholera does not seem to relax its hold or abate its force in its march over Europe. The telegram from Berlin which we publish to-day reports that the disease increases in virulence in the famous old city of Königsberg, where the ratio of deaths has increased from fifty to seventy and even eighty per cent. For the week ending last Sunday three hundred deaths from cholera are recorded.

MR. BAEZ, THE PRESIDENT OF ST. DOMINGO, it seems, still defers to the wishes and instructions of the United States in matters of domestic policy. Recently he declined to say to the British Chargé d'Affaires at his Court whether he would be willing to patch up a peace with Hayti until he could hear from our government on the subject. Mr. Baez is entirely too modest. We have disposed of the affair between his little island and ourselves, and don't wish to direct his affairs any further.

GENERAL GRANT, in his late reconnoissance of the oil regions, was received from point to point with popular demonstrations of welcome, embracing processions, mass meetings, arches of flowers and evergreens, fireworks, serenades, &c., and was cheered with the good will of people who are in earnest. From these significant manifestations of popular respect we think it may be safely assumed that General Grant in Pennsylvania is good for another election by an undiminished majority.

LITTLE MAC has entrenched himself firmly behind his works in the Dock Department, and declines to attack the Comptrollership.

The End of the Political Turmoil—Will It Satisfy the People?

Some very curious features developed themselves in the city complications yesterday; features which cannot fail to awaken serious reflections in the minds of all intelligent people. The situation may be thus summed up—on the one side General McClellan has declined the appointment of City Comptroller tendered him by Mayor Hall, and Richard O'Gorman, Counsel to the Corporation, has addressed a communication to the Mayor, advising him to make no other appointment, but to withdraw his notice to the various departments, and to treat Connolly as Comptroller de facto if he does not regard him as Comptroller de jure. "It seems to me," says the Corporation Counsel, "that you should be governed in this matter more by considerations of expediency and sound policy than by those merely of strict legal power and right;" and he proceeds to argue that the prolonged legal controversy to which a contest for the Comptrollership would unquestionably lead, would occasion financial difficulties and complications, prolong the public excitement and sense of insecurity, and cause great damage to the city treasury and to the public creditors. On the other side, the Committee of Seventy adopted a set of resolutions endorsing the appointment of Andrew H. Green as Deputy Comptroller, calling on all good citizens to give him their moral support as guardian of the public funds of the city, and pledging the committee to aid him pecuniarily and by counsel in all lawful ways to retain his position. Armed with these resolutions a sub-committee waited upon Deputy Green and Comptroller Connolly, the latter of whom assured his visitors of his determination not to be sacrificed by his associates in the city government, bigger rogues than himself, without dragging them down with him, and pledged himself to let the citizens know all the workings of the Comptroller's office and who were interested in them. In addition to this we have a remarkable and scarcely credible statement from the plaintiff in the city injunction case, to the effect that Connolly has placed in the hands of the Committee of Seventy proofs which establish his own criminality and that of other members of the government, and has promised to make restitution of all he "owes" to the city out of his private fortune. Finally, an evening paper announces—first, that Connolly has lodged his resignation in the hands of Messrs. Havemeyer and Tilden, as a security to his new friends that he will not cheat them by removing Deputy Green or resuming the duties and powers of his office; and, secondly, that Peter B. Sweeny endorses the appointment of Mr. Green, and advises Mayor Hall to accept the situation.

Now what is to be the upshot of all this? Mayor Hall will probably act upon the advice of the Corporation Counsel, cease all attempts to remove Connolly and again recognize him as City Comptroller. The injunction against the city may be removed by Judge Barnard, on the ground that Deputy Green is practically Comptroller, and the wheels of the municipal machine will again be set in motion. The Committee of Seventy will continue to meet, to talk and to resolve; the razor-strop journalists will keep up their cry of frauds and their promises of developments in order to bring a few dollars into their empty pockets through the sale of their papers, and by the time the fall election comes on a new city ring will be formed to contest the possession of the municipal spoils with the old Tammany Ring. We unhesitatingly denounce this whole business as a shameful fraud upon the people of New York, who have demanded an investigation into the alleged plunder of the city treasury and the punishment of the public robbers. Every good citizen approved of the legal steps taken before Judge Barnard to prevent the further depletion of the city treasury, and when the judgment was rendered and the Court fixed upon Comptroller Connolly a criminal responsibility for frauds "of the character of highway robbery" the sentiment of the people of New York, outside political jobbers, place-holders and place-hunters, was unanimous in favor of his instant removal from office. The Chief Magistrate of the city, whose duty it was to act in the matter, took such steps as were then within his reach to get rid of the unfaithful officer and to fill his place with a man whose character and competency were unquestionable and unquestioned. Every friend of reform should have joined in the effort to drive Connolly from the Finance Department; but, instead of this, through the intrigues of those who desired to turn the disgrace of the city to their own political profit and advancement, a compromise and alliance was made with the tainted official, and a plot was concocted by which the efforts of the Mayor could be defeated and Connolly retained in office. The pretended object was the exposure of other city officials, who were said to be implicated with Connolly, and against whom he was to turn "State's evidence." The real object was to break the Tammany Ring, through the aid of Connolly, and to form another "Ring" in its place. No person could believe or affirm that General McClellan would not have made a thorough and effective investigation into the affairs of the Comptroller's office, or that he would have screened any guilty party, no matter whom he might be. But he would not have answered the purpose of the politicians who are endeavoring to ride into power on the excitement of the hour; he would not have lent himself to keep up that excitement to subserve political ends. So Connolly was taken in hand by Samuel J. Tilden, a democratic politician whose merits have not been recognized by the Tammany Ring; by ex-Mayor Havemeyer, a respectable citizen, but nevertheless a politician of the anti-Tammany stripe; by Rufus Andrews, a notorious political wire-puller, and the result was the appointment of Andrew H. Green as Deputy Comptroller and the retention of Connolly in office. As we have before said, Mr. Green is, no doubt, an honest and competent man, but we warn our citizens that the whole reform movement, under the bargains and schemes of the politicians, is likely to be defeated; that the threatened developments will probably be used as a political weapon until after election, and will then be heard of no more.

The HERALD has for years denounced the corruptions of politicians of all shades in the city government, and has demanded investigation, retribution and reform. At the same time we have warned the people that the needy English Bohemians and political adventurers who have recently been so clamorous in their outcry against municipal frauds were only using the popular excitement for their own unworthy ends. The result has justified our prediction. There was a direct, legal and peaceable way out of all our difficulties, with a certainty of bringing dishonest officials to punishment. That way was to strengthen the hands of the Chief Magistrate in his efforts to rid the departments of dishonest men and to place officers of established integrity in their places. There should never have been any compromise with self-acknowledged rogues. It is a disgrace to the city to suffer the name of Richard B. Connolly to be attached to its securities or to endure his presence in a city department. It is deplorable to find the advice given to the Chief Magistrate of a great city like New York to "be governed by considerations of expediency" rather than by considerations of "legal power and right." We believe that the people will disapprove of any such compromising policy. If Mayor Hall thinks proper to accept the situation it will no doubt be to save the city from embarrassment, and to prove that he is fearless of any investigation to be made by the chosen representatives of the Committee of Seventy. He may probably be right, although we believe that it would have been more worthy the character and dignity of a great city like New York to have insisted first and foremost upon the unqualified withdrawal of the present Comptroller from office. The termination now reached appears to us not only to establish a precedent which may bring forth evil fruit in the future, but in the present to threaten the defeat of the popular will and the virtual triumph of dishonest public officers.

MR. O'GORMAN in his letter to the Mayor attempts to throw oil on the troubled waters; but they refuse to be still. The best way to calm them is to throw "Oily Dick" overboard.

Germany and Russia—The Shadow of War Again.

In the HERALD of this morning will be found an announcement to the effect that the German army is to be restored to a peace footing immediately and its effective strength reduced to four hundred thousand men. This, it must be admitted, is encouraging news to those who believe in peace. At the same time we cannot overlook some facts of importance which point the other way. The Russian press growls savagely at Prussia, and charges her with bad faith and ingratitude. Russia evidently feels that she has been sold, as Austria and France were sold, by Bismarck. Austria has sent a circular to her representatives at foreign courts, informing them of the results of the Gastein Conference, and instructing them to assure the governments to which they are severally accredited that the negotiations concluded between Austria and Germany are in the interests of peace. We wait now to hear what Bismarck says. In a few days more we shall know exactly what was done at Gastein and at Salzburg. Not till then and not till Bismarck has said his say in the matter will it be safe to pronounce a verdict. In the meantime it does look as if Russia had been fooled and sold. An alliance offensive and defensive, it is almost safe to say, has been concluded between Austria and Germany. Whatever else may flow from the alliance this must flow from it—Russia will have to fight and win, or she will be effectually cut off from the object of her long-cherished ambition. Constantinople will no longer float before her vision as a possible prize. German unity is a great fact; but German unity is not yet completed. Austrian Germany, sooner or later, will be annexed to the empire; and the Hapsburgs may find compensation on the Lower Danube. There are certain provinces on the Baltic which in faith are Lutheran and which in speech are German. These provinces, which now groan under the yoke of Russia, must also become part of the German empire. Germany has bought over Austria to her side. Is Russia prepared to see Bismarck cut and carve Europe at will? Russia, we know, has been courting France; but France cannot be to her of much service. A few hours more and we shall know whether it is to be peace or another devastating war. So far as we can see Bismarck is playing another of his bold games, and the chances seem to be in his favor.

The City Improvements—How Will They Be Affected by the Present Trouble?

Taking it for granted that the rule of the Tammany Ring is expiring and that there will be a change in the city government, it becomes a matter of the deepest interest to consider how this may affect the great improvements projected and partly carried out by the Tammany leaders. The property holders, business men and citizens generally must be concerned about this. None will be satisfied if these improvements should be abandoned, or even long suspended. To make this great metropolis beautiful, healthful and attractive, even by the expenditure of a large sum of money, should be the aim of whoever may succeed our present rulers. That will add to its prosperity and wealth, and will repay over and over again, in the end, the amount expended. Let no mistaken policy of economy, then, interfere with these improvements. With all the frauds and stupendous extravagance of the Tammany leaders who have held the city government these men must be accorded the credit of grand designs to beautify New York. Admitting that their object was selfish, that they expended more money than needed, and that they made use of the works they undertook to enrich themselves, that does not change the character of these works or make them the less necessary. These improvements can be carried out under an honest city government, without squandering the public money and with a strict accountability for every dollar expended. We hope the reformers, if we are ever to have the good fortune to see reformers in power, will not lose sight of these facts, but will carry out the magnificent works already projected.

THE BEST WAY to get at the whole secret of the Ring is to prosecute the fellows who squeezed the municipal "teat" so rudely in their heavy bills for furnishing the County Court House. They are pretty likely to squeal if they themselves are "squeezed."

After the Contractors.

Corporation Counsel O'Gorman has made a movement in the right direction. In a letter to Mayor Hall which we publish to-day he suggests that in view of the recent decision of Judge Barnard, which gives a judicial sanction to the prevalent rumors of gross extravagance in the bills of various contractors against the city, legal steps should be taken by the Corporation to recover the money paid on such bills if sufficient evidence of fraud can be obtained to sustain action. The Mayor, in his reply, reminds Mr. O'Gorman that, as the head of the Law Department, he has the full discretion to bring any action at law which he may deem desirable in the interest of the city, and declares he has entire confidence in the Corporation Counsel's judgment in the matter. It therefore remains for Mr. O'Gorman to act promptly upon his own suggestion, and to institute suits at once to compel Andrew Garvey, Ingersoll, the New York Printing Company and others to disgorge some portion of the enormous sums they have managed to draw out of the city treasury. This admirable step will answer a double purpose; it will recover back some of the money out of which the city has been plundered, and it will, in all probability, extort from the contractors valuable and interesting information as to the alleged "divisions" made by them with city officials. It may afford the people an opportunity of ascertaining how much truth there is in the current rumor that no bill against the city could go through the Comptroller's office until it had been purchased or "pinched" by parties inside the department.

But we would suggest to Mr. O'Gorman that he should go a step further, and institute legal proceedings against Comptroller Connolly for the recovery of the plunder which he is supposed to have secured out of the department over which he presides, and which, in fact, according to Mr. Foley's statement, he acknowledges to have pocketed. The Corporation Counsel, in the wide discretion given to him, has full power to commence such a suit, and he has the quasi judicial opinion of Judge Barnard to warrant the action. By all means let Mr. O'Gorman sue the New York Printing Company, Garvey, Ingersoll & Co., without delay; but do not suffer Connolly to escape. The people will look anxiously for the commencement of the promised suits.

READ FOLEY, THE TERRIBLE, on Richard, the Slippery, in another column.

Political Reform—What Is to Be Hoped from It?

The question of political reform, as a communication in another column suggests, is a hobby that has been ridden by political "outs" for two centuries in every country where there was liberty and enlightenment enough to permit politicians to do plastering and furnishing jobs, without risking their heads. It is only in despotic countries, like Russia, Germany, or France under the old Napoleon, that politicians cannot enrich themselves at the expense of the people. The plastering job, if performed in St. Petersburg, would doubtless have subjected the contractor to the knout, and the carpet furnishing arrangement, if it had fallen under the jurisdiction of the old Napoleon, would have been punished by the summary execution of Ingersoll along with the delinquent quartermasters of the army. Frederick the Great of Prussia would have tied Connolly and Keyser together and swung them off the lofty battlements of Königsberg if they had carried on their plumbing game in his time and country; but here, under a cry for reform, the guilty are to be simply replaced by those who will have fully as good a chance to steal and are blessed with a much hungrier edge of appetite. Those who have done the stealing, and all others so unfortunate as to be suspected, are to be politically decapitated by a law-observing and perfectly respectable mob, goaded to cool and calculating indignation by the cry of political reform; and immediately another crew are put in office, who, under the very lead of the so-called reformers, go to work stealing as hard as ever their predecessors did. While we are to have a change let us see that the change is an improvement. Let us have true, honest men, of undoubted integrity, returned to our Legislature this fall and appointed to fill the places of those to be decapitated; and when we have done that let us trust to a merciful Providence that they will not fall before the temptations of the Treasury and be worse than the old gorged birds of the Ring.

ACCORDING TO ST. FOLEY, sinner Connolly made a new departure yesterday. St. Foley declares that the penitent Comptroller confessed his seventy deadly sins to the seventy venerable absolvers and inquisitors of the citizens' reform junta, and expressed his willingness to go to Sing Sing if the other municipal Ringers would bear him company. Misery loves company, although we can't say that Connolly loves the "Ringers."

GREELEY VS. MURPHY.—Mr. Greeley has at last relieved his laboring mind in reference to Collector Murphy, and the budget of specifications brought forward against him as a Tammany confederate, a supporter of Andy Johnson and an opposer of negro suffrage, is awful to contemplate. But how stands Mr. Greeley himself on his war record, beginning with his justification of secession and coming down to his present efforts to get up a one-horse Presidential ticket of republican bolters against General Grant? This question may be answered by the simple remark that the main point with a party man is not so much what he has been as what he is. We presume, however, that the Republican State Convention of the 27th inst., at Saratoga Springs, will settle the question between Murphy and Greeley; but we think it probable that the decision will involve a "new departure" by Mr. Greeley.

IT IS WELL KNOWN that Mr. Green, the Deputy Comptroller, recently gave a batch of documents from his office to the Committee of Seventy. It is now intimated by Mr. Green's friends that those documents strongly implicate high officials of the city government. Why, then, are they not published? Why did not Mr. Green give them directly to the public through the newspapers, instead of consigning them to the Committee of Seventy, which, while comprising in the main many honest men, is not so zealous in the performance of its duties as it should be, and is, moreover, already giving evidence of being moved by a clique of shrewd and unprincipled politicians at its back? Let us have all these implicating documents published at once, just as they are, without erasure or addition, no matter whom they implicate.

The Remedy that Popular Clamor Proposes.

Popular clamor, represented by one or two partisan newspapers, now demands the unseating of every official at the head of the important departments of the city government. Popular clamor in this case, as usual, is deaf to the voice of reason. It is the same kind of popular clamor that a lynching party or a vigilance committee represents. It hangs two or three men for horse stealing and finds the next day that at least one of them was innocent. It makes no distinction between the innocent and guilty, and is too hasty to resort to a deliberate trial of the accused until after they are hanged. Now, while we hold that some of the accused officials are guilty—guilty in the first degree—we contend that others may be and most probably are innocent. It is blind injustice, therefore, to decapitate the whole body on the evidence that convicts only one.

And as the offices are to be filled we would fain know before they are rendered vacant who is to fill them. The voice of the people only a few months ago called these very men to the places which the voice of the people, as the partisan newspapers aforesaid now contend, is calling upon them to resign. Who will be put in their places and how will the new incumbents be chosen? Will the voice of the people be heard through the polls on the subject, or through a mysterious and secret working committee of seventy, or through the one-man utterances of Mr. Havemeyer? Let these matters be settled before we hastily proceed to judgment.

A NEW AND MOST SEASONABLE PROPOSITION comes from the Corporation Counsel. It is to prosecute the men who have charged such large sums for plastering, plumbing and furnishing. This idea will be readily accepted by the people, and we call upon the prosecuting authorities of the city to commence the suits at once.

General Butler's Up-Hill Fight—Another Orthodox Manifesto Against Him.

General Butler, we fear, has too many irons in the fire to come up to time for Governor in Massachusetts; but he has evidently alarmed the tight-laced orthodox radicals of the old Bay State with his unlooked-for successes in the election of Butler delegates to the coming regular Republican State Convention. So the old-school managers have found it necessary to bring Senators Sumner and Wilson to the rescue against the audacious hero of Fort Fisher. And so the Boston Journal and Daily Advertizer says:—"We have seen Senators Sumner and Wilson, and are authorized by them to say that they deeply regret and deplore the extraordinary canvass which General Butler has precipitated on the Commonwealth, and especially the attacks which he has volunteered against the existing State government and the republican party of Massachusetts; and that, in their opinion, his nomination as Governor would be hostile to the best interests of the Commonwealth and of the republican party."

There you have it; and if that don't settle this enfant perdu, this bad boy Butler, we should like to know what will settle him. We suspect, however, that he will not be frightened off even by this manifesto from Senators Sumner and Wilson. General Butler has two strings to his bow. His first is the Republican Convention; his second is the party of women's rights women, labor reformers, anti-ring and temperance men. The Republican Convention, they say, will be composed of nearly a thousand delegates. It will not assemble yet for a week or two, and in the mean time, of some two hundred and fifty scattering delegates elected Butler is reported as having at least a hundred, and he is working like a beaver for more, and he appears to turn up at every little town meeting where delegates are to be elected, just in time to take a hand in the work. The only issue in the State just now is Butler or anti-Butler for the regular Republican Convention. The coalition against Butler will, we conjecture, be too strong for him; but if they neglect him then he will say to the Convention, "Good morning, gentlemen," and proceed to his "new departure."

Wendell Phillips has arranged the programme. General Butler as an independent candidate will be proclaimed as standing upon the progressive ideas of "Down with the Boston ring, up with labor reform! Down with the moneyed monopolies and aristocrats, and up with the laboring masses! Down with the despotism of heartless men over defenceless women, and up with the banner of women's rights! Down with the old fossilized republican party, and up with the new liberty and equal rights' party of General Butler!" This is what we expect will be the upshot of this Butler campaign in Massachusetts. And while he will have a discouraging battle before him against John Quincy Adams as the democratic candidate on the one side and the regular republican nominee on the other, we shall not be surprised if in November we have the beginning of a great political revolution in Massachusetts, though in the beginning Butler may be defeated, and Phillips, as usual, may "come out of the little end of the horn."

THE CORPORATION COUNSEL advises the Mayor to accept the situation. In other words, the Mayor is to be controlled by the Comptroller.

A Connolly-Reform Compromise.

The retention of Connolly in the Comptroller's office, even with Andrew H. Green as his deputy, means a compromise. The demand for a reform will not permit of his retention of the most important financial office of the city government while an investigation of its affairs is going on. However honest and zealous Mr. Green may be, people cannot get rid of the idea that the presence of his superior in the office will serve greatly to hinder any thorough examination of the documents necessary to the conviction of that superior. While Connolly's fame, and probably his fortune, may be hinging upon it, is it probable that he will hesitate to conceal or make away with damaging evidence? Does the burglary at the Comptroller's office give him such a high reputation for integrity that his hand and tongue are still to be free among papers that may be calculated to damage him as much as the vouchers that were stolen? Is Mr. Andrew H. Green so firm and Spartan-like in character that the little amenities that his superior may show him, the contrite demeanor "Slippery Dick" may affect, the continuous humble suggestions of compromise that are likely to be made to him, are not likely to wear away the rugged sternness of his nature and incline him to be just a little kindly to so insinuating a penitent? If we are to have this reform in the city government let us have it without compromise. Let the accused and convicted Comptroller leave his place and give way to any capable man who is untainted. Let that man be Andrew H. Green if necessary. Let the Mayor appoint him, but let him be untrammelled by the presence of Connolly himself.

The Approaching Season of Opera at the Academy.

The season has now settled down in right earnest, and all the jaybirds of fashion are back in their nests once more, leaving mountain and seaside to their natural solitude and quiet, and pluming themselves for the winter and all its attractions. Of these attractions, numerous though they be, there is but one to which the attention of the fashionable world is directed—the promised season of opera at the Academy of Music. That the introduction to this season will be brilliant no one who knows the sterling qualities of Madame Parepa-Rosa as an artist, and the strong company with which she surrounds herself, can deny. The return of Mlle. Vanzini (Mrs. Jenny Van Zandt) is in itself an interesting event, and the introduction of new faces like those of Clara Doria, Karl and Cooke, and old favorites, Castle, Campbell and the Seguins, will engage the attention of all our opera habitués and raise expectations of the Nilsson season, which immediately follows, to fever heat.

The Swedish nightingale has wisely availed herself of her summer holidays to rest from her arduous labors of the last season and to gain the health and strength necessary for her first season of opera in America. Her success in concert has been of such an emphatic character that the highest anticipations are formed of her appearance in opera. Not only has she won the suffrages of a critical public by her delightful voice and artistic rendering of every work in her extensive répertoire, but she has gained a host of friends and admirers by her unaffected, ladylike demeanor in society, and the artless grace that characterizes her every word and action. Success like that which she has merited and won falls to the lot of very few artists. Therefore the world of fashion and art looks forward eagerly to the début of Mlle. Nilsson in opera, and there is little to fear that she will do everything on her part to make the season a grand success.

For the first time in many years the obstacles in the path of Italian opera in this city have been removed, and both the directors of the Academy and the entire musical public are prepared to give it a fair trial. On the management and the company engaged to support Mlle. Nilsson depends a great deal. The company has some strong features in an artistic point of view and also some that admit of discussion. The contralto, Miss Cary, is a thorough artist in every sense of the word, and the tenor, Capoul, comes from Europe with such flattering testimonials that we may safely concede a success to him in advance. The baritone and bass, Barré and Jamait, are entirely unknown to the American public, and they must depend solely on their artistic attainments to prove their right to occupy such important positions in an Italian opera company. The prima donna engaged to assist Mlle. Nilsson in such rôles as Philine, in "Mignon," and the Queen, in "Hamlet," is a Mlle. Leon Duval, who possesses one of the very lightest of French soprano voices. It would be well for the management, if it becomes necessary, to effect some arrangement with a prima donna of recognized ability to sing in such important rôles as those we have mentioned. We have the material here, and there is no need of drawing further upon Europe. Brignoli, of the silver voice, has been retained for the season, and with him the public are very well and favorably acquainted.

The most encouraging promises are made concerning that bête noire of American impresarii, the chorus and orchestra, which has been hitherto a disgrace to art. The manager announces that a strong detachment in both departments has been secured from Covent Garden and Her Majesty's. If so, and despite the elasticity of managerial statements, we will give this announcement credence, the prospects of a brilliant season are highly encouraging. We may remark here that the chorus and orchestra of the Parepa-Rosa troupe have also been largely reinforced by London artists.

It is not too late before the opening of either season of opera at the Academy to offer a few words of advice to the management. By dealing fairly and liberally with the public and striving honestly to present an ensemble perfect in every detail, the management will receive such patronage as will astonish even the oldest habitués of the opera house, and opera will have a chance at last of becoming a permanent institution in the metropolis. Parsimony in any department, company, chorus, orchestra, costumes, mise en scène, &c., will tend to weaken the faith of the public in opera management. Then the resident vocal and instrumental talent can always be made available for opera, and perfection of ensemble is attainable where competency, energy and skill are at the head of a troupe. Madame Parepa-Rosa opens at the Academy of Music on October 2, for a season of nine subscription nights, six extra nights and three matinées. The new works in her répertoire are "Anna Bolena," "Gazza Ladra," "Lurline," "Lucrezia Borgia," "Satanella," "Columella" and "The Water Carrier." A few performances will be, probably, given in Italian and German with the tenor Wachtel, who is now [illegible] the Stadt Theatre.

Mlle. [illegible] commences a season of twenty nights at [illegible] on October 23. The first opera [illegible] appears will be "Faust." The [illegible] is the cast:—Marguerite, Nilsson; Siebel, Cary; Faust, Capoul; Mephistopheles, Jamait; Valentin, Barré. "Mignon," will be produced about the fourth night of the season, and "Hamlet" has been left over for the spring season. With two such formidable opera troupes and Dolby's singers from London, the Vienna Lady Orchestra and Mrs. Moulton in concert, no one can complain of not having an abundance of musical attractions.

The American Jockey Club Races—October Meeting at Jerome Park.

The American Jockey Club presents for its fall meeting a brilliant programme. Six races are to take place each day, and the meeting will present every variety of horse race "on the flat," from three-quarters of a mile to four miles, as well as steeple chases and hurdle races.

On the first day (October 7) a truly grand entertainment will be given. The first race will be a handicap sweepstakes for all ages, a mile and a quarter, for which twenty-one have been nominated—a good lot, securing plenty of starters. The second race will be the Champion Stakes, for three-year-olds, $100 each, half forfeit, with $1,500 added, &c., two miles, for which there are seventy-seven nominations, including about all the good colts and fillies in the country. A very large field will probably start for this important event. To say nothing of the probability that of so many there must be some good ones yet "in the dark," those already prominent from fine performances are sufficiently numerous to guarantee an interesting contest. Harry Bassett will doubtless be a great favorite, in view of his numerous successes; but he will probably have to contend with Nellie Gray, Monarchist, By the Sea, Elsie, John Merryman, Eolus, Mary Clark, McKinney, Auriola, Hilderic, Alroy, Nellie Ransom, Frank Ross, the Censor-Julia colt and others; and those familiar with the racing of the year will recognize among those named a number of dangerous customers. The third race of the day will be the Nursery Stakes, for two-year-olds, $50 entrance, play or pay, with $1,000 added, &c.; one mile—thirty-four nominations. A glance at the list of nominations will discover more than a dozen probable and hopeful starters—St. Patrick, King Ernest (imported), Blenkiron (imported), Eclipse-Maud colt, Citizen, War Jig, Vandal-Margravine colt (brother to James A. Connolly), Jo Daniels, Woodbine, Victoria, Wade Hampton, Experience Oaks, besides several from the stables of Mr. J. S. Watson, Mr. R. W. Cameron and others. Among such a lot it will be exceedingly difficult to designate a winner, and we predict that this will be one of the greatest betting races of the meeting. The fourth race of the day will be three-quarters of a mile, for all ages. The fifth, a sweepstakes for four-year-olds, $500 entrance, $100 forfeit, four miles—a private sweepstakes—to which the following spirited turfmen are the subscribers, viz.:—Messrs. J. J. O'Fallon, Francis Morris, D. D. Withers, Denison & Crawford, T. W. Doswell, L. W. Jerome & Co., A. Belmont, F. M. Hall, John F. Purdy, Hunter & Travers and M. H. Sanford. Races of four miles are always interesting and generally doubtful, as something more than speed is required to win them; and the money and ambition invested in this one will be likely to secure a good race. The sixth and last race of the day will be a grand handicap steeple chase, about two and a half miles, over fences, hedges, ditches, walls, water, hurdles, &c., for a purse of $800, the entrance to which is free, and there are many good horses in preparation for it. The daring leaps in steeplechases render them intensely exciting, and it has become a necessity to the successful management of race courses to include them in programmes.

Such is the bill of entertainment for the first day, giving promise of an extraordinary amount of sport. The races for the other days of the meeting will be equally numerous and varied. Indeed, the meeting cannot fail to be one of surpassing interest, and, as the club authorities have wisely divided time between sport and business by appointing Saturday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday for racing, and leaving the intervening days for attention to business, the stands should on each day be filled to overflowing.

THE LATEST HOBOKEN TRAGEDY.

The woman Bridget Connors, who, as stated in Monday's Herald, took Paris green in her husband's presence, at No. 109 Willow street, on Saturday night, expired yesterday morning. It was her determination from the outset to end her life, inasmuch as she experienced nothing but inhuman treatment at her husband's hands. The latter, who was brought before Recorder Bohnstedt for being drunk and attempting to kill, was committed to the county jail for sixty days. Had Mrs. Connors received due attendance from some neighbors she might perhaps have lived, but it was more in accordance with her wishes to be relieved from the misery into which she had been plunged.

THE DUKE D'AUMALE.

What He Is Reported to Have Replied to the Offer of the Presidency of the Republic.

The Duke d'Aumale is reported by the Journal Semaphore to have made the following remarks to a deputy of the National Assembly:—

> We are, you and I, quite powerless. Suppose I accept the Presidency of the republic on the terms offered by your friends, what will follow? Do you think I shall be able to keep the trust which you would confer on me? Is it to maintain and consolidate the republic that you would choose me? You know very well that my ideas, traditions, friends and family will not permit me to fulfil such a programme. But even if I should take advantage of my position to establish a monarchy, what kind of a monarchy, I ask of you, am I to establish? For whose benefit shall I make a coup d'état? For my benefit? I did not think of such a thing, for I should be looked upon as an ambitious adventurer, and people would be right, for I am no more entitled to it than you are. I could only work for my nephew, the Count de Paris; but my nephew would, perhaps, recognize the Count de Chambord as Henri V. Thus I would only establish Henry V. with his white flag, abjuring my past, the past of my family and the conquests of 1830. M. Thiers has made many faults, I grant it, but after all it is around him that we must rally, because by the prolongation of his powers you will gain time.

It has appeared north of Archangel and in the south of the district of Romny, chiefly at Kiew and Nicolaiew. In several parts of the empire the cholera is decreasing. In the District of Kostroma it is more virulent than ever. It has almost entirely disappeared in the town of Nijni, but in the northwest, particularly in the province of Vitesbk, it is progressing at an alarming rate.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

Great Fire in Virginia City—Loss One Million Dollars—The Los Angeles Vintage.

San Francisco, Sept. 19, 1871.

A special despatch says the greatest fire ever known in Virginia City, Nevada, broke out there to-day. It commenced on D street, near Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office. Everything in that quarter is burned except Root's building and the Bank of California. All the brokers' offices on both sides of C street, from Daley and Goodman to the Tahoe House, are burned. Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office was partially burned. The fire is now extinguished. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000. It is impossible to obtain full particulars to-night.

A fire destroyed the hoisting works and the timber of the shaft down to the third level of the Julian gold quartz mine, at Greenville, Plumas county (Cal.), yesterday. The loss is $50,000.

The vintage of Los Angeles will exceed the annual average, and the quality throughout the State is superior.

MORMONISM DOOMED.

Salt Lake City, Sept. 19, 1871.

The Grand Jury for the Third district were empanelled this morning. All polygamists were excused, and the Mormon journals are very bitter on the United States law officers in consequence. Chief Justice McKean, in his charge to the jury, said:—

> You are summoned, not to try criminal cases, but to say what criminal cases shall be presented for trial. In the discharge of this duty you will be governed by the same principles of law which govern Grand Juries in Maine and Montana, in Georgia and Arizona; principles of law everywhere applicable throughout the republic. The crimes of murder, arson, larceny, bigamy, adultery and riot in Utah are the same crimes elsewhere throughout Christendom. If there is anything peculiar in the situation in Utah, it is the peculiar conduct of some men here, and not any peculiar principles or policy that are to be enforced here. Utah belongs to the United States, and the people of Utah, like the people of the rest of the country, are amenable to the laws of the United States. Those who obey the laws must be, shall be protected in their rights. Those who do not must answer at the bar of justice, and those men of influence who in practice defiantly trample upon the laws themselves, and by precept teach others to do so, should be the first to feel the firm grip of the law rather than the obscure men whom they have misled. Gentlemen, it is your duty and mine to enforce the laws. Let us do so without fear, favor, affection, prejudice or the hope of reward.

FIRE IN JERSEY CITY.

A Planing Mill Consumed—Loss $30,000.

At half-past eleven o'clock last night a fire broke out in the planing mill of Darby, Snow & Prentice, Morgan street, Jersey City. The flames gained such headway that the firemen were unable to save the building when they arrived. The most that could be done was to prevent the spread of the fire to the piles of lumber lying around in every direction, and in this effort the firemen succeeded. The loss on the building and its contents, including machinery, does not fall short of $30,000; fully insured.

AMUSEMENTS.

Steinway Hall—Vienna Lady Orchestra.—The first season in this city of this novel and interesting musical organization is now drawing to a close. Only three nights remain, as on Thursday the young ladies pay a visit to Brooklyn. They have been received with undoubted favor by the metropolitan public and showed a marked improvement in each performance. Their programme last night comprised some of the best selections of Strauss and a very pretty arrangement of Schubert's "Wanderer." The appearance of ladies in an orchestra, which has hitherto been the exclusive province of the sterner sex, is a subject calculated to excite discussion and attract the attention of all musicians. The result has proved favorable, as the ladies have exhibited a rare delicacy and grace in their management of the various instruments that compensated to a great extent for their want of power. In a smaller hall than Steinway's the effect would be more decided, and the absence of brass instruments would not be so much felt. The experiment has, however, solved the problem which might perplex the advocates of woman's rights—whether the gentler sex can take the place of those horribly stupid-looking people from avenue C, who generally make up the rank and file of an orchestra. The young prima donna, Mlle. Elzer, has already become a real favorite. Her fine, sympathetic, highly cultivated voice, and broad, dramatic school of singing, appeals alike to the critic and the public. If her histrionic abilities in course of time prove equal to her vocal she must be a valuable addition to the opera, as we have but few prime donne of that school on the stage at present. A finer baritone than Herr Müller has not been heard on our boards in many years, and it is only a pity that he cannot have an opportunity of displaying his talents on the operatic stage this season. The debut, or rather rentree after ten years, of the celebrated Madame Fabbri, whose performances with Stigelli and Formes will be remembered, has been postponed for the present. It is likely that some arrangement may be effected between Mr. Kullman and one of our operatic managers to enable this great artiste to appear in opera. She would be certainly a feature in German opera with Herr Wachtel, as the present prima donna, Mme. Rotter, has no longer the voice to fill important roles. Mme. Fabbri and Mlle. Pauline Canissa, who has just returned from Europe, would strengthen the German opera company to an incalculable extent. A strong evidence of the popularity of this troupe is the fact that they have given concerts here every night for nearly two weeks to large audiences (averaging such), and the difficulties of producing such a result are known to every metropolitan manager and to the public. Even Bateman, with his concert troupe at the opening of Steinway Hall, did not meet with such encouragement.

Niblo's—Carl, the Fiddler.—To what further dramatic inanity an admiration for broken English will lead it is difficult to predict. That Mr. Charles Gayler, the champion of the fragmentary drama, is the man most likely to solve the problem, we are fain to admit. This unfortunate being has led himself into the delusion that he can construct a drama from the threadbare incidents which have amused the play-going public for three generations, provided his hero talks the language of Chatham street. To analyze such a play would be as likely to result in a success as the same process applied to the veal pies in "Pickwick" in the hope of finding whose kittens had been sacrificed. It is the old story of a stolen child recovered through the means of a song of happy childhood, which we thought we had heard the last of in "One Touch of Nature," not to speak of the legend known as "The Wept of the Wishton Wish." Around this is grouped a number of mechanical figures which fill up what remains of three mortal acts. The stilted dialogue of an order of romantic drama long since relegated to the Bowery and the transpontine theatres of London, has been ransacked to find dialogue for these automatons. The bold, bad, cruel parent, the pure, gentle girl who is asked to wed a libertine, the poor but proud youth who loves the wealthy scoundrel's supposed child, and who becomes the rightful heir in spite of the villain's toils, the wronged woman who has suffered in silence for twenty-five long years, to speak her mind in the last scene—all are dragged from their Oriental graves. Then, of course, comes the triumphant broken Englishman, who smooths all difficulties at the proper pitch of voice. The first act is devoted to the stealing of the child. The second act discovers her ten years after educated to the point of simplicity. She supposes herself Dora Bates, the daughter of Harper Bates, who promises her hand to a mercenary idiot (Hudson Wayne), under the threat of States Prison, made by the idiot's uncle (Dickson Scrawl), a lawyer. But she is loved by Payton Boyd, and in the most frigid manner declares that she returns the youth's passion. It is difficult to say whether this scene takes place by night or day, for the young lady is described as walking in the garden in full view of the young man. A wandering musician, who, by the way, is not a fiddler but a guitar player, is heard singing without by the guests who are assembled at a ball in honor of Dora's birthday. He is sought, and states as well as he can be understood that he is looking for his sister Hilda. He recognizes a dimple on Dora's chin and takes an early opportunity of singing the song of the girl's childhood, which, by a dramatic freak, is wholly obliterated from her memory. What follows need not be told. The villian, beset on all sides, rushes off in the third act, followed by the objectionable lawyer and his idiotic nephew. The concluding happiness comes as a matter of course. Of the acting it may be said that Mr. Emmet is worthy of a better fate; he supplies the only element of dramatic intensity in the piece, and that only in the recognition scene. The same regret may be spoken for Mr. A. H. Davenport, who is crammed into the part of the nephew, a vulgarized dilution of Lord Dundreary, who culminates his offensiveness by appearing tipsy in the last scene. Mr. Hastings as Harper Bates is, if possible, more angular than the part. The heroine is Miss Minnie Maddern in the first act and Miss Frankie McLellan in the other two. The latter lady has much to learn before her simplicity is more than mawkish. The injured Polly Searles, who is disgustingly forced into an admission of her moral shortcomings, is played by Miss Ida Vernon with as much finish as the disgraceful theme of her part will admit. There are some "ladies" and "gentlemen" introduced, who are fair specimens of scene shifters in seedy garments. Since the play has appeared we can only rest our hope in its early demise. An overture composed by G. Operti was played before the piece.

Herr Wachtel makes his second appearance at the Stadt Theatre to-night in "The Postillion of Lonjumeau," and his third appearance on Friday in "Trovatore."

THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION AT BUFFALO.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1871.

The formal opening of the second International Industrial Exhibition, under the auspices of the Buffalo Mechanics' Institute, took place this evening in the presence of an immense crowd of spectators.

At half-past seven o'clock Governor John T. Hoffman, escorted by the brigade and staff officers of the Sixty-fifth and Seventy-fourth regiments New York State National Guard, in full uniform, and the officers of the Industrial Exhibition entered the music stand in the Rink amid the deafening applause of the spectators. After prayer by the Rev. Dr. Heacock and the opening address by Myron E. Brown, the president of the Mechanics' Institute, Governor Hoffman was introduced and delivered an eloquent oration, which was listened to with marked attention. The Governor was frequently and loudly applauded.

After the opening exercises the Governor, attended by his escort, surveyed the different departments of the exhibition, and was warmly greeted at every turn.

The exhibition is a grand success. Every branch of industry is largely represented. The machinery department is in full operation and claims the attention of every class of society. New entries are continually being made and additional buildings will have to be erected for their accommodation.

Governor Hoffman was the recipient of two serenades to-night at the residence of Mr. Joseph Warren, editor of the Buffalo Courier—the first by the officers of the Mechanics' Institute and the second by the officers of the National Guard. On both occasions appropriate addresses and responses were made.

Judge Frazer has written a note, saying that he will be present on Monday, and Recorder Gurney is expected to reach New York from London to-morrow. Hayti Wants Peace with Dominica—British Intrigue Foiled.

It is stated that Mr. Stephen Preston, Minister of Hayti, who lately returned from a short visit to his country, has been instructed by his government to ask the Cabinet of Washington to use its friendly offices in order to bring to a satisfactory conclusion the difficulties existing between the republics of Dominica and Hayti. The intervention of the United States is to effect the permanent establishment of peace, the settlement of the boundary line separating the two countries, the final adjustment of the claims pending between them, and the prevention of further revolutions by unscrupulous military leaders under the guarantees of the United States and of the principal European Powers. The following extracts of a letter from a high authority in Port au Prince gives an exact account of the situation on this subject:—

Port au Prince, Sept. 9, 1871.

> Mr. Spencer St. John, the British Chargé d'Affaires, arrived here on the 30th of July last, after a protracted absence of several months in Europe. On the 12th ult. he embarked for St. Domingo on board an English gunboat. The object of that visit was to present his credentials in the capacity of Chargé d'Affaires near the republic of Dominica. On his arrival he was informed that President Baez had left for Azua. Not deeming it proper to wait for his return Mr. St. John presented his letters to the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who accredited him at once. After having discussed some matters relating to several British claims, which were readily admitted, Mr. St. John asked in an unofficial manner if it was true that President Baez had signified, some time ago, his intention to abandon the project of annexation if the government of Hayti was willing to make peace with him? To that question the Secretary thought proper to give no answer. Mr. St. John is well known in St. Domingo as being opposed to the annexation scheme, as well as for his antagonism to the Salnave party, his friendly feelings for President Saget and for the people of Hayti. This being kept in view, it is not to be wondered at the extreme displeasure felt by President Baez. On learning that the British Chargé d'Affaires, who was presented to him on the following day, had been officially accredited, Baez could do nothing except conceal his bad humor at this unwelcome addition to the diplomatic corps in St. Domingo. Mr. St. John said to the President that he heard that his Excellency remarked to a French and to an English officer that he had been obliged to ask for the protection of, and the annexation to, the United States on account of the aggressive attitude assumed by the government of Hayti, but that he was willing to give up the project should President Saget consent to treat with him and establish good and peaceful relations between the two republics. Should this be the case, added Mr. St. John, he was authorized, but unofficially, to do his best to help to effect a satisfactory result for both parties. Baez refrained from giving an answer until the following day, and, after having consulted with the American agent, he told the British Chargé d'Affaires that he could not decide positively as to his future intentions before knowing the views of the government of the United States. The day after the Secretary of State, Mr. Gautier, left for New York to see General Grant and make some arrangements in favor of President Baez. Mr. St. John, seeing that he was losing time in trying to prevail upon the Chief Magistrate of St. Domingo to accept his friendly offices, returned to Port au Prince, where he exercises also the functions of Chargé d'Affaires.

Erroneous Charges Against a Steam Boiler Inspector.

Supervising Inspector Menshaw, of the Baltimore district, has reported to the Secretary of the Treasury that the charges made against Inspector E. E. Hewes, of Charleston, for neglect of duty in inspecting the boilers of the steamer R. E. Lee, which exploded on the 17th of August, are entirely erroneous. The boilers were properly inspected at the required time, and the statement that he had neglected to do this for years was disproved by the fact that the steamer had been built but two years when the accident resulting in the death of three men occurred.

The Commission appointed by General Pleasonton just before his suspension as Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to ascertain what amount of the scrip dividend of the New York Central Railroad would be exempt from taxation under the order of Secretary Boutwell, have not as yet taken any action, owing to the illness of the Chairman, Mr. William Orton.

Refunding Taxes to the Erie Railroad.

David Dudley Field, of New York, to-day made an argument before Commissioner Douglass in favor of the claim of the Erie Railway Company of that State for the refunding and abatement of certain taxes assessed against that road. The amount involved is over one hundred thousand dollars. He claims that money raised by the sale of bonds is not liable to taxation, not being earnings of the road. The Commissioner reserved his decision.

MOVEMENTS OF THE PRESIDENT.

Cincinnati, Sept. 19, 1871.

President Grant reviewed the Zouave and colored battalion and the Police and Fire Department at the Burnet House this morning. He received an address of welcome by Mayor Davis, to which he responded briefly. At noon he was introduced on 'Change. The President spoke briefly, expressing his gratification at meeting this reception from the people, and all the more because it was from the people of a great nation, and not from those of a divided country.

Resolutions complimentary to Senator Tweed, endorsing his course as the great upholder of democratic principles, and resolutions nominating Judge Shandley for Register were adopted. Addresses were delivered by Messrs. Delaney, O'Neill, Black and Haggerty. President Shells presided on the occasion and gave his assistance in a most praiseworthy manner towards the general success of the meeting.

Organization of the Twentieth Ward Tammany Association.

A number of young gentlemen, who last year composed a club for the support of James O'Brien, but who now renounce their allegiance to that eminent personage to come to the succor and vindication of much-assailed Tammany, met last evening in a saloon at the corner of Twenty-seventh street and Sixth avenue, and organized the Twentieth Ward Tammany Association, electing the following officers:—Peter Donnelly, President; George J. Prentice, Vice President; Thomas J. Eagan and Henry Fitzgerald, Secretaries; Alexander Webber, Treasurer. About one hundred and fifty names are already on the roll of membership. Mr. Peter Trainor, who heartily approves the movement, was expected to be present last evening, but did not make an appearance. A larger meeting will be held on Thursday, next week.

KINGS COUNTY POLITICS.

Meeting of the Democratic General Committee—The Primaries—An Inspector of Election in Preference to a Police Sergeancy.

An adjourned meeting of the Democratic General Committee was held last evening at the headquarters of that organization, No. 9 Court street, Brooklyn, Mayor Kalbfleisch in the chair. The meeting was held for the purpose of making arrangements for holding the primaries and electing delegates to the State Convention to be held at Rochester, October 4, and also to the Judiciary Convention. It was resolved that the primaries should be held on Tuesday evening, September 26, to elect three delegates from each ward and county town, to meet on the 28th inst. and elect one delegate from each Assembly district to attend the State Convention. It was also resolved that one delegate from each Assembly district should be chosen to attend the Judiciary Convention, which will also be held on the 28th inst.

A communication was handed in by Deputy Auditor Keenan, from the Sixth ward, declaring the position of Inspector of Election in that ward to be vacant, owing to the fact that the office was nominally held by Sergeant Kane, of the Police Department, which circumstance disqualified him from legally discharging the duties of Inspector under the law. The communication was referred to the Committee on Vacancies which, after a brief deliberation, reported the name of Thomas F. O'Brien as Inspector, vice Kane, and moved the adoption of the report.

Alderman Dunn opposed the resolution, on the ground that no vacancy really existed there, and stated that if his connection with the Police department debarred him from filling the office of Inspector he would resign his place as Sergeant.

The officer in question then came forward and tendered his shield to the chairman—Mayor Kalbfleisch. The Mayor declined to receive the badge of office in committee, and informed the sergeant that the proper place for him to pursue that course would be in the presence of the Board of Police Commissioners.

It is not expected that further returns will materially change the result.

WALL STREET, }
TUESDAY, Sept. 19—6 P. M. }

On 'Change to-day wheat was quiet and firm. The cotton market was heavy and lower.

MONEY THREE TO SEVEN PER CENT.

The money market was more active, with a general advance in the rates of interest. The banks early in the day marked up their loans on stock collaterals to five per cent, and this rate being readily accepted, borrowers later in the day paid six and seven per cent currency, and, in some instances, seven per cent gold. This last mentioned rate is equivalent to fully eight per cent currency. Before this activity was precipitated many of the best known stock houses had obtained their money at as low as four per cent. On the other hand, lenders on government securities were fully content with four per cent, and many of the leading dealers in government bonds had balances left with them at three per cent. There were, however, no transactions below three per cent. The activity, while attributed in great part to speculative manipulation in connection with operations in the Stock Exchange, was due chiefly to the calling of loans by the agents of two of the Canadian banks, who, apprehending trouble from the interference of the District Attorney on the ground of alleged usurious charges for the use of gold, withdrew their gold from circulation and were at the same time compelled to call their currency from its employment with the stock brokers. The disturbance of loans incidental to this double transaction readily explains the sudden turn in the interest rate toward the close of banking hours.

Prime commercial paper was naturally less salable, but the nominal rates were without essential change.

Foreign exchange was utterly demoralized by a renewal of the "squeeze" in cash gold, and prime sixty-day sterling bills sold at as low as 108 for "cash," although this is hardly a fair rate to quote. The market fluctuated with the gold loan market, and rates were lower by just the proportion that the rates in the latter were above the dividing line of "flat."

GOLD STRONG—114¾ A 115.

The clique in the gold market pressed their advantage over the short interest by advancing the price from 114¾ to 115 and exacting terms for the use of cash gold ranging from 3-32 to ⅛ per cent. In other words, brokers desiring gold for deliveries to-day had to pay $9 37½ to $50 for the use of each $10,000 gold borrowed for that object, the accommodation lasting, of course, only until to-morrow. The same rates were furthermore exacted indirectly by the less questionable process of selling the gold for "cash" ⅛ a ⅜ per cent above the market and buying it back "regular" at the market. These transactions do not appear in our table below, which is a transcript of the official record of the Board, wherein cognizance is taken only of "regular" sales, or sales consummated the day following the transaction. In fact, the reputed agents of the clique were careful to use this plan almost exclusively; but a majority of the business of the day was done in the ordinary manner, only that lenders, who were more cautious, in view of the threats of legal proceedings on the score of usury, made their loans in whispers, and in many instances solicited confidential treatment by the borrower, the promise of which was ratified by an occasional shaking of hands. The interpolation of these incidents in the usually matter-of-fact routine of the Gold Room was a touch of human nature which, if it did not make the "bulls" and "bears" akin, enlivened the drama in gold. The price of gold had been steadily maintained for some time in the early part of the afternoon at 114⅞ a 115, but toward three o'clock it was rumored that the Secretary of the Treasury had decided to make his gold sale to-morrow, simultaneously with his bond purchase, and as the amount to be disposed of was likely to be enlarged indefinitely there was a sudden reaction to 114⅝. Inquiry at the Sub-Treasury elicited the statement that as yet no orders had been received to change the programme, but the information was substituted that Mr. Boutwell was expected in town and at the Sub-Treasury during the course of Wednesday forenoon. On this gold again advanced to 114 15-16. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	114⅞	1 P. M.	114⅞
10:11 A. M.	114¾	2 P. M.	115
11 A. M.	114⅞	3 P. M.	114⅝
11:11 A. M.	114⅝	3:30 P. M.	114⅝
12 M.	114⅝	4 P. M.	114¾
12:20 P. M.	114⅞	5 P. M.	114⅞
12:57 P. M.	115	5:30 P. M.	114⅞ a 115

The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$76,727,000
Gold balances	1,553,910
Currency balances	2,097,326

The gold loan market opened at 3-16, advanced to ⅛, and closed at 3-32—all for borrowing. After three o'clock ⅛ and ⅜ per cent were paid for the use of gold to-morrow, and the latter figure continued to be bid up to the adjournment of the Gold Room.

GOVERNMENTS STEADY.

The government bond market was steady in currency values, but underwent a sharp decline in gold values. The 1862's were selling at 115½, with gold at 115. Allowing for the pending coupon these bonds were freely offered at a discount of 2½ per cent from their par in gold. These are the issues which Mr. Boutwell intends redeeming at their full par in gold on the 1st of December prox. The wider this difference the greater the profit of the Syndicate. The foreign bankers were selling governments and buying gold and exchange. The following were the closing street prices:—United States currency sixes, 115⅝ a 115¾; do., 1881, registered, 117⅛ a 117⅜; do. do., coupon, 118⅜ a 118⅝; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 115 a 115⅜; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 115⅜ a 115½; do. do., 1864, do. do., 115⅛ a 115⅜; do. do., 1865, do. do., 115½ a 115⅝; do. do., registered, January and July, 113⅞ a 114⅛; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 114 a 114⅛; do. do., 1867, do. do., 114⅛ a 114¼; do. do., 1868, do. do., 114⅜ a 114⅝; do. ten-forties, registered, 111⅝ a 111¾; do. do., coupon, 111⅝ a 111¾.

STOCKS FEVERISH, UNSETTLED AND STRONG.

The stock market opened temporarily weak, and for a short time at the beginning of business prices were generally lower than on Monday. But a strong reaction took place at the Boards, owing to the endeavors of the "short" interest to cover, the rally being assisted by a vigorous movement on the part of the "bulls." Indeed, a fierce war has broken out between the "bull" and "bear" cliques. The latter, in beginning their recent attack, confined themselves to stocks not held by the "bull" cliques; but the latter, finding their favorites dragged down by the onslaught of the "bears" on the rest of the market, came to the general rescue. The "bears" responded by making money active (the advance to seven per cent being too sudden to be natural), and a fresh struggle ensued, the advantages being decidedly with the "bears," until the rumor went flying through the street that the City Hall troubles had been ended by a compromise of the Mayor with the adherents of the Deputy Comptroller, when the tide of battle again turned, and the "bulls" remained masters of the field at nightfall. The City Hall report was subsequently verified by the official advertisement of the new Deputy Comptroller, announcing that the interest on the city debt due November 1 would be promptly paid on and after that date, at the office of the City Chamberlain.

COMMERCIAL REPORT.

TUESDAY, Sept. 19—6 P. M.

ASHES were steady but very quiet at $7 25 a $7 75 for pots, and $9 a $9 50 for pearls.

CANDLES were only in small jobbing demand at previous prices. Adamantine, 13c. a 15c.; stearic, 28c. a 29c.; paraffine, 24c.; plain sperm, 29c., and patent sperm, 39.

Export	1,492	56	1,548

BEN BUTLER.

The General's Pilgrimage for the Massachusetts Governorship.

SPLENDID RECEPTION AT FALL RIVER.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 18, 1871.

General Butler arrived in Fall River at two o'clock. He came by the twelve o'clock train from Boston, and was met at the Bowenville depot by Member of Congress Buffington, whose sightly cottage on Locust street had been prepared for his reception and entertainment, and he was taken there at once and comfortably and socially installed. He had dinner and afterwards visited many of the mills in the city for the purpose of inspecting them, in the company of his host, which was very pleasant for the General. So were they all pleasant, save the delegation of Butlerites that had en masse and with band preceded to the Fall River depot in expectation that he would come there, but had watched with many and unrewarded eyes the disembarking passengers. So were they all pleasant, save the anti-Butlerites hereabouts, who are in a minority and whose hearts descend in proportion as the so-called self-nominated candidate's bright ethereal star wings zenithward its triumphant way. The meeting, as a matter of record, came off in the City Hall. The hall was crowded. All the seats had been removed, with the exception of those in the gallery, which were reserved for the ladies, and so densely packed was the assembly it is doubtful if even "Ginx's baby" so much a favorite of the General as he is, could have gained admittance after half-past seven o'clock. The hall is not a large one; but no less than one thousand five hundred persons could have been present, and they stood there thirty mortal minutes before the General appeared. When the General, accompanied by the dignitaries of the occasion, entered the hall he was welcomed with an ovation of cheers, and was presented by Captain Brady, Collector of Customs of the First district.

The General was received with shouts of applause, a series of piercing whistles and shouts of "Old Ben," &c., and then he went on with his speech, or rather his hanging, as he has been designated the judge and in Massachusetts, and invariably steps on the stump with a bowstring in hand.

THE SPEECH.

After his usual introductory remarks concerning questions the General began his speech. He told about those matters of grave importance; again told about the vituperations and calumnies by which he had been heralded. told about the census, then referring to the Journal article, "A Lie Well Stuck To," and the extravagant expenses of the State government, told about the Auditor once more, and wound up by repeating nearly word for word what he had previously said about making money. But he had one new theory to advance, and that was that the managers of the Boston Journal have taken the course they are now pursuing for the purpose of so deteriorating the stock of that paper as to enable them to buy it up. "Now," said the General, "if I am right you will understand what the Journal is (and here he paused a moment to prepare his hearers for a little bon mot—a newspaper—(laughter)—if I am not right, then I shall lose your confidence." The new subject for consideration was the Legislature. "Last year," he said, "we had a Legislature and we had a Speaker, and that Speaker has been there four years, and last year they sat six months. Now as to

you can see that my statements are absolutely correct and that their statements are absolutely wrong. I can't stop to follow up every statement, every lie of these lying editors; but you must see that if I had proved this in one case you may take for granted that I can prove it of all other cases. I now speak of that class of editors, because there are editors that are not thus; but life is short, and editors and bad newspapers are plenty." Then the General passed into a discussion of the subject of taxation; but although he was, as usual, lively and interesting, he set forth no additional facts. "Now," said he, "the people are surprised at this exhibit. Why, they say, these sentinels on the watch tower, the editors of the newspapers, have never told us about this. Why haven't they told us about it instead of telling us funny stories about some dog? Well, why have not they enlightened the people upon these matters? I don't know why, unless it is that they do not know anything about it or care less, because they pay very little taxes. Now," said the General, launching again, "I see that one of the gentlemen who have been running for the gubernatorial nomination has withdrawn his name in a letter this morning, having out of a canvass of several weeks been unable to get two delegates out of 1,000. I see he says, there is an attack upon the honor and honesty of those that have to do with the Governor, and he feels it sorely, because he has been Speaker of the House of Representatives. I do not lay these expenditures to him so much as the length of the sessions of the Legislature. I think he ought to cut it off somehow. But we have had honest Governors, honest Secretaries of State, honest Treasurers and honest Auditors. I agree to all that. I hold that the republican party has in its ranks as honest and as pure men as live. Why, then, you reply to me, can these expenses have been run up? Why, I will tell you, my friends. It is because the government of the State has passed out of the hands of the Governor and other officers. All your Governor has to do is to go around attending agricultural fairs, to once a year visit the Hoosac Tunnel and to appoint Judges of the Courts. By the by, I wish they would appoint a Judge for the Courts down in my county; but then I suppose he is not to be appointed until after election, because it might affect that election somehow. Then there is that hospital at Worcester—that lunatic hospital, I mean. Now, in my speech there I stated some solid facts, and here I have been walking about the Commonwealth with a

CHIP ON MY SHOULDER

for my opponents to knock off. I can't get anybody to deny my statement, when I say there were thirty-five inmates of that hospital last September, but they turn round and say that is not the average. Well, I don't know anything about the average. I haven't been in the insane hospital—(laughter)—and I don't intend to go there." (Renewed laughter.) The General next reverted to the question of how he came to take his stand as candidate for Governor and told about the abuse that followed his Springfield speech. After that he said:—"When I struck back they cried out in holy horror, 'Why, General Butler is becoming personal;' or, 'Why, he is really striking back: he is becoming quarrelsome.' 'Now, my friends,' said the General, inserting his thumb under the lappels of his vest, and with an act of internal self-satisfaction, facing the audience—"Well, now, my friends, I don't believe I am quarrelsome. I never commenced a personal altercation in my life. I never commenced a personal attack on any mortal, either in or out of Congress;" and the General told about how he never let up on a man when he did go for him. This was the signal for an uproarious burst of applause. The General enforced his observation with so dry a tone of voice and so sarcastic an expression of countenance that it was irresistible, and everybody appreciated it and laughed at it. Then the General stepped about on the platform something after the manner of a carpenter measuring off a yard with a great deal of straddle, smiled, and while he drew up his coat-tail with his left hand he whipped out his handkerchief with his right and proceeded to remove the beads of perspiration that were slowly trickling down his forehead. "Now," said the General, returning to his subject, "this thing has been going on for weeks, and, let me see," he added, counting his fingers, "they immediately put into the field one, two, three, four, five candidates for Governor against me, and they have two or three in reserve yet not brought out, and they get up all manner of candidates, started off in their own way of election. One way is to do exactly as I am doing. That may be a good way or a bad one. It is for you to judge, not me. It is the way I have got, at any rate. Now there is another way of electioneering." To illustrate the General once more read those Somerville campaign documents, "because," he said, "Mr. Conwell received one of these letters, and he stated over his signature that he did, and being confident that he did not dare to publish all the names exactly, and so substituted other names; thereupon they say these are not genuine letters. Nobody wants to be Governor, you know, except General Butler; but a man puts himself in the hands of his friends and offers to pay the bills of anybody who will hunt up the politicians who will make him Governor. That thing is done exactly now. I know these letters are genuine. That little touch about 'Mr. Braistow going for General Butler as he appears to gain in strength,' could not have been counterfeited. It's too much like a politician. Those are genuine letters, with names altered, as Mr. Conwell says. I see in the Journal that they deny the fact; but their denials are worth what you see. Now, one of the candidates that adopts that style of electioneering and sets up his headquarters, and who promised that everybody was for him, after running for three weeks, got but two delegates, so far as heard from, out of 239. He got but two delegates, and he did not dare come before the Commonwealth and meet the question and the people of his own ward, and, although they are going to hold a caucus on Wednesday night, he has concluded to withdraw, saying that he is sorry that he thinks it his duty to save a split in the party. Now, if he had said 'chipping off' it might have done; but I guess

THERE WILL BE NO SPLITTING

with two delegates out of a thousand—(applause)—and then he turns around to say he thinks there is some harm done by General Butler in his electioneering. Well," said the General, sinking his voice to a funeral tone, "he is gone, and I have only to say to you and to the others in language of the old song, 'Three cheers for the dead; hurrah for the next to die!'" (Applause.) The General next spoke of Mr. Rice and the Boston Transcript, which he, as usual, characterized as the tea table paper of the metropolis, bearing about the same relation to the other papers that a poodle dog does to a Newfoundland, and about as snappish and snarlish as a poodle would be on the lap of its mistress. "Mr. Rice is a very respectable gentleman, and he was a very good candidate of the P. L. L.'s, in 1867, and he will show a very strong front with their help this year, I have no doubt, and he is a man of whom I haven't a word to say but that of kindness and regard." The General then repeated what he said on a previous occasion with relation to and the recent enforcement of the Prohibitory law, labor reform and the labor reformers. Although he was quite interesting the audience at nine o'clock largely took its departure.

At this point, and just as the General was endeavoring to show that it is the duty of the Legislature to make a common cause with the workingmen, the only disturbance of the evening occurred, for the meeting was one of the most orderly of the campaign. Suddenly, in the middle of a brilliant rhetorical declamation, an inebriated industrial sang out, "How's Hooker? How's hog—of—hic—Hegan? I say—hic—General—how's Hook—hic—Hooker?" And while cries of "Shut up!" and "Put him out!" rang through the hall the orator paused in his speech and surveyed the assembly. All at once there was a rush for the squally element, who still persisted in asking, "Where's General Hooker?" and although the orator interposed to save him and said "Oh, no; don't put anybody out; he's a little bit in earnest; that's all," two policemen had their hands on him, and he was straightway ejected from the hall.

Then the General proceeded and told about Wendell Phillips and that place where all lying editors will go, and then took the Boston Advertiser to task by reading its advice regarding republican caucuses, that any laboring man or temperance man who voted for Phillips last year ought not to be allowed to act. "Now," said the General, "the republican church is full enough of men that don't want to use it for their own purposes, but not full enough for the great reform party of the State. They tell you that I want to bolt from the republican party if I am not nominated. Let's see what the Springfield Republican says. They talk about my bolting, and this is what they say:—

> It is idle to suppose that the men of character who made the bone and sinew of the republican party in this State will ever consent to the nomination of Butler for Governor. If it were possible for him to receive the nomination at Worcester he would undoubtedly be opposed by the same men who are now receiving his furious assaults, and his defeat at the polls would be as certain as the coming of the election day.

"Now," said the General, "there is a distinct threat in that to bolt in case of my nomination. Well, down in Plymouth the only Jewell delegate that was elected—and he had to vote for himself—was Charles G. Davis, the vote standing 49 to 49, and he gave it 50, and said in the meeting when he went there and pledged the whole of Plymouth to Jewell, like another individual who went up to the top of a high mountain and showed all the lands of earth and pledged them when he didn't own a foot of them—this man said he would bolt and vote for Jack Adams. Well, let him bolt. All I can say is, if he will bolt I will find a sledgehammer to drive it. They threaten and then they ask me whether I will vote, and to that I mean to make answer, once for all:—In case the will of the people is fairly heard and fairly expressed at Worcester I shall bow to the will of the people. (Applause.) But if the will of the people is choked off, preventing its expression by tricks, chicanery, secret meetings or conspiracy, why, then I will take care to illustrate the maxim of the law that frauds bind nobody. Fair play and I will be bound; tricks and cheats it is my mission to expose and take care of. They want to bolt, do they, in case the people choose to nominate whom they please? Let them bolt!

IT IS A PART OF MY MISSION

to purify the republican party, and the quicker they get out of it the better. No, my friends; don't be frightened out of this thing. They say that I am to bolt, with the majority of the republican party. The majority will really bolt from the minority! Well, perhaps so; but that is an entirely new definition of bolting. No, my friends, let us go and see exactly what is needed and what these men mean. The General concluded by putting in a word in favor of the re-election of General Grant, repeating his former remarks with relation to strikes, telling about prohibition, Bridget Flaherty and gilded saloons, "where you and I go," and perorating on the subject of caucuses. He was frequently applauded and cheered, and when he had finished the band played, the ladies vacated the gallery and the sturdy yeomanry of the city swarmed over the platform to grasp the orator by the hand. It was a ludicrous scene, truly. The General was completely overpowered. He wanted to shake hands with everybody, but his friends were so many and so vigorous that it was discouraging, quite. Several persons, indeed, were knocked off the edge of the platform, so great was the rush when the General bolted for the floor, and in a corner of the hall at the bottom of the steps leading up to the speaker's stand, he surrendered at discretion. The crowd which filled the hall, surged back and forth, and rose and fell like the waves of the sea, closing in on the General, who was pulled hither and thither, and on whose brow were great beads of perspiration as he vainly attempted to close on each individual's hand, and flowing out to the entrances in a constant stream. To those on the platform, overlooking it all the scene was most enlivening and the best appreciated. It was an incident of the campaign and a striking manifestation of the estimation in which the General is held.

Characteristic Speech at East Abington—What Was Said of Butler During the War—His Republicanism Unquestioned—A Thrust at the Bucolic Candidate for the Presidency.

EAST ABINGTON, Sept. 19, 1871.

Abington is a small place, but it thinks a great deal of General Butler; for when he arrived here by the five o'clock train from Boston this afternoon he was met at the depot by a delegation of the townfolks, and immediately taken charge of, confiscated, jammed into a carriage, trunk, bag, hat and overcoat, and bundled off to the residence of Mr. Washington Reed by that gentleman himself. A crowd of curious lookers-on cheered lustily, the engine bell rang, the small boys in the vicinity gave utterance to all the nameless cries known to them, and with a "G'lang there" and a horsely whinney the wheels of the carriage spun over the ground, throwing up a cloud of smoke in the rear, and the whole of the machine vanished in the distance. Then the people of East Abington quietly went home to supper. It is a small town, it may be said again, containing hardly more than 3,000 inhabitants, yet it has sent seven Butler delegates to the State Convention, and will give at the polls, without any doubt, a triumphant majority of ballots in favor of the people's candidate. Like soaring into the illimitable depths of space, the General wings upward his successful way. Pheonix Hall, on the main street of the town, was the scene of the gathering. It is a small but handsome hall, capable of accommodating 800 persons, and it was filled by as select and respectable an audience as is usually seen in any lecture room.

At a quarter to eight o'clock the door of the ante-room was flung open, and, accompanied by Mr. Reed and Mr. Ira F. Rowell, the General made his appearance. He was warmly but decorously greeted. Mr. Lowell, who is a leading shoe manufacturer of the town, presided and introduced the orator, as follows:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, FELLOW CITIZENS—I take pleasure in introducing to you this evening one to whom we never have had the happiness of listening in this place. He has come here to give you an idea of the principles by which he believes, and I hope we believe, that we should be governed in the immediate future of Massachusetts. He has come here as a man who has never learned to "bend the suppliant hinges of his knee that thrift may follow fawning," but has come here to teach us how to stand up as independent men and republicans for the principles which we believe will carry us on to prosperity. I hope that the good sense of the republican party, which is to meet in convention at Worcester on the 27th of the present month, will give us republicans the privilege of voting for General Butler for nominee for Governor. Now, fellow citizens, I take pleasure in introducing to you the next Governor of Massachusetts, as I believe, Major General Benjamin F. Butler. (Applause.)

BUTLER'S SPEECH.

Thus heralded, the General took the stand and commenced his speech:—

FELLOW CITIZENS, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—May I ask you for a few minutes to bear with me until I get back my voice, which I have lost from over work, and then I am quite sure I shall make each one and all hear me, and for that purpose may I ask you for as much individual quiet as the discomforts of your situation will allow. And with these brief prefatory remarks the General spoke about the gravest business of life again, and about those thousand calumnies and those million vituperations. Then he alluded to Sumner and Wilson. "I remember in 1863," he said, "the emancipation year, when Mr. Sumner was about to be a candidate for Senator. I remember that he went all over the Commonwealth and on every platform addressed the people upon such topics as he thought would best advance his election or advance the good of the party; and I remember, also, later still, our junior Senator, Mr. Wilson, last year did the very same thing that I have done—went to Springfield during the the election of candidates for Representatives who might be supposed to elect him Senator and addressed the laboring men, and went all over the Commonwealth and addressed the temperance men upon the impropriety of their splitting off from the republican party. So, if I am offending in this, fellow citizens, I am offending with good precedents and good examples."

The General then told what he knew about farming, the census statistics, &c., but presented no new facts until he got hold of the newspapers once more. "Some of you," he said, "take the Boston Journal, but I trust, if you have any desire to learn the truth, you won't take it much longer." (Laughter.)

THAT LIE WELL STUCK TO.

the Auditor's report, those anonymous scribblers and the Board of Commissioners all came in again for their share of the General's attention, and then he struck out into an entirely new field of cultivation and went at the newspapers as follows:—"Strange," he said, "that they have so altered their tune with relation to me. Let us look at the Boston Daily Advertiser of June 13, 1863. Here is what it says:—

> We are all prone to be captious in scrutinizing the conduct of our public men, but the multitude will applaud in General Butler the citizen soldier, who abandoned a lucrative position in private life, at the first call of his country, who has served her with untiring industry and unflagging zeal, and who has suffered no associations of party or predilections of political pride to blind his eye to the true character of its struggle in which the nation is engaged.

"Now," said the General, "look with me at the Boston Journal, of June 13, 1863, not 'a lie well stuck to.' It is of the ovation accorded to General Butler in Faneuil Hall:—

> "He deserves it and the people know it. He has been allotted to an exceedingly difficult place in this struggle for national existence—a place unprecedented in the annals and requiring the highest executive ability, and he filled it with complete success. Of how many others of our civic and military leaders can the same be said?

"Now," said the General, "the Daily Transcript—the Snarlyow of the press—supported me then. Ah! here is Warrington! Boston, January 1, published in the Springfield Republican, January 3:—

> "The people here think that Butler's removal is a mistake. (That's from New Orleans.) But there are not facts enough yet to make up judgment. Butler has certainly maintained a stable government longer than any other of our officers. Banks has ability, no doubt, and if he will act independently, as Butler has done, he will make a successful administration; but if he is to be governed by the intriguer at the head of State affairs he will hardly win as fresh and enduring laurels as those which General Butler brings home.

"Ah, here is something in the Springfield Republican written from New Orleans about that time, April 12, 1863:—

> One universal sentiment is that General Butler should come back. It is no venture to say that the removal of General Butler is the greatest blunder of the war. Millions have been spent on the Banks expedition, and yet General Banks, with 50,000 men, doesn't hold as much territory as General Butler did a year ago with less than 10,000. If the government had given Butler 20,000 men six months ago he would have taken Vicksburg and ascended the river. The civil condition of this department is worse than when General Butler was here.

"Now, again, I read from the Springfield Republican of April 11, 1863, about a meeting in New York in honor of one man:—

> "We have had no such demonstration since the war broke out. There is a fine presence about General Butler.

"Well, ladies, they thought me a handsome man; they," said the General, with a smile at the fair portion of his audience—(tremendous laughter)—"now, if you will believe the newspapers, I am an undignified candidate! Now you see some of my friends took the trouble "to pick out these things. These laudatory things are in writing; I have got a scrapbook full of the other kinds," and the General eyed with loving eye that monstrous folio of his. "Well, my friends, that is the story at one time—undeserved, largely, I know—and the story upon the other side I have just given you. Now, why all this? what have I done? Why, I said in view of this state of facts that I

WOULD BE GOVERNOR

if the people wanted me, and I thought I had a right to say so; therefore they poured out the vials of wrath on me;" and the General again descended on the little spaniel paper, the Transcript, and told about capital and labor, the new reforms, prohibition and the republican church, which he said was full, but with the deacons' pews only occupied. "Who," he asked, "are these self-righteous men in the republican party that attempt to beat men like Wendell Phillips? and like the younger diciple, who has sometimes been compared to Paul, and yet sometimes there are those who perfer Judas, because he is the older disciple. Who are they? Why, they are men who will get their names on to democratic tickets whenever they run for office, that's what they are." "Now," said the General, with oily tongue. "If I am slandering anybody in this neighborhood I will beg his pardon. (Applause.) Then the squally element broke out. "That was only an accident," said a man half way down the aisle. "What, sir!" exclaimed the General sharply, "only an accident." Repeated the man, "it's all right." "Well, said the General, turning to the audience, "I suppose it is only an accident that you voted the labor reform ticket, or somebody else did. Accidents count against us, that is all. That's the only difficulty. Now, I want to show my friends whether this is so? How are you going to get your party big enough? It is big enough now for ring purposes and clique purposes, and men have got hold of the public crib, and they hold on and suck and suck, and squeal and squeal when you attempt to make them let go. (Laughter and applause.) Now, I want to see every man that wants to come in the party come into the party and take part in the party, and I want everybody that voted for Grant last time, and a great many more, to vote for him again for President; and they will, unless they are driven off by these men who don't want to have the republican party any bigger than the old whig party of 1851—conveniently small and exclusive. Why, I find in this same Boston Journal of September 5 an article saying that our State Convention better not endorse the renomination of General Grant. "It can do no good." I give their very words. Now what does that mean? It means more than you see on the surface. Read the daily papers of New York, and you will see that in the State of New York there are Greeley republicans and Grant republicans being elected to the State Convention in the State of New York. Read the daily papers, and you will see that Mr. Greeley, of the New York Tribune, is stumping the great West against Grant, and dreaming that he himself is running for the Presidency. You will find that everywhere he is abusing General Grant. He made at Chicago, as at Detroit, the statement that when the people should get hold of Grant they would handle him witeout gloves. He said that because President Grant loves a horse as much as Greeley, as an agriculturist, loves a cow. (Laughter.) Perhaps I should have said loves a cabbage. You may put that in the report instead of cow," added the General, addressing the reporters, "and the Tribune heads my abusers here and my detracters, and you will find that every man that is opposed to General Butler and the true republican party of this Commonwealth. Now, my friends, I have forwarned you, and when you find a man coming out very strong against General Butler you just hunt him up carefully, and you will find that he is in some way a part of the conspiracy going on against the integrity of the republican party.

The General, in conclusion, again alluded to the Prohibitory law and showed the audience Bridget O'Flagherty in all her virgin purity, and told about those gilded saloons "where you and I go," and talked about the Butler delegates to the Convention. "The Journal," he said, "states that fifty-six delegates in my favor are from Essex county and that Lowell will send a full Butler delegation, with no opposition. Now, I have represented the Fifth district in Congress two terms and they all know me well. How very singular, then, it is that there they heap the honors upon me, and if I were a double-dealing, dishonest, untruthful and improper person in every form how I must have deceived my neighbors all my life." The General then wound up and the usual scene occurred. At the close the band played its Pot Pourri, the ladies vacated the hall and the friends of the General thronged upon the platform to take him indidually by the hand.

STABBING AFFRAYS.

About three o'clock yesterday afternoon Sarah Dobson, white, and Martha Jackson, a colored woman, residing at 75 Thompson street, had an altercation, during which the former cut the latter on the thigh with a razor, inflicting severe wounds. The wounded woman was removed to the Eighth precinct station house and attended by a police surgeon. The would-be murderess made her escape, and is still at large.

About the same time William Swanton, aged twenty-three, of 229 Fifth street, was stabbed in the shoulder, at the corner of Fifth street and Bowery, by George Patterson, of 557 Sixth street. The wounded man was removed to the Seventeenth precinct station house and attended by a police surgeon. Patterson was arrested by officer Long, and will be arraigned at Essex Market this morning.

John Huid, aged forty, and Frederick O. Lee, aged fifteen, yesterday afternoon got into an altercation, during which Huid stabbed Lee in the eye, cutting it completely out. The wounded man was attended by Dr. Frazer and sent to Bellevue Hospital. Heid was arrested by Officer Emery, of the Twentieth precinct, and will be arraigned at Jefferson Market this morning.

SHOT AND KILLED.

At ten minutes past ten o'clock last night a boy named Christian Kraft, aged twelve years, residing at 617 East Eleventh street, employed in the lager beer saloon of William Hahn, at the above number, was accidentally shot in the left breast by a boy named Peter Strauss and instantly killed. Strauss was arrested by an officer of the Eleventh precinct, and will be held to await the action of the Coroner, who has been notified to investigate the case.

Marine Disasters.

SHIP ARCADIA—RIO JANEIRO, Aug 25—A telegram received here from San Francisco (province of Santa Catharina), reports the loss of the ship Arcadia, Capt Weeks, in the following terms:—On the 22d the American ship Arcadia, on a voyage from Leith (June 17) to San Francisco, California, with a cargo of 800 tons coal and 1,000 tons of other articles, was lost off Prais Grande do Cardo, six miles south of the mouth of the river San Francisco, and of the cargo nothing could be saved. On the 20th fire showed itself on board, in lat 30 S, lon 47 W, and the captain tried to make for the nearest port; but the fire raged with such frightful violence that he had to abandon the vessel, taking with him the crew of 23 persons, all of whom are safe. Two hours after the abandonment there was an explosion on board, and the vessel sank a mile from the coast.

BARK ZEPHYR—The schooner Ellen Rodman, from a whaling voyage, arrived at Bermuda, 7th inst., reports that on the 2d inst., in lat. 31-30, long. 67, spoke bark Zephyr, out 110 days from the western coast of America, bound to Philadelphia, in want of fuel, having burnt everything available, and would have sent down topmasts for same purpose had they not fortunately received a supply of coal and wood from the Ellen Rodman.

BARK WOODLAND (Br), Burns, 77 days from Fernandina, with lumber for Montevideo, put into Pernambuco 18th ult leaking badly, and will have to discharge.

BRIG SOPHIA, from Trinidad, anchored in Hampton Roads, was run into 19th by the schr Fanny R Shaw, and had her cathead stove and her forward rigging damaged, but not seriously.

SCHR DUTCH PRINCESS, Hassell, from New York, bound to Maracabo, arrived at Bermuda on the 7th inst, in distress, having encountered on the 30th ult, in lat 23 N, lon 67 W a violent hurricane, in which the vessel was thrown down and to right her had to cut away her foremast, which in going over took with it main topmast, jibboom and all attached. Vessel being much disabled was compelled to bear away for Bermuda, and arrived as above.

SCHR HENRY G FAY (of Calais), from Wehawken for Boston, at Vineyard Haven, struck on Handkerchief Shoal morning of 19th inst, and was hauled off by steamer Island Home and arrived at V H 19th with loss of boat and two feet water in hold.

MANILA, no date (by telegraph from Singapore)—The Cingala, from Hong Kong for New York, is a total wreck on the west coast of Panay; part of cargo saved.

ST THOMAS, Sept 13—The American brig Julia Carney, already advised as having been towed in as derelict property, lies in the lower bay. Some flour, pork and beef and lumber has been sold from her at public auction. The flour averaged $2 90 per barrel, some 400 bbls having been sold; pork, $17 to $18; beef from $15 to $16. Lumber, sold in small lots, realized about $25 per 1,000 feet. The remainder of the stuff will be sold and then the hull; she is not fit to be repaired.

The damage to the Grasmere proved to be greater than was anticipated. She is now thoroughly repaired, and leaves to-morrow for St Domingo to carry out charter party.

The Florida recovered her lower masts, and is getting new topmasts made; the hull did not suffer.

Vessels for charter continue very scarce. There are still orders for vessels to load sugar in Porto Rico at 40c to 42½c, gold, per 100 lbs, to United States. Plenty of orders for vessels at Turks Island at 12c a 13c currency, and wood from St Domingo at $7, gold, free on board.

CUNDURANGO.
The wonderful remedy for Cancer, Scrofula, Ulcerous and other Blood Diseases. Dr. P. T. Keene, having just returned from Ecuador and brought with him a quantity of the genuine Cundurango bark, secured through the official recommendation and assistance of His Excellency the President of Ecuador and the government of that Republic, we are prepared to fill orders for it, to a limited extent, and at a price nearly one-quarter of that which the cost of the first very small supply compelled us to charge. Spurious articles are now advertised and sold as Cundurango. We have, at considerable expense, and with the co-operation of the authorities of Loja, Ecuador, the province where the plant grows, so directed the channel of our supply as to ensure that none but the genuine shall be sold by us, and we particularly call the attention of the public, for their protection, to these facts. WHERE SHALL WE GO TO PROLONG LIFE? In no part of the world is the existence of man more prolonged than in those countries which are temperate and exempt from sickness.

The beautiful city of Los Angeles, Cal., possesses both these qualities in an eminent degree, and owing to this, as well as to the beauty of its suburbs, which are full of beautiful orange groves and vineyards, is daily increasing in population, without taking into consideration the numerous travellers who fill the new and magnificent hotel called the Pico House, which has been established in that city.

Those who enjoy only moderate health, or those who desire to prolong their lives without being deprived of the comforts and pleasures of life, should go to the city of Los Angeles.

Men of business can also find there excellent opportunities for employing their time and money.

VOX POPULI.

The mystery of the Ring is solved at last. The house divided against itself has fallen with a crash which must bury every vestige of its mushroom architecture in the ruins. Notwithstanding the anxiety with which every development in the war upon Tammany has been watched by the people, and the fever beat of the public pulse, events have marched with a rapidity which beggars all previous break-ups of the kind. It recalls forcibly the Arab legend wherein at the rubbing of the ring a powerful genius appears of mighty power. The "Ring" has been rubbed rather hard, and has appeared. Here the simile fails, for the genius of the people breaks the "Ring" which chained it. From the hour that the injunction was made permanent by Judge Barnard the demon of confusion has revelled among the Tammany leaders. Four names were on every tongue, and their every utterance was hung upon in the expectation that either Tweed, Connolly, Sweeny or Hall would give some sign whereby the future might be divined. Matters thus stood when the Comptroller appointed Andrew H. Green his deputy, and handed over to him the department under his control, that its interests might be rolled out before the eyes of the Joint Committee. It will be recalled that the Mayor, believing this to be an ipso facto resignation of the office, thereupon appointed General George B. McClellan to the Comptroller's office. The public

WAITED BREATHLESSLY FOR EVENTS.

The answer came from Connolly, quick, sharp and decisive, that he did not mean to resign, and quoted Hall's first letter as to the Mayor's inability to remove him. Next followed the legal opinion of Charles O'Conor, sustaining the Comptroller upon the point of law involved, and declaring that the Mayor's only resource was impeachment. With Judge Loew absent the Court of Common Pleas could not meet, and the citizens chafed at the idea that they would have to wait for the settlement of their disordered municipal affairs through

THE SLOW PROCESS OF THE LAW.

The Mayor, on his side, was not slow to invoke a legal opinion through the medium of the Corporation Counsel, which we publish to-day. Through the mellifluous sentences of Mr. Richard O'Gorman is negatively admitted that the Mayor has no right to remove the Comptroller, and through a dexterous but useless dodging of the main question he advises Mayor Hall to "treat with Mr. Connolly as Comptroller." Needless is Mr. O'Gorman's polish to the end that such a course will avoid "the continuance of that public excitement and sense of insecurity." How absurd it is to speak of allaying public excitement! The giant will not be or compromises, and as soon as the news was spread that O'Gorman's answer to Hall, for all its periods, meant no the excitement culminated. The loud defiance which was ringing in the Mayor's ears must have borne a more significant tone when he received a letter from General McClellan declining the office which he wished to hand over to him. Friends were raising up for Connolly, not that they believed him better than the others, but that there seemed, in the phrase which came to everybody's mouth, even his own, a desire to make him the scapegoat of Tammany's sins. Mayor Hall must have felt

ALLAYED BY FINE SENTENCES

TERRIBLY ISOLATED

yesterday, as in all the curses upon Tammany, there was one in each for his head. The meeting of the Council of Seventy took place, and that body with one voice approved the appointment of Mr. Green, and drew up resolutions to that effect, which they presented to that gentleman. Now comes the point where all the interest centres in the announcement by the Comptroller that there are greater rogues than he, and that, so far as he is concerned, he will make restitution for all he can be proved to have taken, and that all others who have shared in the spoils and now wish to bury their shame in his ruin

MUST FALL ALONG WITH HIM.

This announcement once made and this determination once taken the end is clear. Deputations of citizens may wait upon Mr. Tweed and express a ridiculous confidence, Mr. Tweed may affirm until he is hoarse that Peter P. Sweeny is wise for keeping in the background, Mayor Hall may fortify himself behind his position; but if Connolly lets out the facts of combined fraud (and none can speak more by the card on this matter than he), then the fortress of Tammany will have fallen like a house of cards. Confidence, background statesmanship and high position will be laid bare as the man who, in his desperation at the backsliding of his friends of the "Ring," against himself and the others. Further evidence of the earnestness of this man, too "slippery" to be crushed easily, finds shape in the following, from the Evening Post of yesterday evening:—

TURNS STATES EVIDENCE

It is whispered again among well-informed men that Mr. Connolly has already guaranteed the gentlemen who recommended Mr. Green against any betrayal on his part, by writing his resignation, addressed to the Mayor, and putting it in the hands of a small committee, consisting of ex-Mayor Havemeyer, Mr. Tilden and another, to be used at their discretion. This committee can then, at any time, make a vacancy in the Comptroller's office, if Mr. Hall will agree to appoint a man acceptable to them.

The rumor that Mr. Sweeny has been out of town for several days past is not true. That he has advised the Mayor to accept the situation is probable enough, but it comes rather late to save either. The feeling alluded to before as gaining strength in Connolly's favor takes still another form, but one easily understood, and as stupid as it is interested. A body of

intend to have a torchlight procession over his confession. Why are they in such a hurry to bury him? Wherever information was to be found on the all-absorbing topic the reporters of the HERALD went in quest of it. The views of the Hon. Fernando Wood, which will be found in these columns, will be of interest, for Mr. Wood has passed through municipal storms of his own. He does not think that this difficulty will lose much to the party if the obnoxious men are promptly removed. He does not think that it will injure

THE CHANCES OF CARRYING THE STATE,

a wish which many would like to share with the white-haired Fernando. His cynicism of reform movements founded on his experence will be worth perusing. What took place at the various public departments, the headquarters of Hall, Tweed, Sweeny and Connolly will be found interesting reading of how coolly men can comport themselves

FIVE MINUTES BEFORE AN EARTHQUAKE.

Interviews with the various prominent men in the controversy will be found, all of their own feature of interest, with the voice of the rank and file of the citizens, who will have to foot the bills, no matter who wins.

Of first rate moment in this regard is the account of Mr. John Foley, of the Council of Seventy, and the citizens in whose name the injunction was demanded upon the city. He says the committee will not affiliate or coalese with Mr. Connolly or any one else who can be proven to have shared in the city spoils. They do not except the Mayor, and all will applaud their firm resolve.

INTERVIEW WITH MR. JOHN FOLEY.

Important Determination of the Council of Seventy—Connolly's Confession and Vow of Revenge—His Offences Will Not Be Condoned.

So many conflicting stories of the action of the citizens' committees were afloat last evening, that to set matters right a HERALD reporter, out on the scout for latest news, resolved to call on the gentlemen whose untiring energy in behalf of reform mainly caused the present muddle in our local political affairs. Mr. John Foley was found busily engaged in the office of his store on Broadway, but nevertheless he received the representative of the HERALD with his usual courtesy, and asked him to be seated.

Mr. Foley, besides being a man of action, possesses extraordinary conversational powers, and he was not slow in displaying them to the reporter. It is needless to say that the

CONVERSATION WAS MUTUALLY AGREEABLE.

"Glad to see you," said Mr. Foley. "Sit down and be comfortable."

"Thank you. How does the political situation stand now? There are all sorts of rumors floating about, but it is hard to get at the truth."

"Well, of course there is a good deal of mystery; but I can tell you, without violating any pledge, some news that will gratify the public."

"What! More about the Tammany row than I know already? Now, now, Mr. Foley!"

"Yes, I can! Just listen a moment and I'll show you. The Committee of Seventy met to-day and held a highly important meeting. Speeches were made endorsing Mr. Green, and offering the support of the committee in whatever action he might take to expose the frauds of the Ring and bring the guilty parties to justice. It was resolved, in the words of Judge Pierrepont, to meet law with law and force with force."

"IN DEFIANCE OF MAYOR HALL?"

"In defiance of anybody and everybody, acting outside the law. Hall is outside the law and has not a leg to stand on. He dare not impeach his confederate, Connolly, for the reason that if he did he would expose himself, and not himself only, but Tweed and Sweeny, the other members of the Ring. I believe, as Horace Greeley believes, that Hall is mad. If he were not mad he would scarcely declare one day that he had no power to remove the Comptroller and the next affirm that he had. But it is characteristic of madmen to imagine other people insane. We fully expect to see him in the State Prison, with his confederates, soon."

"But, Mr. Foley," mildly suggested the reporter, "is not Richard B. Connolly now your confederate?"

"Not at all! We have

NO AFFILIATION WITH CONNOLLY WHATEVER.

He is equally to blame, but not more than the others, except, perhaps, Tweed. Connolly has offered the Committee of Seventy to pay back to the city, to the last cent, all the money he owes——"

"He will make restitution?"

"Yes; he will pay every cent. Oh, he will make full restitution. But he will do more. He has offered to submit statements which will criminate and send to prison Sweeny, Tweed and Hall."

"Has he done it or merely promised to do it?"

"I guess he has done it. The committee have the whole evidence in their hands."

"Then it is intended to save Connolly from the consequences of his crimes so that his rivals in the Ring may be punished as they deserve. Is that it, Mr. Foley?"

"Not by any means! There will be

whatever, or with any of the infamous Ring. My impression is that the whole four will have to go to State Prison."

"Then Connolly has not turned state's evidence exactly, but is so overwhelmed with shame that he is anxious to make restitution and abide the verdict of the courts in his case?"

"That's about it," answered Mr. Foley, and after nodding meaningly continued:—"Connolly won't go to prison, if he does go, without taking with him the rest of the gang."

"So, then, you think that the power of the Tammany Ring is effectually broken?"

"I am quite confident that it is. Look at the crowd. They are blundering about in despair, while we are preparing our case—the case of the citizens against them. They are utterly powerless. Hall is the worst off of the lot. For many years to my certain knowledge he was for the other three of the Ring. When they wanted him they sent for him, and he had to come. He was a tool, but a willing tool. I am sure his pickings were light compared to those of the others; but that he had pickings we can prove. Good Lord! just think of the Chief Magistrate of the city, sworn to guard the interests of the people, signing away six millions of money to a lot of villains in a few minutes, without examining the papers he signed. And for nothing? Oh, pshaw!"

"But, Mr. Foley, you

against the Mayor and the other city and county officers."

"No, sir; I'm not particularly. As a taxpayer and citizen I want to have a good government, and I believe and know the members of the Ring I have named to be a set of corrupt scoundrels. I am heartily glad that it was my action which initiated the movement against them."

After some further conversation the reporter withdrew, leaving Mr. Foley to the enjoyment of his private business affairs.

THE COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY.

Meeting in the Chamber of Commerce—Ex-Judge Pierrepont's Remarks—Resolutions in Support of Mr. A. H. Green—A Committee Presents Them—Speeches by Chairman Stebbins, Comptroller Connolly and Ex-Mayor Havemeyer.

About forty members of the now famous Committee of Seventy assembled in the meeting room of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday, shortly after twelve o'clock, and at once proceeded to business. Mr. Henry G. Stebbins, President of the Seventy, occupied the chair. After the usual warning that all present who were not members of the Committee would be required to withdraw, reports of the several sub-committees were read and approved. A member then addressed the meeting in

and proposed the following resolutions:—

Resolved, That we congratulate the citizens and taxpayers of the city of New York upon the appointment of Andrew H. Green to the office of Deputy Comptroller for the assurance it gives of an honest and intelligent administration of the finances of the city in the immediate future.

Resolved, That if the Mayor, in his recent request for the resignation of Mr. Connolly, was actuated by a desire to fill his place by a man of fitness and fidelity he could not have made a happier choice than the selection of Mr. Green, so well known to the community for his spotless integrity and able and honest management of the public trusts heretofore confided to him.

Resolved, That we call upon all good citizens, by their moral support, to sustain Mr. Andrew H. Green in his present position as guardian of the public funds of the city.

Resolved, That the Committee will aid Mr. Green pecuniarily and by counsel to the extent of our power in all lawful ways to retain the position in which, fortunately for the people, he has been placed in this trying epoch of our municipal affairs.

The resolutions were duly seconded.

Ex-Judge EDWARDS PIERREPONT then rose and said that he supported the resolutions. It was necessary that the action of the Comptroller should be sustained by the Committee. He had nothing whatever to say for Mr. Connolly nor any of his confederates of the Ring, and he had no intention of asking for him any particular consideration; but his voluntary action in submitting his accounts to the scrutiny of the committee of citizens and his readiness to answer questions deserve favorable mention. Especially was his action, in appointing Mr. Andrew H. Green, and a gentleman, to act for him pending investigation into his conduct worthy of remark. The condition of the city and county finances had long warranted decided action on the part of the citizens, for every department was well known to be outrageously corrupt. The peculations of the Ring were evidently flagrant, and were such as to call for instant investigation and remedy. Andrew H. Green, he continued, has always been a man whose integrity was unquestioned and in whom for years the people have had the most implicit reliance, so far as his honesty and probity were concerned. With them we, too, are satisfied, and he is just the man who should have the investigation of the city accounts. No politician, be he lawyer or merchant, can take any exception to his being

AN HONEST DEMOCRAT

DEPUTY COMPTROLLER

because of his character—that is beyond cavil. Again, Mr. Green has always been identified with the dominant party, the democrats. Therefore, no objection can be raised to his appointment on the ground of his politics or because of his being a republican. After all, and more than all, he is an honorable, upright gentleman, from whom a truthful report may be expected. We must sustain him in his position at all hazards. If the Ring attempt to remove him by law we must meet and combat them with law: If they are determined to effect his removal by force we are prepared and will use force to protect him. We will meet

LAW WITH LAW AND FORCE WITH FORCE.

Loud cheers followed this last remark of the speaker.

The resolutions were then passed amid applause. Then Mr. Barrett observed that, inasmuch as the advice of Mr. Havemeyer to Mr. Connolly and Mr. Green seemed to have been solely a personal matter, it were just as well to appoint a committee of five from this Committee to wait upon Mr. Green and Mr. Connolly, to notify each of the purport and passage of the resolutions sustaining Mr. Green's appointment.

A COMMITTEE OF FIVE

gentlemen was then appointed to wait upon Mr. Green and present the resolutions. It was composed of the following named gentlemen:—Myer Stern, Edward Pierrepont, Jackson S. Schultz, Robert B. Roosevelt and Thomas A. Ledwith, and on motion the President, Vice-President and Secretary were added—Henry G. Stebbins, William F. Havemeyer and Roswell D. Hatch.

The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair.

The committee immediately started for the Comptroller's Office to present these resolutions to Mr. Green, and on their arrival there they were cordially received by that gentleman.

SPEECH OF MR. STEBBINS.

Mr. STEBBINS, the chairman of the committee, in presenting the resolutions, spoke in substance as follows:—

Mr. GREEN—I am entrusted with the gratifying duty of presenting to you the resolutions passed this day at a meeting of citizens who represent the meeting held at the Cooper Institute September 4, and known as the Citizen Committee of Seventy. These resolutions and the action of the committee to-day have grown out of your late appointment as Deputy Comptroller, and the very deep interest felt by your fellow citizens in your selection for

of that office. It is a source of great satisfaction to me personally, knowing you as well as I do, to be made the medium of stating to you the cordial and earnest unanimity with which these resolutions were passed, testifying, as they do, to the high opinion entertained by your fellow-citizens of your great ability and unimpeachable integrity, demonstrated in many important and highly onerous public duties. Nothing, I am sure, would have been more grateful to you had you been present and witnessed these unqualified evidences of the estimation in which you are held by men of both political parties.

EX-MAYOR HAVEMEYER'S REMARKS.

Mr. HAVEMEYER then took the floor and said that he had known the Comptroller, Richard B. Connolly, for many years, and he for one did not believe that he was the only or the biggest rogue in the Ring. From the highest to the lowest they had

ALL HAD THEIR "RAKE"

from the city treasury and the biggest share did not fall to the lot of Mr. Connolly. When the explosion occurred the Comptroller went to him (Havemeyer) immediately for advice and he (the speaker) proffered advice, with the condition, however, that, whether palatable or otherwise, Connolly should accept and act upon it. The latter, having unlimited confidence in his friend, agreed, and the advice given was to appoint Mr. Andrew H. Green as deputy, with the powers of the chief, as already known. The Comptroller expressed his utmost willingness at the time to do this and seemed to have much less than some other members of the Ring. And while Mr. Havemeyer did not endorse Richard B. Connolly as a perfectly honest man, he was willing to leave the financial interests of the city in his and Mr. Green's hands pending this investigation, and he was not willing to see him made a scapegoat of to shield greater rascals. Mr. Green was also complimented by the speaker.

SLIPPERY DICK'S CONFESSION.

While this little speech was being delivered the Comptroller (who had been absent when the committee entered his office) came in and heard the closing remarks and promptly responded. He said he did not consider himself immaculate, but he knew and believed that there were about the City Hall. They had tried to shield their own rascality by throwing him overboad; but he had no idea of allowing himself to be made the scapegoat for the sins of Tammany. He acknowledged he had sins enough of his own to bear, and he sometimes felt scarcely able to stand up under the burden; but he would not go under without taking with him some of those who are now trying to get rid of him. He was ready and willing, he said, to hold his ground and to abide the result of the investigation of the citizens and taxpayers' committees, and would not shirk such punishment as the law might impose upon him. He cheerfully offered the fullest and freest access of the committees to all the books and vouchers of his department.

At the close of

THE COMPTROLLER'S REMARKS

Mr. Green briefly replied to the spirit of the resolutions which the committee had presented. It is understood that Mr. Green has mastered the combinations of all the safes in the Finance Department, and taken ample precautions against another theft of vouchers during his administration.

The Committee of Seventy desire the representatives of the press to understand that the refusal to admit them to its sessions does not arise from any discourtesy to themselves or their papers, but rather because the premature publication of much of their proceedings would naturally and inevitably tend to defeat the very objects of the investigation upon which they have entered. The secretary or his assistant will always most cheerfully furnish the press with any news of interest to the public and not detrimental to the committee's investigation.

On this action of Mr. Connolly the Evening Post has the following:—

At the close of these proceedings Comptroller Connolly entered the room. In conversation with the committee he said he had been obliged to ask for advice. He went to a friend—ex-Mayor Havemeyer—and not to an enemy. Mr. Havemeyer asked him if he would follow his advice if he gave it. He told him he would. He said, "Appoint Andrew H. Green your deputy, and then throw open your office for investigation." He had followed that advice. There were men in the city government who wished to destroy him to save themselves. He did not propose to be sacrificed to save any one, and the citizens should know all the workings of the office, and who were interested in them.

THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

The Joint Investigators Have a Field Day—Two of Them Speak of Deputy Comptroller Green—Warren and a Mysterious Ledger—John Hardy, of the High Joint, Interviewed.

The recent turnover of political parties seems to have thrown the

composed of Aldermen and citizens, into the shade, and not one of them yesterday was disposed to be a "shadow." At an early hour yesterday morning a representative of the HERALD "threw himself around loose" in the "Latin quarter" of the new Court House, which, it is claimed, has cost millions of money. At that time not a veteran of the investigating committee was present, although, allegorically speaking, it was learned that William A. Booth, the chairman of the "high joint," had been there at an earlier hour, and had issued his orders for the day.

In the rooms of the Supervisors, where the committees are supposed to meet, the only persons found were Fullerton, McGowan, King and other attaches, who were later reinforced by Captain Young, the fat boy, who fills the position of Secretary of the Board of Supervisors. In response to queries the answer came—

"Don't know anything about this committee, do you?"

"Yes; I know that Booth was here this morning. Where is he now?"

An attaché was in the act of answering, when an Alderman slipped into the breech, and,

DRAWING UP HIS PUGILISTIC FISTS,

said, mildly,

"The committee are at work."

"What committee?" asked the reporter. "Do you speak of the high joint or the 'subs,'"

"I speak of all. They are all at work—have been at work all day, and will remain at work until after the election."

"Until after the election?" queried the reporter, "what do you mean by that?"

"That this excitement will not terminate until after the November election, when all will be quiet. That is seven weeks hence. It will then be satisfactory to all parties who are good democrats."

Another Alderman was sitting with his feet resting upon the cushions of the new Court House, and up to this time had maintained a happy neutrality.

The reporter ventured to ask the Alderman of the Joint High Commission—

"It is said that

GREEN, OF THE PARK COMMISSION, IS AN HONEST MAN.

He it is who succeeds Storrs as Deputy Comptroller. It is strange that none of the papers say aught against him."

The quiet Alderman at once jumped from his seat and seizing a morning two cent paper of no reputation in the community exclaimed:—

"Read this."

The reporter, who had read it, asked the Alderman to read it, and he read it.

The other Alderman laughed and remarked:—

"Green's an honest man. I tell you he has made money ever since he has been in public life. When I was a youngster—I am now nearly forty years old—Green was a school trustee in the Fourteenth ward. He was a good trustee; but when he became a Park Commissioner he used his vote for a purpose, and his

THREE VOTES COST THE CITY THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

He is a pretty man to be Comptroller. I don't ask you to take my word for Green's record; take the official reports of the Park Commission. He is a sweet fellow to throw dirt at Sweeny."

Later in the day, after Ledwith, James O'Brien, Havemeyer and many others had bored Green and Booth's high joint and "subs" could not be found, at 3:45 Warren, the expert of the high joint, and a light-haired youth repaired to one of the wings of the Comptroller's office and were ushered into the presence of

named Bostwick, who had the custody of certain ledgers. For fifteen minutes Warren, the light-haired hero, who will be referred to hereafter, and Bostwick were engaged in examining the ledgers. Bostwick turned over the leaves, Warren made memoranda and the light-haired youth looked on and said nothing. A HERALD reporter was near by and observed that as Bostwick turned over certain leaves the light-haired youth suddenly put his hand down and

TWO PAGES WERE TURNED BACK.

Between the folds of the ledger were found a half sheet pasted in, which Warren, the expert, carefully scanned, to the discomfiture of Bostwick, who possibly was not aware of the

they were admiring.

Later in the day the HERALD reporter had pleasant chats with various Aldermen of the committee and other political lights, and finally, finding that Booth and all the citizens of the committee could not be found about the Court House, as a dernier resort, repaired to the office of ex-Alderman John Hardy, clerk of the High Joint Committee.

"Hardy, I have been hunting the high joint to-day," said the reporter. "You are its clerk; do you know anything?"

"Nothing," said Hardy, looking very wise.

"In that event, may I say that I have had a hint that Booth and the high joint have, in view of recent complications, decided to until after the Committee of Seventy, who have just gone in, with Tom Ledwith as the rear guard, show their hands?"

Hardy, clerk of the "high joint," left his chair suddenly and exclaimed,

"Sir, it is a mistake."

"Then," said the reporter, "may I ask where the members of that committee are?"

"All about," said Hardy, "at work—have been here all day."

"But," ventured the reporter, "I have been here all day, and with the exception of yourself, Pearsall and certain Aldermen, I have seen none of them."

"They were here, nevertheless," said Hardy. "Warren has been at work all day."

"Yes, Warren has been at work. He is always at work. But, Hardy, can you tell me who that light-haired gent, who searched the ledgers of Mr. Bostwick, and detected a pasted page, is?"

Hardy, who up to this time was remarkably non-committal, at once left his chair and said:—

"Remain here, and I will go and see Bostwick and find out."

Hardy left the reporter took Hardy's seat, and twentyminutes later Hardy returned and announced that the only man who was in the presence of Bostwick, with Warren, as far as he could learn, was Mr. Kennedy, President of the Bank of Commerce. It is problematical that Mr. Robert Lennox Kennedy, of the Bank of Commerce, was the light-haired youth who found in Bostwick's ledger the sub-page.

But to return to the active work of the committee. All the sub-committees were in session yesterday, but each member of them positively refused to divulge the secrets of what had transpired inside. It is a little singular that the high joint, whose members had proclaimed last week that an "open session" would be held on Monday, did not meet, and that after announcing an open session for Wednesday, at two P. M., Clerk Hardy was yesterday instructed by citizen Booth to announce that the "open session" will occur on Thursday, at two o'clock P. M. When Thursday comes it is very likely that a later day will be set for divulging the work of the Investigating Committee.

AT THE COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE.

General Absence of Excitement—Story of the Feline Visitors—Interview with the Comptroller—"Little Mac" with "a Head on Him."

The difference between yesterday and the day before was something wonderful to note in the offices in the Department of Finance. Behind the partitions there were not so many clerks as usual. None had been discharged, but there were not so many attending to the business. That they were not present was very evident. The portly Storrs was not at the office till late in the afternoon, and the County Bureau and Stock Department were comparatively deserted. The outside delegations were also very slim and there was nothing like the excitement or crowds of Monday. True there were a few members of the St. Patrick Mutes on hand. Counsellor Callaghan was around and had an eye to business. Captain Dolan was also around; his mustache was as long or longer than usual, but the massive blackthorn which he sported on Monday was not to be seen. The unusual scarcity of attendants and hangers-on was accounted for by the fact that they were

ATTENDING FUNERALS—

some at the funeral of Stock Clerk Dyckman's daughter and others at the funeral of Judge Stuart, whose efforts had probably saved many of themselves or their friends from the cells, if not the gallows. Early in the morning, however, Comptroller Connolly and Mr. Green were on hand and attending to business. A HERALD reporter had an interview with Mr. Connolly in the County Auditor's Bureau shortly after noon. The Comptroller stood consulting with County Auditor Lynes, and although looking somewhat anxious was nevertheless quite pleasant. His profile resembled that of Washington perhaps more than ever, and he carried himself with a nonchalance most extraordinary in view of the exciting and troublous incidents connected with the situation. When he had completed his interview with Mr. Lynes he granted the HERALD reporter an audience and the following conversation took place:—

"Well, Mr. Comptroller, how is it to-day?"

"Oh, elegant, sir, elegant. We are here you see attending to business and afraid of nothing."

"Have you seen General McClellan's views in regard to his appointment?"

"Yes, I have. I think its solid."

"A great many people discredit it, don't they?"

"Oh, I don't know. I don't see why they should. McClellan is no fool."

"Has there been anything unusual going on in relation to the situation?"

"No; nothing. There has been no attempt made to get us out, and I don't think there will be any."

"Whom do you suppose the Mayor will appoint now, since General McClellan has declined, if he will appoint anybody?"

"I don't think he will try it."

"What do you think of the committee which met last night?"

"Oh! that's all right; that will go ahead."

"Are you in with it?"

The only answer to this was a knowing wink of the left eye, which seemed quite impressive behind his gold-bowed spectacles.

"Is there anything I can say for you more than has already been said?"

"No, only that we are attending to business."

"What about those documents that it is said Mr. Green furnished the committee with?"

"We have placed all the documents, books, papers and everything else at the service of the committee."

"What about that consultation it is said you had with Judge Barrett and others in relation to preparing charges against Hall and Sweeny and others?"

"Oh, nothing. The newspapers get up a good many things that I don't know about. Charley (turning to Charles Underwood O'Connell), did you tell him about the cats? Just tell him that; it's a good story."

Bidding the reporter good day he withdrew. Then Mr. O'Connell, brushing out his neatly trimmed beard and striking a position, related as follows

THE STORY OF THE CATS:—

"Once upon a time—a few nights ago—there was a cat—a black cat—black as the ace of spades. The office was closed, and we were here at work, straightening things up, when, what should we see but a big black cat jump through that hole in the pane of glass (pointing to the hole the "burglars" made). She came in with a bounce and a kitten in her mouth, and she came around inside here and left the kitty—we didn't know where. We looked upon it as a "voucher" of her respectability, and did not interfere with her. She went out again as she had come, but without the kitten, and shortly returned with another; and, then again, another, and another.

MORE VOUCHERS

of her fidelity to her offspring. Where she came from we do not know; whither she went we know not; but she is still around the office pursuing the even tenor of her way. Nobody interferes with her, and she interferes with nobody. I am not superstitious, but the Comptroller regards it as an omen of good luck."

ANOTHER FUNNY EPISODE

occurred yesterday morning. Mr. Cleveland, one of the bookkeepers, started to go for lunch. In size and stature he resembles General McClellan. He has a handsome aquiline nose, an elegant mustache, a clear, piercing eye. He has a bad scar on his forehead, where he has been nursing an elegant boil. (Evidence of corruption in the Comptroller's Office.) One of the miniature Gallowglasses who lined the hallway said, "there goes

LITTLE MAC, WITH 'A HEAD ON HIM.'

He's just been up to see Green and Connolly, and they've laid him out." Doctor Fleming was seen rushing into the office, pulling his nobby side whiskers in nervous style, and he must have been sent to fix up Little Mac's wounds. This, of course, was enough to start a crowd after him. The bootblacks caught up the cry and persisted in asking the gentleman if he did not want a shine. They ran ahead of him, stared into his face and alarmed him considerably. He struggled through, however, not knowing how great a hero he had been made in a few minutes.

CALLERS ON THE COMPTROLLER

were many, and included a number of leading merchants and others who are in sympathy with the Committee of Seventy. A delegation from this committee called during the afternoon and presented to the Comptroller an address and resolutions, which may be found in another column.

Chief Clerk Justus Storrs was engaged during the day in preparing a roll of the attaches of the office, the duties and salaries, and laid it before Mr. Green, at whose request it was compiled. Beyond this nothing more than ordinary occurred during the entire day.

AT THE MAYOR'S OFFICE.

The Mayor "On Exhibition"—General McClellan Declines the Proffered Post—Opinion of Corporation Counsel O'Gorman—Mayor Hall Virtually Yielding to the Situation.

Mayor Hall appeared at his office at the usual hour looking as hearty and happy as ever he did. He wore a bran new suit of check stuff, a check shirt and a necktie of check silk. It was noticed that the tiles in the City Hall corridors, over which he wended his way to the office, looked more checkered than usual. Might all these be considered physical emblems of the political situation? Contrary to usual custom the doors of the Mayor's office were thrown wide open, and visitors passed in, were listened to and disposed of, in old-time business manner. When the HERALD reporter called the "member from Sligo" was awaiting his time to interview the Mayor, and inside the inner room was Michael Madigan, member of Parliament, from the First district. Michael had in company with him a venerable young man. They interviewed the Mayor briefly; and the gentleman from down town being assured by the Mayor that it was all right, withdrew. A conversation then took place as follows:—

"I see, Mr. Mayor, you are keeping open house to-day?"

"Yes; I was said to be crazy, and all that, so I thought I had better place myself on exhibition for a day or so. People need not be afraid to come near me, because you see I am

IN FULL CHECK"

(alluding to his habiliments). At this two or three who were in the room smiled aloud.

"What do you think of that interview with McClellan published in the English newspaper this morning?"

"I never read that paper—that is, I have not read it in over seven months. I don't do it on principle."

"Well, it says that General McClellan told you he would not take the position, and that he approves of the appointment of Mr. Green and eulogizes him as a most excellent man for the position."

"I expect a letter from General McClellan every moment now in relation to the affair, and also an opinion from Mr. O'Gorman."

"Suppose McClellan should refuse to accept, will you appoint somebody else?"

"I don't know."

"William R. Travers, William R. Travers, he is the man," broke in the member from Sligo.

"Why," said Mayor Hall quietly, "is he your broker?"

"Oh!" said Sligo, "he's a splendid man for the place, and if I had the giving of it I would give it to him."

At this juncture the following letters from General McClellan and Richard O'Gorman were handed to the Mayor. He scanned them over and then handed them to Mr. Cardozo to be given to the reporters.

GENERAL M'CLELLAN'S LETTER

is as follows:—

NEW YORK, Sept. 18, 1871.

Hon. A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor of the city of New York:—

DEAR SIR—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th inst. conveying to me the very flattering offer of the Comptrollership of this city.

While I would willingly render a service to the public, were it in my power in an emergency like the present, nevertheless a due regard to my public and private duties at this time compels me to decline the appointment. With my sincere thanks for the compliment you have paid me, I am, very truly, yours,

GEORGE B. McCLELLAN.

To Hon. A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor:—

MY DEAR SIR—I regret that my absence from the city on Monday has prevented my seeing you as you desired. I have since then carefully examined the cases, opinions and memoranda submitted by you as affecting your future action in the matter of the office of Comptroller of the city of New York. It seems to me that you should be governed in the matter more by considerations of expediency and sound policy than by those merely of strict legal rights or power.

Even on the assumption that you possess the power to remove a person holding that office, or that a vacancy unquestionably existed and that a new appointment made by you be primarily upheld by the Court, there is nevertheless, as you inform me, an antagonistic claimant who would have the right to appeal from the decision of a single judge against it and who would no doubt prosecute such appeal.

The law's delay is proverbial, and during the progress of the litigation, at a very critical period of the financial condition of the city, already complicated by one lawsuit and injunction, there would be presented the indecorous spectacle of two persons claiming to be entitled the office of Comptroller, each advised to defend his own claim and contest that of his rival. From this state of things great confusion would inevitably ensue, and great damage to the city treasury and to the public creditors, who would be seriously and not unreasonably dissatisfied at the delay which would be sure to occur in the payment of just and legitimate claims.

If it had been your desire to bring about the accession of a new incumbent into the office of Comptroller, you seem to me to have exhausted every legal expedient that could have suggested itself for that purpose, even at the risk of some apparent inconsistency.

Under all the circumstances, therefore, and with the opinion of the eminent jurist, Charles O'Connor, before me, I cannot advise you to take any step that would lead to complicated and mischievous litigation.

The refusal of General McClellan to accept the position of Comptroller, of which I am informed, is an additional reason for such a conclusion on my part.

Legal discussion might, as you intimate, bring up questions of law which you think could not have been presented to Mr. O'Conor's consideration. Among them I select from your memoranda these:—Whether the Comptroller, having powers and duties conferred on him by many general laws other than the laws of 1870 and 1871, commonly called the charter, and as a member of various committees can transfer these powers and duties to a subordinate by virtue of a section in an act which may be regarded as a "local act," or whether that section may not possibly be unconstitutional in so far as it permits the Comptroller to relinquish not only charter powers but all other powers, or whether an abdication of all functions beyond and embraced in the charter may not, ipso facto, amount to a resignation and create a vacancy.

These and various other questions suggested to me are no doubt open to discussion, and it is, I think, probable that a legal contest in this matter would present novel and important considerations as to the law of implied resignation, vacancy and removal; in addition to those which the eminent jurist to whom I have referred may have thought it necessary to advert in his opinion.

But, returning to the question of expediency and sound policy, which I think of most importance in this case, and laying aside these legal questions for the present, as head of the law department I now advise you not to make another appointment, to withdraw your notice to the various departments and to treat with Mr. Connolly as Comptroller.

If you do not think him as entitled to fill the office de jure, by treating him as Comptroller at least de facto, you will adopt a course which is, in my opinion, necessary to prevent financial difficulties, complications, and the continuance of that public excitement and sense of insecurity which a prolonged legal controversy in this case would inevitably intensify.

It should be borne in mind, also, that long before that controversy could be determined a new Legislature will have assembled, who will then be able more calmly and deliberately to consider any matters connected with this case which may be properly submitted for their consideration. I remain, my dear sir, yours faithfully,

RICHARD O'GORMAN.

FERRETTING OUT THE FRAUDS

by process of law. The letter was immediately answered by the Mayor, and from the correspondence it will be seen that the Corporation counsel and the Mayor play a sort of battledore and shuttlecock business with the question. The correspondence is as follows:—

LAW DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF COUNCIL TO THE CORPORATION,
CITY OF NEW YORK, Sept. 19, 1871.

Hon. A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor, &c.:—

MY DEAR MAYOR—Since the decision of Judge Barnard, in Foley vs. the Mayor and Others, in which he gave a quasi judicial sanction to the rumors which have been rife in this city, of gross extravagance in some of the bills presented by various contractors, and paid to them out of the funds of the city, it has seemed to me proper and necessary that some effective legal steps should be taken by the Corporation to recover these moneys if sufficient evidence of fraud can be obtained to sustain action. I have been so incessantly occupied for the last few days in attending to official business—writing opinions, &c.—which has accumulated during my absence in court, on the Foley case that I have not been able to devote my mind specially to the question; but I think it a question of pressing importance, and I beg to call to it the attention of you as chief executive officer of the city, and to ask you for your instructions in the premises.

Yours faithfully,

RICHARD O'GORMAN,
Counsel to the Corporation.

The following is the Mayor's response:—

NEW YORK, Sept. 19, 1871.

MY DEAR SIR—You are the head of the Law Department. Yours is the full discretion to bring any action at law which you deem it best to commence for promoting the good name or better prosperity of the city, or of its treasury. And I have such entire confidence in your judgment and experience that I leave the matter within that discretion. I know that you will do your duty, when you have ascertained it, regardless of such consequences as fall outside of duty's sphere. Very truly, your obedient servant,

A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor.

Mr. RICHARD O'GORMAN, Counsel to the Corporation.

The letters having been disposed of the interview was renewed.

"Do you intend, Mr. Mayor, to accept Mr. O'Gorman's opinion as binding?"

"Well, General Grant accepted Attorney General Akerman's advice when he didn't believe he was right."

"Then we are to understand that you will recognize Mr. Green——"

"Nothing is to be understood."

"Have you been notified of Mr. Green's appointment?"

"Well, I have had no official notification. Heretofore, whenever Mr. Connolly wished to delegate his powers to anybody, he would send notice to the departments, and especially to this office, that he had delegated Mr. So-and-So, and he would be empowered to sign checks, and his signature would, therefore, be respected. I don't know why he has deviated from his usual custom in this particular."

"Mr. O'Gorman's opinion is binding, is it not, as he is the legal adviser?"

"He is the adviser of the city government. If General McClellan had accepted the post I would, I think, fight it through, because I think he is a man worth fighting for. But with any other, in view of the turn affairs have taken, it would scarcely be worth while to go into a litigation that may, and undoubtedly would, run through months and do perhaps a great deal of damage in one way or another."

After some further desultory conversation the reporter withdrew and left the Chief Executive to the mercy of a number of eager interviewers.

INTERVIEW WITH EX-MAYOR HAVEMEYER.

All Over With the Ring—Hall to be Defeated—Interview with Judge Havemeyer.

Last night a reporter called at the residence of ex-Mayor Havemeyer, 835 West Fourteenth street, to get his views on the present aspect of the difficulty between the Comptroller and the Tammany Ring. Mr. Havemeyer politely invited the reporter into a boudoir, and lighting a lamp which diffused a delicious odor, invited him to ask any questions he pleased relative to the action of the Committee of Seventy to which he belonged, remarking that honest citizens had nothing to conceal from newspaper men, in a general way, as to what they were doing and intending to do and how matters were progressing. He thought the public had a right to know which.

REPORTER—Well, sir, I want to know first of all your opinion as to whether Mr. Connolly will give way under the pressure?

MR. HAVEMEYER—I do not think so. I have no idea that he will, even considering his personal determination. What should he give way for? There is no reason why he should give way.

REPORTER—Then, you think, sir, that Mayor Hall will come off second best?

MR. HAVEMEYER—I cannot tell; it is the luck of the fight; my opinion is that he will be defeated as a matter of course.

REPORTER—Do the Committee of Seventy at all anticipate the use of physical force against the Comptroller?

MR. HAVEMEYER—That altogether depends on the line of action the Mayor and party are going to take. They may if they like. All things are possible sometimes, but to say they are probable is very different. Everything depends on the stand they take.

REPORTER—When the committee were endorsing Mr. Green at the Chamber of Commerce to-day were they aware that Mr. Green considered himself aggrieved by the Tammany Ring?

MR. HAVEMEYER—All I know is that he was a member of the Park Commissioners. The Committee of Seventy endorsed him because he is an honest man and likely to be economical in his new position, and a faithful and honest administrator of public affairs. He is a member of the Park Commission. How they treated him I don't know. He is not answerable, at all events, for that department, whether he disagrees with them or not. I am sure I will not be governed by any feeling arising from matters on that position.

REPORTER—I had the pleasure of interviewing Mr. Green the other night, and considered him an honest man. But what do you think will be the issue of the present municipal dead-lock.

MR. HAVEMEYER—Dead-lock is a strong term. If Mayor Hall makes a fight on the Comptroller's Office that is a matter which will be determined by the courts and by the rights of each party.

REPORTER—Do you the Mayor or the other side will invoke the aid of Judge Barnard? What about ejecting the Comptroller?

MR. HAVEMEYER—I cannot tell anything about it. But I do not think anything can touch the Comptroller. He is in his office legally and properly, and if he has committed any misdemeanor the rest are equally to blame. The very fact that when called upon to resign he refused to yield shows well for him. He came to me for advice, and I told him to hold on and put Mr. Green there, as every knows, and he did properly in that.

REPORTER—Were the members of the Committee of Seventy disappointed or otherwise at the "declination," as the newspapers call it, of General McClellan?

MR. HAVEMEYER—They had no opinion one way or the other. They were perfectly satisfied with Mr. Green, and as you were at our meeting to-day, you know that we called on Mr. Green this evening and expressed our confidence in him.

REPORTER—Did it ever occur, to your knowledge, that any of the Committee of Seventy suspected that Mr. Connolly and the rest of the Ring in their newspaper warfare were playing into each other's hands?

MR. HAVEMEYER (decisively)—No, sir; not in the least. That is impossible. No suspicion attaches to either of collusion to effect any object.

REPORTER—Were the republican members of the Committee of Seventy to-day perfectly satisfied with Mr. Green?

MR. HAVEMEYER—This is no party question. They are all united, republicans and democrats, to effect the object they are all interested in. We have nothing to do with talk of parties affiliating with Tammany. Whigs, democrats or republicans, we have confidence in Mr. Green.

REPORTER—You know that Tammany is strongly intrenched, how do you propose to capture their position?

MR. HAVEMEYER—Well, we go about it in this way. They are, as we know, behind their ramparts, with plenty of provisions and sinews of war. We commence with a big army—the Committee of Seventy. Then we don't march up to the breastworks and let Sweeney and the rest of the fellows take us in flank—we know better than that. Instead of storming the ramparts we undermine their position, and by G—d, sir, we'll blow these rascals up. (Here the ex-Mayor laughed heartily.)

REPORTER—I must say I admire your generalship; but are you sure of victory?

MR. HAVEMEYER—Certain. Their hangers-on are demoralized; the prestige of victory is with us; we have stopped the supplies and the enemy will have to evacuate and let honest men take possession.

The reporter then bade the venerable gentleman adieu.

WHAT JUDGE LEDWITH SAYS.

He Thinks Mayor Hall Will Resign—The Young Democracy Jubilant.

The Young Democracy are in a state of jubilee over the collapse of Tammany. They fought so hard to be something or other and got so badly whipped that the object of attack, now so humbled and beaten, is to them the source of

"SWEET REVENGE."

As is well known, Judge Ledwith is and has been for some time past one of the bitterest of Tammany's foes, and none of the "strikers" feel more jubilant than he over the city's difficulties. His court room is daily the centre of attraction for all the "boys" of the Young Democracy, and the Hon. Thomas feels quite at home when surrounded by men who know a thing or two about the corruptions of the Ring, and who rejoice to circulate the evil of which they are cognizant. Among the daily visitors are Tom Costigan and Pat Anthony, both hard workers in the political field, and each a model of punctuality in his respective line—not to mention a host of others from whom the Judge receives reports of

HOW THE OLD THING WORKS.

A HERALD reporter, in a conversation with the Judge yesterday, ascertained his views as to the pending struggle:—

REPORTER—What do you think of the trouble, Judge?

JUDGE—Well, I rejoice to know that the thieves are brought to bay. They were at it a long time, and, to say the truth, I did not expect they would be caught so soon.

REPORTER—I presume the Young Democracy share your feeling on the matter?

JUDGE—Yes; we are all glad that this exposure has come. The public now see that the Young Democracy was right when they demanded the expulsion of these men from power. It was plain during our contest with them that they were a pack of rascals, and we would have beaten them then had it not been that they bribed and tricked.

REPORTER—How do you think this muss will end?

JUDGE—My opinion is that Connolly will drive Hall to the wall. I have no doubt that Hall will be forced to resign. He cannot hold out against the attacks of Connolly when the latter is in earnest; for the weapons against him are too many, too sharp and too keen. Connolly will show himself to have this game in his own hands.

AT THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

The "Boss" in Town, and Pursued by a Big Crowd of Friends—A Few of the Assemblymen on Hand to Have a Talk.

The vestibule adjoining Mr. Tweed's private office, at the Department of Public Works, yesterday, was crowded from an early hour with the friends of the "Boss" and a few bakers' dozen of gentlemen who are always on hand at the department to ask favors and charities when they have an idea the "master of the house" is about. Among other callers the great legislative adjourner, Jim Campbell, sauntered into one of the back offices during the afternoon. So did the never-to-be-forgotten Carey, who was so well sustained in his place in the Legislature last year by the efforts of one Twombly. Jim

WANTED TO SEE THE "BOSS"

the worst way, and Carey was just as anxious as any one of the many who are clamorous to get an audience in room No. 4. Ex-Coroner Flynn also put in an appearance, while Carey was trying to make one of the messengers understand that if he didn't see the "Boss" in less than five minutes he (the "Boss") would have to go away without having the honor of being talked to. The messenger appeared to be wonderfully impressed, and Mr. Carey, it is supposed, was successful in the end. It was rumored that he had an important project on foot, by which he hoped to settle the difficulties of the Comptroller's Office, and only wanted the "Boss" to give it his countenance to make it a triumph for all hands. If such was the case Mr. Carey was very reticent on the subject.

The crowd in the hallways were quite talkative, and spoke their minds freely about the doings in the Comptroller's office. One or two of them, small east side politicians, appeared to find considerable amusement in "jibing" a few of their friends who had attended the Apollo Hall meeting the night previous.

"Well, Tommy," said one, "that was rough on your gang, wasn't it?" And Tommy thus spoken to turned on his heel and looked at his interlocutor straight in the face as he jerked out:—

"Well, what gang? We wasn't up there to do nothing; we wasn't."

"Oh, no; guess not. Only went up there to see what it was all about; disinterested spectator; no hopes for the future; don't want to get an office, eh?"

"Why, look a here. That meeting was a fizzle, it was. D'ye suppose I'm goin' to jine them fellars what can't stick to one another even? I had enough of that last election."

"You folks went up then, didn't ye?"

"You bet; but we ain't agoin' to get caught again. I tell you that much."

"Then what were your fellows doing up there last night?"

"Lookin' on."

"What do the boys think about it?"

"They think the thing won't go down. Talk about uniting all the organizations against Tammany. Why it can't be done, no how. That meeting showed it. All these folks wanted was to get up a ring

ON THEIR OWN ACCOUNT.

Mooney's motion made the wire-pullers show their hands."

"How about the boys in your ward?"

"Why, the Fourteenth wouldn't have anything to do with this new-party idea. They say it is a sham. I've been among 'em a good deal to-day, and they're goin' to stick to Tammany through thick and thin. We got enough of the Young Democracy folks last year. They hav'nt got a decent man among 'em who knows how to lead."

"What about Jimmy O'Brien?"

"Well, I did think Jimmy had something in him until last night; but I swear he showed what poor stuff he's made of. He had a good chance to make a big thing for himself, and help some of his old friends at the same time; but he did not have the head to see through the plans that were proposed. He can't manipulate worth a curse."

At this point the HERALD reporter succeeded in getting from one of the back rooms into the hallway and reaching the entrance to Mr. Tweed's private office. The "Boss" was busily engaged at his desk signing a pile of letters which his clerk had just written out. He beckoned his visitor to a seat near at hand, greeting him with a pleasant "How d'ye do?" as he took his seat. The letters all signed, he turned his chair round and said,

"WELL," WHAT'S THE NEWS?"

The idea of the "Boss" asking what the news was of the reporter, who was in search of news at what he considered the fountain head, made him grin rather broadly and sorrowfully express his great regret that he did not know what the "news" was, but that he would be glad to find out then and there anything new about the rumpus in the Comptroller's Office.

The "Boss" smiled pleasantly as he wheeled his seat a little from the table, and replied,

"You ought to know all that's going on."

"Haven't you anything to say about the situation?"

"Why, no;" was the reply, and the "Boss" smiled pleasantly again, as he began to search among his papers for some missing document.

"You have no opinion to give as to what way the present difficulties will end?" persisted the reporter.

"No; they will end some time or other in some way;" and the "Boss" chuckled good humoredly.

This piece of information the reporter didn't exactly consider "news;" but he had to take it for anything he liked, for a few more ventures in the question line showed him that the "Boss" would not talk about the City Hall affairs, having evidently become heartily tired of the persistency with which he has of late been pursued by interviewers, and that he had determinedly resolved to keep mum. The visitor came to this conclusion, rose and bowed himself out, the "Boss," all smiles, bidding him, in his cheery way, a very goodby.

AT THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC PARKS.

All Quiet Along the Line—A Few Stragglers and No Excitement.

There was no fuss in or about the Department of Parks yesterday. In fact, all day long such a quiet pervaded the hallways and the passages leading to the office of the clerks that one of the foremen who dropped down from the Park during the forenoon for instructions got it into his head that he had made his way into and was about to go to a neighboring drug store and search in the Directory for the "Headquarters" number, when he happened to see Mr. Van Nort examining a lot of specimen plants in a back room. The day previous there had been considerable excitement and quite a crowd about the place; but somehow the bottom seemed to have fallen out of the rumpus tub yesterday, so far as the department was concerned, and nobody appeared to care whether school kept or not. The business of the office went on as usual. Barker was engaged all day with a bulky ledger in which the diggings and ploughings and measurings of the Park workmen were all rendered, and paid no attention whatever to anything that was happening across the street at the Comptroller's office. The clerks worked their way through their papers and journals as quietly as ever, and even the small boy who goes of errands and sees to it that nobody gets behind the railings unless he happens to have sent in his card and had it accepted beforehand had not a word to say about the Connolly row.

MR. SWEENY

put in an appearance bright and early and went directly into his private office, where he busied himself about the Central Park and its multiplicity of improvements. He was "visible" to every one of the few callers who came to see him, and confined his conversation strictly and exclusively to the business of the office. A HERALD reporter called upon him, among others, to find out if possible, first, what he thought about the city "situation." He found him, as usual, courteous and affable to the last degree, but when questioned as to what was his opinion of matters and things relating to the row he preserved

A DIGNIFIED SILENCE.

The fact is Mr. Sweeny was proof positive against interviewers. He received every one that came to pump him as graciously as could be, but when the pumping was started the conversation was dexterously made to enter into some channel as far removed from the "situation" as one of the poles is supposed to be from the other. It was in vain that the HERALD reporter exercised his ingenuity to draw him out—to make him say just one word about the row. Mr. Sweeny smiled blandly all the time, listened patiently to the opinions the reporter ventured to give in the hope of "hearing the other side," but that was the end of it. The other side did not make any reply.

Mr. Sweeny remained the greater part of the day at the office, and when he left he looked as cheerful and chatted as good humoredly as he passed out into the street as though Connolly had not done his best to rile his spirits and raise Cain generally with the party in the city.

POLITICAL SMALL TALK.

Ledwith Men, O'Brien Men and Small Fry Politicians Discussing the Downfall of the Ring in the Political Exchange.

Yesterday the demand for information was quite brisk, stimulated by rumors that "Connollys" and "Tweeds" were falling. About ten o'clock the market became easier, and the political brokers around the Court House became unusually agitated by the news that Connolly, to save himself, had promised, through his deputy, Mr. Green, to yield up all the papers on file in his office that could tend to criminate his partners in guilt. Then another relapse came, and there was a fair call for Sweeny, which steadily increased until late in the evening, when it was reported that the foreign exchange had fallen without any demand being made for purchase.

A HERALD reporter visited different places throughout the city during the day and evening for the purpose of feeling the public pulse and ascertaining the sentiment of the honest masses. General consternation reigned among the politicians at the threatened exposé which it is supposed will be published to-day of the alleged enormous frauds on the city treasury. Every one of these fellows' faces looked blank with horror and astonishment at the turn which things have taken.

The HERALD reporter, while making his visits, kept a diary of public feeling as the barometer as it rose and fell. We give the diary from actual observation.

TEN A. M. CITY HALL.

Four men, rather rough-looking fellows, are standing on the City Hall steps discussing the situation. One, with a large red blossom on his nose, says to his friend:—

"That meeting on Saturday settled them fellows that were working for Hall against Connolly. He's a tough man. Every Connolly man feels good this morning. He'll beat them yet and turn them overboard, I'll bet a hundred dollars."

STRONG O'BRIEN MAN.

"That was a bully meeting last night at Apollo Hall, on Broadway. Our fellows were there and had a good time. We worked for Tweed as hard as we could, but there was something wrong with Bob Roosevelt. A man can't tell which way he kicks. O'Brien is the only man to lead the fight against Tammany after all. He's got the fight in him and that's the kind of man we want.

EMPHATIC LEDWITH MAN—That's all damned humbug. O'Brien's working as hard as he can for Tweed and Connolly. He was the first fellow to give the stolen figures to the press, and although he is a strong advocate, if he is to be believed himself, he has done all in his power to break up the democratic party. He has endeavored, as well as he could, to identify the democratic party with fraud and thieving, and now, through Tweed, I suppose he expects to be rewarded with a Senatorship for his betrayal of trust. Why, I tell you, he is no better than this fellow O'Rourke, who has acted his part to the letter. Tweed cannot hope to be called a democrat any longer no more than Connolly. O'Brien made this fight against Connolly on the ground of honesty and prudence and justice, and now, how is it? Why he is hand and glove with Connolly, the very same man whom he had promised to place inside the walls of a prison before six weeks went by from the beginning of the fight.

STRONG O'BRIEN MAN—I tell you, O'Brien's the biggest man in this fight, and he's sure to win. Your man is too quiet and too backward when the brush comes, and no large party of democrats can ever take him up for any large office. We want a fighter to do anything, and Ledwith is not the man.

EMPHATIC LEDWITH MAN—I think you are mistaken about that. Where was there ever a better fight than that made by Ledwith in his own ward against Peter B. Sweeny? Talk as you please, that was a good fight. The Ledwith men had a meeting last night at the Sinclair House, and you can talk as much as you like about your Twenty-first ward meetings, and your barrels of flour and your tons of coal, but there was genuine enthusiasm in that meeting. John McCool, who used to be Register of the city, presided, and the enthusiasm was terrific. One hundred thousand dollars was guaranteed from the Sixteenth and Twentieth wards to place Judge Ledwith at the head of any organization that might be needed to bring reform into our city affairs.

STRONG O'BRIEN MAN—I have heard a good deal of this kind of talk about O'Brien giving the city and State into the hands of the republicans. If that happens whose fault is it but the men who have been standing right and left, as if they could never get enough? O'Brien had to defend himself as well others. If his enemies come to the wall who is to blame? I believe myself that the Legislature will go republican, and that all the police justices—Dowling, Ledwith, Shandley and the rest will be removed—and the city will be thrown into the hands of the republicans. That's the end of all this business, and it will be a good thing if it happens.

EMPHATIC LEDWITH MAN—Well, then, I suppose that every democrat ought to turn around and applaud O'Brien for his treason and help to elect him to some big office. For my part, I don't believe that honest democrats can trust O'Brien a dollar ever again in any cause.

TWELVE O'CLOCK M.—HOUSTON STREET AND BROADWAY.

At this well-known lounging place for bummers, loafers and gamblers there was a small knot of persons basking in the noonday sun who seemed quite excited over the flying rumors. Every few minutes a few of these hard-looking rascals would walk across the street, enter the drinking saloon, pour a little poison down their throats, and then emerge to "buzz" with each other over the events of the day. Said one fellow with a red moustache dyed black—

"What the h—l is this that they are giving out in Wall street this morning, that Connolly is going to 'squeal' and tell everything he knows? Did you hear about it, Hank?"

HANK THE HEELER—I don't know, but I suppose it's so. Them snoozers always weaken when there's any show for a fight.

SLINKEY MCGUFFIN—I understand O'Gorman has written a big long letter, full of jaw-breaking words, telling Hall he'd better git up and git. Hall ought to send him some of his tough Latting talk, and that might make him sick.

PETE, THE MUFFIN MAN—I don't think there ever was such a damned set of fools in the world as them fellows down at the City Hall. They are all at sea when there's any row, and a fellow ain't sure of his place a week when a fuss comes. I have kicked more heads off than I can count for some of the gang that's got the pull, and now when I ask them for a fence or a dollar they coolly tell me, as the head of my department told me this morning—that he'd have to "take me off the pay roll," as there was too much talk in the papers about the "office holders." How can a man have the heart to work for such people as these at a primary election or take a hand in a muss?

SLINKEY MCGUFFIN—It's no use stalking, boys, for it's all up. There's no more show for a fat thing. Well, I had a pull at it for four years, and I suppose the thing is clean gone now. But when I git into politics again I'm going on the winning side. The thing is played out, so let's go and get a drink.

The three ruffians disappeared at this moment into a rum shop and were not seen any more for the day.

At six o'clock in the evening it was pretty generally known all over town among the initiated that Connolly had betrayed his confederates of the Ring to the Committee of Seventy, and that Andrew H. Green was engaged up to a late hour the night before in rummaging among the loose documents among the archives of the Comptroller's office in ferreting out the most damning proofs of robbery and plunder. In every bar room in the city, last evening, where politicians do congregate, it was generally admitted that all was up for the Ring, and that nothing could be done to save them.

CONNOLLY'S FRIENDS.

Meeting of the Ward Delegates to Arrange for the Connolly Demonstration.

Last night the delegates from the several Connolly ward clubs met at the corner of Thirteenth street and University place for the purpose of appointing a chairman and a committee of seven to make arrangements for a procession and meeting en masse. The resolutions below were unanimously adopted, after which three cheers and a vote of thanks were given to the Eighth Ward Shannon Association, the Twenty-second Ward Independent Democratic Club, the Seventh Ward Limerick Guards and the Seventeenth Ward Shannon Association for the interest they manifested in the cause of Comptroller Connolly. All the wards in the city were represented but the Twelfth, their absence being ascribed to the fact that there was being held a mass meeting of the friends of Harry Genet in their ward. Coroner Soren made a speech and was warmly applauded, although he did not lacerate Mayor Hall sufficiently to the satisfaction of some of the hot-headed delegates.

Resolved, That we approve of the manly and firm course taken by Comptroller Connolly in defence of law and order and the sacred trust committed to his hands by the people as well as the charter passed by our State Legislature.

Resolved, That a chairman and a committee of seven be nominated to carry out the arrangements for the mass meeting and procession, which committee will confer with the several delegates from the various wards, with power to fix the time and place of said meeting and procession.

Resolved, That Mayor Hall, by his refusal to co-operate with Comptroller Connolly in carrying out the present financial affairs of the city government, has created discontent among all classes of the community and the execration of thousands of the workingmen and laborers, who may possibly be discharged from the public works should the Mayor and his diminished clique persist in such outrageous despotism; and in order to remove this dead-lock it is imperative in Mayor Hall to resign, and if he chooses to test public opinion at the polls of the coming election the people will render their verdict either for his condemnation or approval.

WHAT FERNANDO WOOD THINKS.

An Interview with the Hon. Fernando Wood.

The Democratic Party Not in Danger—Connolly, Tweed, Hall and Sweeny Should Stand Aside and Make Way for Better Men—Connolly's Action Endorsed—History Repeats Itself—The "Reform Movement" of 1859 and Its Consequences.

A HERALD reporter sought an interview with Mr. Fernando Wood. He found him yesterday at his office in the city, busily attending to his morning correspondence; but, on receiving the reporter's card, Mr. Wood, very courteously and very kindly, postponed his clerical occupation to listen to the inquiries of the reporter and express his opinion on the great local question of the day.

"I have called to see you, Mr. Wood, on behalf of the HERALD—more particularly in reference to the appearance of your name in this morning's newspapers as one of a 'new combination'—I believe that is the slang phrase—for a new Tammany Ring."

"Well, sir, I shall be very happy to furnish the HERALD with any information I can. I was certainly very much surprised to see my name in the HERALD this morning associated with the names of gentlemen who have taken an active part in reference to this local difficulty. I have not been thus associated. I have no intention or any desire to be so associated. I have desisted from any participation in local politics for the last four or five years. I am not identified with either of the contending factions of the party. I am in favor of a consolidation and unity of the party, so as to assist in the domination of the principles of the party nationally. I am, as is well known, and a thorough believer in the principles of the democratic party. Therefore the use of my name in connection with any of these movements, as against Mr. Hall, Mr. Sweeny, Mr. Connolly and Mr. Tweed is not founded in any authority of mine or caused by any action I have taken. I have taken no part for or against on either side."

A DEMOCRAT BY PRINCIPLE,

"Do you not think, Mr. Wood?" inquired the reporter, "that these charges of corruption, or whatever they may ultimately turn out to be, as against city officers, will have a disastrous effect upon the fortunes of the democratic party, and that, therefore it is needful that all leading democrats should clear themselves of any endorsement thereof?"

"I believe it will have a prejudicial effect upon the status of individuals as the leaders of the party, but I cannot see how it can have an operative effect generally either in this city, the State or in the nation generally; because, even admitting that these accusations are well-founded against these leading officials, yet the whole democratic party is not to be made responsible for it. If would break down a party the republican party would have ceased to exist long ago. No party has committed so much corruption as that party has, both locally and in the national administration. The recent elections show that the standing of the party has not been materially affected before the people. I conclude, therefore, that, notwithstanding the bad conduct of some men, that the city of New York will still remain democratic, as I hope and believe the nation will be in 1872."

"Yes, sir; all this is very true, but inasmuch as men like Mr. Samuel Tilden, Mr. Havemeyer, Mr. Charles O'Conor and Mr. Green have identified themselves prominently and actively with this movement, as against city corruption under democratic direction, there is, I think, a general impression on the public mind that you and other prominent democrats must declare yourselves in the present crisis, and that, sooner or later, you, with others, must take sides."

"I believe," replied Mr. Wood, "that the action of Mr. Tilden in this matter has been prompted by motives of public good and the welfare of the democratic party. I think as Chairman of the State Central Committee it was his duty to exercise his influence to redeem, so far as he could, the party from the degradation consequent on these exposures, and the course he has taken, in my judgment, in reference to these city matters is entitled to the respect and

SUPPORT OF THE PUBLIC.

I do not think Mr. Tilden has any motives aside from what would govern every well-disposed citizen and every leading democratic politician. The effect of his action will be, I think, even as a taxpayer, to establish the nucleus of a great and much-needed reform in our city government. As a democrat I think the personnel of the incumbents requires revision. Although the revelations as to these alleged frauds and the character of the men who have perpetrated them will have a disastrous effect politically for the time, I think the effect will ultimately be very good for the State of New York and upon the politics of the country."

"You don't think the loss of Tweed and Hall and Sweeny to the democratic party would be very disastrous?"

"No, I do not; I think we could lose twenty such men without it affecting disastrously the party. I think we should probably be the better for their loss."

"But the crisis is one that requires very prompt action on the part of the party, and these men are not disposed to move."

"No, but I think some one—indeed, why should not the influence of the HERALD be brought to bear to urge these men who are charged with these corruptions to stand on one side, as far as the party is concerned, and make way for men in whom there could be no doubt the public would have confidence?"

"Yes; but that is the very thing they will not do, and even if they were to do it would not that be a tacit admission of their complicity with these frauds?"

"No; I do not think it would necessarily be a tacit admission. Mr. Tweed, for example, who, it is no secret, has long ago grown could exercise the same powers as Mr. Connolly has and appoint a deputy for the official direction of the public works. If he were to make as good a selection as Mr. Connolly has the public would be satisfied."

WEARY OF CITY OFFICIAL LIFE,

"But the temper of the public and the aggressive action of the Committee of Seventy is not much inclined, I am afraid, to so peaceful a solution."

"But if these men would look at this matter only in the light of their own interests I think they must see that standing on one side and making way for men whose reputations are without reproach is their only salvation. They are so far compromised as to make criminal action not quite an idle threat."

"Then I gather from what you now say, Mr. Wood, that the action of Mr. Connolly, in his recent appointment of Mr. Green, is a justifiable action?"

"Yes, I have read Mr. O'Conor's judgment; I think it very sound, and I am quite sure Mr. Hall, the Mayor, whom I greatly respect and of whose personal honesty I have not the slightest doubt, must know that it is sound and incontrovertible."

"Tammany, as Tammany proper, must do something, and that speedily, must they not, Mr. Wood?"

"Yes. The State Convention meets on the 4th of October. We are within a fortnight of that date. The Tammany Society has not been called together now for more than a year, and I question whether Mr. Tweed dare call it together now. I think it would be well if he were, purely in the interests of the party, to

"I believe when you were Mayor, Mr. Wood, you went through a similar experience to that Mr. Hall is now going through, as far as the antagonism of the republican party is concerned?"

"Oh, yes; history repeats itself. I was Mayor in 1855–56. I had absolute control of the police. All the appointments were made by the Mayor, the Recorder and the City Judge. The Mayor virtually had the control of the police. It has been admitted again and again since that it was the best police force we ever had. The whole cost of it was $825,000; now it costs over $3,000,000, and admittedly a worse force. The republican party, desirous of getting possession of the police and use it for partisan purposes, made a combination with Tammany Hall for wresting from my hands the direction of the police, and thus destroy my influence preparatory to the commencement of their political campaign. They made violent and

upon me just as they are making now upon the present Mayor. They charged me with using the police for improper purposes. They tried to prejudice me in the eyes of the public, and they raised considerable public excitement. The Times, the Tribune and the Evening Post were then, as now, very abusive. They went to the Legislature and succeeded in passing a law which not only took the police from me, but took away all guarantee that the police was organized for the public good. They then established commissions, and the city, being democratic, sustained me. The Legislature being republican, they got the Legislature to pass laws establishing these commissions. There was a commission to build a new Court House. They took from me the direction of the Central Park. I, with Edward Everett, Washington Irving, George Bancroft, William Cullen Bryant and Fred Hudson, laid that park out. They divided these commissions in such a way that it left the Mayor as the figure-head of the city government, without any power to steer it in any direction. Then commenced and corruption in the government of the city of New York, which, even if we admit that the present charge against the present city government is true, and taking into consideration the then and the present expenses of the city government, the corruption and the robbery was far greater than we have heard of since, and was the direct result then, as it is to a large extent now, of the action of the republican party."

A SYSTEM OF PLUNDER

"I think you were Mayor for some time; were you not, Mr. Wood?"

"Yes, I was Mayor for six years, and during the whole time that I held the office the annual expenses of the city did not reach $10,000,000."

"Then, Mr. Wood, you are in a position to form some estimate as to what, in your judgment, the expenses of the city ought to be."

"I have no hesitation in saying that the present expenses of the city are fifty per cent more than they ought to be."

"You are, too, Mr. Wood, a large real estate owner in this city, and, therefore, are interested very deeply in the fact that the present City Executive have powers for mortgaging that estate for the liabilities of the city."

"Yes, I feel that these powers are very dangerous, and that they are in the hands, to a great extent, of bad men. I have paid within the last few weeks to the city. But while that is the case, and I acknowledge it is a very bad position to be placed in, still, as a taxpayer, I think it is very requisite that great care should be exercised before there is any change, because it is just possible that unless the citizens are careful we may make a change that shall be quite as bad, if not worse."

"Do you think the position as far as the taxpayer is concerned could be worse, Mr. Wood?"

"Well, scarcely; but I remember an immense outcry for reform in 1859 in this city. The expenditure was then between nine and ten millions, but the reform movement ran it up to twenty-three millions in less than five years afterwards. This was done by the republican party in combination with Tammany Hall. Past experience, therefore, suggests great care, and the gentlemen who are now undertaking this reform movement require great industry and much self-sacrifice to accomplish their purpose."

"I am much obliged, Mr. Wood, for your courtesy and kindness. You have given me much to think about, and I wish you good day."

THE PRESS ON THE SITUATION.

General McClellan and Hon. Andrew H. Green.

[From the Journal of Commerce, Sept. 19.]

The Ring is broken by the retirement of Comptroller Connolly from the active duties of his office. The effect is the same whether he resigns or is dismissed, or is impeached and so removed, or designates a deputy possessing entire public confidence, to whom he surrenders the full powers of the Comptrollership. All beyond this is a question of detail. We should have preferred to have Mr. Connolly send in his resignation and quit the office in person. But he has not chosen to do that. Not resigning, he should be turned out if the Mayor has a warrant to rid the Treasury of him in that way. But, until Saturday, the Mayor himself did not seem to suspect that the charter gave him the right to remove the obstructive official, and all commentators had taken that fact for granted. But scarcely had the ink dried upon Connolly's letter offering the Deputyship to Hon. Andrew H. Green than the Mayor's counsel make the agreeable discovery that the dismissal of Connolly is entirely within the Mayor's province. We ardently hope that this opinion can be substantiated by law. The Mayor ought to have the power to unmake public officers as well as to make them, and we never shall have a municipal government of the first order till that power is put into the charter or judicially determined to belong there. We shall be agreeably surprised if the Mayor's later view proves to be correct, and General McClellan should accept and be installed in the chair of Comptroller. That appointment completely satisfies the most exigent demands of an outraged and captious public. Reasonable men of all parties would unhesitatingly confide the problems of the Comptroller's office to the clear-headed and honest solution of General McClellan. If he were convinced of the legality of the appointment, and would find its acceptance consonant with his own views of the public interest, he would confer a great favor on the city by taking it, though such an act would, of course, involve a sacrifice of his own comfort and feelings. To his high reputation already made General McClellan can add nothing by assuming the duties of the Comptrollership; but we do not believe that that thought would influence his judgment one way or the other if he should be convinced that the law justifies and the public necessity requires his appointment. Should it not be the good fortune of the city to have General McClellan as Comptroller, then is it a most lucky circumstance that another distinguished and most capable and trusted citizen comes into actual occupation of the Comptroller's seat. We expressed in Monday's paper our high appreciation of the choice of Mr. Green as an executive head and a financial manager, long experienced and bearing a reputation unsullied by any charge of misfeasance or jobbery or even the suspicion of it, so far as our recollection and present knowledge go. If the Mayor's second thought should turn out unsound, and the dismissal of the Comptroller unsanctioned, then, while we should lament over that fact and feel that the deprivation of General McClellan's services as Comptroller was a public misfortune, there would remain the consolation that Mr. Green, as custodian of the financial responsibilities of the metropolis, is one who, judging him from all his record, is entirely competent and trustworthy.

The Present Duty.

[From the Tribune, Sept. 19.]

Now, friends of honest government, hands off! The air is full of rumors about a bargain for relieving somebody in the further conduct of the campaign against the Ring. We give notice that no such bargain will be tolerated. We want no compact for the protection of Mr. Connolly against his late confederates—for the protection or toleration of Mr. Tweed—for screening anybody. We want the facts exposing the public robbery and fixing the guilt; we want every criminal dragged to the searching light that now begins to stream upon the City Hall, restitution made, and the robbers punished. We are at last in a position to secure all this, and he who consents to accept less betrays us. Let us have an end of talk about understandings that Mr. Connolly, Mr. Tweed and Mr. O'Brien have reached, for striking hands with republicans and other honest citizens against Hall and Sweeny. Any man who pleases may fight in our ranks; but criminals cannot, in the present temper of New York, escape by the stale trick of crying "Stop thief!"

A Few Suggestions.

The grand movement for municipal reform must not be allowed to be diverted from its legitimate and righteous fulfilment by the schemes of any mere selfish politicians, whether they call themselves republicans or democrats, or fight under the banners of the various factions of both parties. Between now and the November elections there will be many cunning combinations between the men who regard politics as a game and the people as their rightful prey; but the classes of our citizens who are at last awake to their political duties know all these unscrupulous partisans and will beware of such dangerous leaders.

We do not want to be handed over from one gang of partisan thieves to another. We do not want the city entrusted to the control of men who are known to have been connected with jobs, and who get rich out of politics as a trade. There is no reason why the municipal government of New York should be a party affair at all, or it should not be conducted on the business principle of filling the offices with the best men to be found, irrespective of party considerations.

Our City and Its Dangers.

[From the Evening Post, Sept. 19.]

The highest legal authority advises us that, under that cunningly devised fraud, the new charter, the Mayor has no control over the heads of departments whom he has appointed. Under the test of events this pretence of a government with a responsible head breaks down. The conspirators who contrived the charter never meant that there should be any direct responsibility to the people, nor any power in public opinion to control the administration by acting upon its head. They wove the net for the public; they are caught in it themselves, and it is not for them to complain.

But the situation is none the less full of difficulty and danger. Mr. Green has the confidence of the public and deserves it. But his present position is scarcely more than that of a referee in charge of official records for the purpose of ascertaining facts. He is not recognized by the Mayor as an officer; no warrant signed by him can be paid; and the whole influence of the city government goes to throw doubt upon the validity of his official acts. On the other hand, his mere access to the office depends upon the will of his superior officer, Mr. Connolly, who might at any time effect a reconciliation with his old associates in misgovernment and shut his doors upon Mr. Green and the public.

The utter disorganization of the city government must result if this situation continues. There is already serious danger of disorder, and the danger will only increase every hour, as long as the government is made helpless by dissension. Any open attempt by Mayor Hall to enforce the views he expresses in his letter to Mr. Connolly, by seizing the Comptroller's office, could now be made only at the risk of a riot far more terrible than that of last July. Yet, by quietly submitting to have the most important office in his gift filled and its powers exercised under an authority which defies him, he would accept a humiliation which cannot fail to weaken his whole government and bring his own office into contempt. It is not surprising that Mayor Hall shrinks from either alternative. His official pride will not permit him to accept Mr. Green as an officer of the city; his duty as guardian of the public peace will not permit him to use force for expelling Mr. Green.

What remains for the Mayor to do? Nothing but to make Mr. Green, not the deputy, but the successor of Mr. Connolly. The Times asserts that Mr. Connolly is ready to resign if Mr. Green can be appointed. This appointment, then, will be acceptable to all the parties interested; it will remove the legal difficulties and the practical dissensions which now disturb the city government; it will vindicate the Mayor's official dignity, if not his personal pride, and it will restore public confidence to the financial administration of the city far more effectually than a temporary and disputed appointment as deputy. If Mr. Hall is personally ready to meet before the public all the facts which appear upon the Comptroller's records, he can have no motive strong enough to overcome these reasons for accepting Mr. Green as Comptroller.

Unless this be done Mr. Green cannot properly give up the vantage ground which he holds, not for himself, but for the people. Admitting that he holds it in violation of sound principles of government, and by virtue of a technical trick of legislation which is disgraceful to its authors and to the city, yet the violation of principle is not his, but theirs who framed the charter. The disgrace belongs to the Mayor and his associates, who contrived for others the trap which now catches them. Until the people have the facts which belong to them, but which Messrs. Hall and Connolly have sedulously and cunningly withheld from them, they are right in taking every advantage they can against concealment. The public must know just what has been stolen from them and just who has stolen it; and, in order to obtain this information, which is their right, all legal measures are justified.

But it cannot be denied that the Mayor and his associates have the power not only to sacrifice the public peace by attempting violence against Mr. Green, but seriously to endanger the public peace by simply continuing their refusal to recognize his authority. The moral authority of the city government is already greatly impaired; the restraints which control the disorderly elements of our society are already weakened, and the passions of men are already so much heated that there is a growing danger of disturbance. A little thing might to-day fill our streets with violence and crime. There are prominent men in the city who are eager for disorder; it is their element and will multiply their power. These men are not now the friends of the Mayor, but by maintaining the present situation he is but aiding them and giving them the opportunity they watch for.

As the guardian of the public peace, Mayor Hall is called on to offer to Mr. Andrew H. Green his appointment as Comptroller of the city. If he cannot accept and execute the people's will in this matter, now so important to the public safety, the sooner he resigns the trust they have given him the better. They will then elect a Mayor in November who will regard himself as the servant and agent of the people, and not of his own petty and personal pride.

A JOURNALISTIC MELEE OVER THE RING QUARREL.

Matthew J. O'Rourke, the Tammany informer, taking umbrage at a paragraph in the Tribune of yesterday, which set him down as a "nuisance" and intimated indirectly that he was a liar, entered the editorial rooms of that paper yesterday and demanded to see the managing editor. The latter would not see him, however, and he then demanded of another gentleman in the office who wrote the offending paragraph. Upon this demand according to Mr. O'Rourke's statement, the whole editorial and reportorial force of the establishment went for him, and after hustling him over chairs and desks at a very disorganizing rate, attempted to toss him down the ricketty stairway. Thereupon the unfortunate ring smasher, fearing that he would be himself smashed, retreated.

The managing editor of the Tribune makes the following statement in regard to the matter:—

Matthew J. O'Rourke came to the office of the Tribune on Monday and indulged in loud and abusive language about the course of this paper. He was suffered to have his talk out and to depart unmolested. He then wrote an impertinent note to the Tribune, which he published in an evening paper. This was of course refused admittance to the Tribune of yesterday, and Mr. O'Rourke's conduct was referred to in terms suited to the occasion. Yesterday he came to the office again, and, after ascertaining that he could not see the managing editor, he approached the city editor with an uplifted cane and threatening words and manner, upon which the city editor rose, seized O'Rourke's stick with one hand and his collar with the other, and put him out of the office.

THE POLITICAL MEANING OF REFORM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

There have been in the city administration malfeasances in office, political compromises and immense robberies. These have always been part and parcel of government since government was established. The people pay so much per cent on th property and earnings every year to make a fund the expenses of administration, and of this fund it certain that at least one-half will go to men who ha about lobbies and help to make the laws for t people. It was so in England under every premi who conducted the politics in the eighteenth ce tury. France has never been without a politic corruption fund. We who behold the present ex citement in plaster politics forget that the excite ment has occurred every year within our experience
There are always two parties clamoring for reform—the politicians, who mean to have one set turned out that they themselves may go in, and the people, who are anxious that no corruption shall exist, but who are never allowed to participate in the means to be used for this accomplishment.

In the present excitement it is evident to dispassionate observers whom the virtuous politicians of both sides have not succeeded in blinding that the plaster frauds are to be traced to the plaster jobs at Albany. The Court House money has been a standing fund for two generations of politicians. Whenever the party in power in this city has desired to obtain a charter for the government of the city it has been compelled to give country legislators a chance at the Court House for compensation. The present city charter was not obtained from the republicans and anti-Tammany democrats without a bargain that all bills for work done on the Court House should be paid. They have been paid, and the Board of Apportionment have only performed a political contract which the highest tribunal of the State imposed upon them last winter. The money has gone into cheese presses and cider mills, ward clubs and seaside palaces. The Court House still stands, and we have no doubt will stand as a monument of Legislative compromise for many a winter to come. The question is shall the New York republicans have half the sway or all? They are trying to get all. This is the meaning of reform.

What the end of the fight will be is easy to be seen. The democrats of this State must give up the Assembly this winter. Every politician in the State is alarmed because there has been plaster in politics and he is not richer by another cornice. The rush for Court House plunder will be unprecedented. Meanwhile Tammany is stolidly fighting for her accustomed hall; and it seems somewhat small that the Custom House party, unsatisfied with plucking one federal goose and half of a Tammany gander, should now demand the brace. Yet they will gain the Assembly. But for Reuben E. Fenton they would have the whole bird. He will not give them the Senate. That power belongs to him by prescription, and while Tom Murphy leads the Republican Convention and enjoys federal patronage that Senate cannot be republican. Fenton will not allow Conkling to dictate the election of a United States Senator. While Justice Nelson lives, and Conkling is not the Supreme Court Justice in this district, the republican party must remain contented with half the corruption fund. The people must not deceive themselves with any hope that a Committee of Seventy or any committee will reduce the rate of taxation. The Citizens' Association did not do it, and the Committee of Seventy, in the hands of one or two politicians, will not effect any more. The question is, Shall Tammany own the committee or the committee own Tammany? The advantage in politics is on the side of the owners; they get half the swag and all the brokerage. The people who breathe the air of freedom must be content to pay an average of two and a quarter per cent on their property for that privilege—one per cent for improvements, a half per cent to each political party and the quarter for brokerage. It is plain that the city cannot be run on the Two Per Cent law. It is a quarter per cent too little. But let us remember a story of Charley Minott, once the great and eccentric Superintendent of the Erie Railway, who, when the directors met to decide whether they should discharge the entire force of Erie conductors for buying costly houses and expensive watches with railway collections, said, "Well, gentlemen, these men have got the watches and the houses. So far as I can learn they are all supplied. Now, if you turn these out and get in a new set, you've got to buy these watches and houses all over again." PLAIN TALK.

REAL ESTATE AND THE RINGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

"The Ring" seems doomed at least to a temporary banishment from place and power. What will be the policy of its successors is the subject of anxious conjecture among the owners of uptown real estate. Will they vigorously but economically complete all improvements now in progress, and carry out all those in contemplation? Or will they seek to earn a reputation for economy and for saving the City Treasury and credit by stopping expenditures? As they shall approach nearer the one or the other of these courses, so will they prove themselves friends or foes to the progress and prosperity of the city.

Whatever sins of omission or commission may be charged against "The Ring," it is due to it to say that it understood better than any party that had preceded it the needs of this great metropolis, and it has conceived and proceeded to execute improvements upon a scale of magnificence and of great public utility undreamed of by its predecessors, and for which we might have looked and hoped in vain from any other body. It must be conceded that the enormous rise in property, and particularly in the prices of uptown lots, was due in a great measure to the improvements actual and projected of this so-called Ring. Granted that the cost of these improvements was exorbitant, and far in excess of what they ought to have been, yet the enhanced value of property was so far in excess of the cost that the cost became of minor importance, and was on that account borne more or less patiently, but always with a consciousness that upon the whole the property owners and the city were gainers. The expenditures were enormous, the assessments were excessive, but the rise in value of property was more enormous still; progress and prosperity went hand in hand.

But the Ring is to be displaced, new rulers are to be installed, everything is to be reformed. Now, in what is the reform to consist—retrenchment? Retrenchment may be well enough, but when applied to the affairs of a great city it may be as disastrous as the most profligate waste; and if by retrenchment is meant arresting improvement and stopping expenditures, it will assuredly be a change, but it will not be reform. Many or all the contemplated improvements have been discounted, and if these, from any apprehension of the city getting too deeply into debt are to be abandoned or even delayed, a fearful depreciation in the price of real estate must ensue, and for progress and prosperity we shall substitute retrogression and distress.

It, on the other hand, our new rulers, with a better comprehension of the true interests of our city, foregoing the ephemeral glory of effecting a mighty but deceitful saving, shall vigorously and without regard to cost carry out all the great improvements inaugurated by their predecessors, allowing retrenchment only to the extent of preventing fraud and waste, then truly will the people's interests be subserved, and the great and manifest destiny of our city be promoted, values and prices will be maintained and enhanced, and the people may congratulate themselves upon the change of rulers.

OUR PUBLIC CHARITIES.

Visit of the Emigration Commissioners to Ward's Island.

Commissioners of Emigration Wallach, Lynch, Nicholson, Hart, Superintendent Casserly and a select number of invited guests went on a visit of inspection to Ward's Island yesterday. The party left Castle Garden on board the steamer Andrew Fletcher at half-past twelve o'clock, provided with a plentiful supply of eatables and viands. On the trip up the appetites of the company were considerably increased by the sail and the pure air. Before reaching the Island luncheon was served, to which all did full justice. At half-past one o'clock the company landed and proceeded to inspect the new lunatic asylum lately erected by the Commissioners of Emigration, and which is nearly completed and ready for the reception of patients. The building was designed by Renwick & Sands, the architects under whose supervision the large new lunatic asylum of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction was erected, and which for architectural beauty cannot be excelled. The Commissioners of Emigration intended at first to erect a larger building; but when the architect returned his specifications it was found that such a building would cost at least half a million of dollars, a sum which the Commissioners did not feel warranted in expending for the purpose, and the idea of building a costly asylum was abandoned. The new asylum is 125 feet long by thirty feet in width, and is constructed of brick, two stories in height, with Mansard roof, and has all the modern appurtenances. The cost of the building is $50,000. When the Commissioners declined to expend a large sum for a commodious asylum it was agreed that a one story building was sufficient for all purposes, but, as it looked very unsightly, another story and Mansard roof were added.

The party, after a careful inspection of the building, proceeded to the new Asylum of the Charities and Corrections, where they were received by Warden Smythe, who afforded the party every facility in viewing the handsome edifice, which was much admired for its beauty of design and the many conveniences for the comfort and treatment of insane patients. Warden Smythe, of the Blackwell's Island asylums, informed the company that he had over one thousand four hundred patients, and that he cannot comfortably accommodate more than 600 in the old buildings, and as insanity in its various stages is greatly on the increase, it is obvious the additional asylum is not sufficient to meet the wants. The party then inspected the other institutions under the charge of the Emigration Commission and returned to the city at an early hour well pleased with their visit.

DROWNING CASUALTY IN NEWTOWN CREEK.

A boat, containing four men, was accidentally capsized in Newtown Creek yesterday, and two of the number, William Reminess, of Sixteenth street, near avenue C, New York, and Henry Miller, residence unknown, were drowned. Their companions, Peter Collins and Henry Bush, were saved. The bodies of the drowned men were recovered.

FLEETWOOD PARK.

Fine Trotting, an Elegant Attendance and Delightful Weather.

The grounds of the Fleetwood Park were finely filled yesterday afternoon by the lovers of sports of the turf, and the Club House and grand stand presented a magnificent appearance. The trotting consisted of two contests for purses, besides the unfinished race of the previous day, which was one of the most stubbornly contested events that ever took place in this country, eight heats in all having been gone through with before a result was arrived at. On the previous day four heats came off, Charley Green winning two and Medoc two. When the horses appeared for business yesterday the winners of the heats of the day previous were great favorites over the others; but neither of them won another heat, while Young Bruno, who did not act well on the first day, came out on the second full of life and vigor and won the race.

Then followed the regular business of the day, which was two trots for large purses, the first being for horses that had never beaten 2:50 and the other for horses that had never trotted faster than 2:38, each race being mile heats, best three in five, in harness. In both races there were nine entries, but in the first there were only four starters and in the second but five. The first race was decided in three heats, while the second had to be postponed until to-day at two o'clock, after three heats had been trotted, the last one being a dead heat.

The starters in the 2:50 purse were M. Rodin's bay gelding Castle Boy, G. M. Furguson's bay mare Bright Eyes, J. J. Bowen's brown gelding Jack Poor, and D. Pfifer's bay mare Louisa Moore. Castle Boy was the favorite before the start over the field. He won the race quite easily in three straight heats, Bright Eyes winning second money and Jack Poor the third. Castle Boy is a beautiful trotting horse, and has a brilliant career before him.

The starters in the second race were Alden Goldsmith's bay gelding Bodine, A. Patterson's chestnut mare Belle of Oneida, J. Splan's brown mare Constance, L. Morris' bay mare Nettie Morris, and H. J. Doremus' chestnut gelding Joe. The latter was the favorite over the field before the start, but he acted so badly that he was distanced on the second heat. This horse came from California about two years ago and was taken to Pennsylvania, where he has been kept in the shade waiting for a "good thing." The good thing came yesterday, and the horse got it as well as his sanguine backers. This horse has a great turn of speed, but he has a will of his own, and he will trot only when it suits him. He ran away with Dan Mace on the second heat, and acted like a brute, as he is, and his backers fell heavily in consequence.

TIME.

	Quarter.	Half.	Mile.
First heat	37	1:13¼	2:30¼
Second heat	37	1:12¼	2:30½
Third heat	36½	1:13½	2:29½
Fourth heat	36¼	1:12½	2:25½
Fifth heat	36¼	1:12½	2:28
Sixth heat	37¼	1:13	2:30½
Seventh heat	38	1:14	2:32½
Eighth heat	38	1:13½	2:32¼

Fifth Heat.—Medoc was the favorite. After a great deal of manœuvring the horses were given the word and got away in a straggling manner, Charley Green in front, Medoc second, Lady Ross third, Sea Foam fourth, Susie fifth, the others trailing. At the quarter pole they were in the same positions. This point was passed in thirty-six seconds and a half. Going around the lower turn Susie worked her way through to the front and led one length at the half-mile pole in 1:12½, Charley Green second, Lady Ross third, Sea Foam fourth, Medoc fifth, Dreadnaught sixth, Young Bruno seventh and Lady Augusta eighth. Going up the backstretch Susie kept in front, and Sea Foam went up to Charley Green. Coming into the homestretch the struggle was exciting between these three, and they had a close engagement to the end, the other horses being practically out of the fight. Susie won the heat by two lengths, Sea Foam second, one length in front of Charley Green, the latter being several lengths in advance of Lady Ross, Medoc fifth, Lady Augusta sixth, Dreadnaught seventh, and Young Bruno eighth. Time, 2:28.

Sixth Heat.—Susie was away first, Young Bruno second, Charley Green third, the others in a bunch. Susie led to the quarter pole in thirty-seven and a quarter seconds, Sea Foam second, Lady Ross third, Young Bruno fourth the others trailing. At the half-mile pole Susie was still in front, Young Bruno second, Sea Foam third, Lady Ross fourth, Charley Green fifth, Dreadnaught sixth, Medoc seventh and Lady Augusta eighth. Time, 1:13. Sea Foam trotted rapidly up the backstretch, and took the lead before she reached the quarter pole, but she broke up as she came into the homestretch and fell back. The struggle was afterwards between Susie and Bruno, and as they passed under the wire Bruno had a few inches the best of it. Susie was second, Charley Green third, Lady Ross fourth, Dreadnaught fifth, Lady Augusta sixth, Sea Foam seventh and Medoc eighth. Time of the heat, 2:30½.

Seventh Heat.—Lady Augusta was then withdrawn. When the word was given Young Bruno, Medoc, Susie and Lady Ross were side and side, Charley Green fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh. At the quarter pole, which was passed in thirty-eight seconds, Young Bruno led, Charley Green second, Lady Ross third, Susie fourth, Medoc fifth, Sea Foam sixth and Dreadnaught seventh. At the half-mile pole, which was passed in 1:14, Bruno led one length, Lady Ross second, Charley Green third, Susie fourth, Medoc fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh. Bruno kept in front to the end, being pressed all the way by Charley Green from the half-mile pole. He won the race by two lengths, Charley Green second, Medoc third, Lady Ross fourth, Sea Foam fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Susie seventh. Time of the heat 2:32½.

Eighth Heat.—Lady Ross had the best of the send off, Charley Green second, Young Bruno third, Susie fourth, Medoc fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh. When they passed the quarter pole Young Bruno was in front, in thirty-eight seconds Lady Ross second, Susie third, Charley Green fourth, Medoc fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh, the latter having broke up badly on the way. At the half-mile pole Bruno was still in front, in 1:13½, and he continued to lead up the backstretch, notwithstanding that Charley Green ran all the way. Bruno kept steadily at his work; but when he got into the homestretch Charley Green came on with a rush, and as they passed under the wire the latter was a neck in front of Bruno. The judges, however, gave the heat and race to Bruno and placed Susie second, Charley Green third, Medoc fourth, Lady Ross fifth, Dreadnaught sixth and Sea Foam seventh. The time of the heat was 2:32¼.

Second heat	38	1:15	2:36½
Third heat	38½	1:15½	2:40

First Heat.—Castle Boy was the favorite over the field. Bright Eyes took the lead, Louisa Moore second, Jack Poor third, Castle Boy fourth and P. Harkins fifth, the latter being far behind when the word was given. At the quarter pole, which was passed in thirty-eight seconds, Bright Eyes still led, Castle Boy second, Jack Poor third, P. Haskins fourth, Louisa Moore fifth, having broken up before reaching there. On the lower turn Castle Boy went to the front and at the half-mile pole was three lengths ahead in 1:14½, Jack Poor second, Bright Eyes third, P. Haskins fourth and Louisa Moore fifth. Castle Boy kept in front to the end and won easily by three lengths, Bright Eyes second, two lengths ahead of Jack Poor. Louisa Moore was just inside the distance pole and P. Haskins outside. Time of the heat, 2:34½.

Second Heat.—Louisa Moore had the best of a good start, Castle Boy second, Bright Eyes third, Jack Poor fourth. At the quarter pole Castle Boy had the lead in thirty-eight seconds, Bright Eyes second, Jack Poor third and Louisa Moore fourth, having broken badly on the turn. At the half-mile pole Castle Boy was five lengths in front in 1:15; but he soon afterward broke up, and Jack Poor lapped him before he recovered; but, getting steady, he came away and won the heat by two lengths, Jack Poor second, five lengths ahead of Louisa Moore, who beat Bright Eyes two lengths. Time of the heat, 2:36½.

Third Heat.—Castle Boy took the lead, was never headed, and won in a jog. He passed the quarter pole six lengths in front of Bright Eyes, in thirty-eight and a quarter seconds, the half-mile pole ten lengths in 1:15½, and jogged home a winner by two lengths in 2:40, Bright Eyes second, Jack Poor third and Louisa Moore fourth.

SAME DAY—Purse No. 6—$1,500, for horses that have never trotted better than 2:38; $900 to the first horse, $400 to the second and $200 to the third, mile heats, best three in five, in harness.

First heat	36	1:12½	2:31
Second heat	36	1:12	2:30½
Third heat	36½	1:13¼	2:33

First Heat.—Joe was the favorite over the field at odds. Bodine had the best of the send-off, Oneida second, Nettie Morris third, Constance fourth and Joe last. The latter broke up as soon as the word was given and never recovered until he was a distance out. At the quarter pole Bodine led three lengths, Oneida second, Constance third, Nettie Morris fourth and Joe one hundred yards behind. Time, thirty-six seconds. At the half-mile pole Bodine was several lengths in front, Oneida second, the others practically out of the race. Bodine came on steadily and won the heat by three lengths, Oneida second, Constance third, Nettie Morris fourth and Joe just inside the distance flag on a run. Time of the heat, 2:31.

Second Heat.—Belle of Oneida took the lead, Bodine second, Nettie Morris third, Constance fourth, Joe fifth. At the quarter pole Bodine was three lengths in front of Belle of Oneida, Constance third, Nettie Morris fourth, Joe, on a break, far behind. The time to this point was thirty-six seconds. From this point to the finish Bodine kept in front, and there was no chance of place by the other horses. The half-mile pole was passed by Bodine in 1:12, and he came home an easy winner of the race in 2:30½. Belle of Oneida was second, Constance third, Nettie Morris fourth and Joe distanced.

Third Heat.—Bodine had the best of the start, Constance second, Nettie Morris third, Belle of Oneida fourth. At the quarter pole, which was passed in thirty-six and three-quarter seconds, Bodine led three lengths, Constance second, two lengths in front of Belle of Oneida, who was two lengths ahead of Nettie Morris. At the half-mile pole Constance, Bodine and Nettie Morris were close together, Bodine having cast a shoe on the lower turn. Time, 1:13¼. Belle of Oneida went to the front on the backstretch, and at the three-quarter pole she led two lengths, Bodine second, Constance third and Nettie Morris fourth. Bodine then forgot the want of the shoe, and, trotting faithfully to the end, made a dead heat with Belle of Oneida. Constance was two lengths behind, Nettie Morris fourth. The time of the heat was 2:33.

Darkness now closed in on the track, and the judges postponed the trot until to-morrow at two o'clock, when a general stampede took place by the assemblage.

Fleetwood Park To-Day.

In addition to the unfinished 2:38 purse, the trotting to-day at Fleetwood Park will be of the most exciting character. The first event is the purse of $4,500, free for all horses—$2,500 to the first, $900 to the second, and $650 to the third horse. Entered for this are three clippers, these being Dan Mace's brown gelding George Palmer, M. Rodin's bay gelding Henry and Benjamin Daniel's bay mare American Girl. This race has been earnestly talked of for many days, and it is expected to be one of the grandest struggles seen on the turf in this section for a long time.

The second event, a purse of $2,000, is for horses that have never beaten 2:31—$1,300 to the first, $500 to the second, and $200 to the third horse. For this are entered Benj. Mace's sorrel gelding Climax, Jno. H. Whitson's chestnut gelding Clarence, M. Degonge's sorrel gelding Fleetwood, R. Johnson's bay mare Lotta, D. Tallman's brown stallion Daniel Boone, Dan Pfifer's gray gelding Lottery, B. Daniel's bay mare Topsy, Thos. S. Foster's brown stallion Dauntless, and C. Hoagland's gray gelding Gray Jack.

Pools were sold on these events last night at the rooms of Messrs. Marshall & Johnson, Broadway and Twenty-eighth street. The sporting assemblage present was very large and the betting of the most spirited nature. On the "free for all" purse at least $10,000 was deposited in the box. The following figures will give a good idea of the prevailing feeling as to the favorites:—

HONORS TO THE DEAD.

Funeral of Ex-Judge Stuart.

A numerous gathering of the friends of the late Judge assembled at his residence, No. 84 West Eighty-fourth street, yesterday, to pay the last rites of friendship and honor to the departed.

The remains were enclosed in a large rosewood casket, lined with white satin, and the plate and handles were of solid silver. The hands of the corpse were crossed upon the breast, and at the feet was placed a cross and anchor, composed of camellias and tuberoses. A long line of sympathizing friends passed in single file through the parlors and turned around the coffin to take a last look at the dead friend and associate. Among the visitors present were District Attorney Garvin, Judges Bedford, Larremore, Jones, Curtis, Cardozo and Dowling; James Hayes, Michael Tuomey, Thomas Whalen, Henry Hill and several prominent lawyers.

The Rev. Dr. Chapin delivered the funeral discourse, which was followed by prayer, and the remains were removed to the family vault in Greenwood.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In your obituary, in yesterday's issue, of Judge Sydney H. Stuart, there are some inaccuracies which, with your permission, I will point out. Judge Stuart was born at Branchville, Sussex county, N. J., at that time a hamlet lying at the foot of the Blue Mountains, and twelve miles, or thereabouts, this side of the Delaware River. He received a common school education at his native place, under the instruction of one Simeon Bishop, a man of superior education and abilities to those usually found in those days following the avocation of "country schoolmaster." When young Stuart left school he learned the trade of saddler and harness maker, which, as apprentice and journeyman, he followed until about 1832 or 1833, when he came to New York and for several years thereafter was salesman in an auction store on Pearl street. So far from his being unable to read or write at the time of his coming to New York he was, during the first year, the author of a play, which was, I think, produced at some one of the minor theatres. His subsequent career is well known, and is as stated in your obituary notice.

R. A. H.

MRS. J. J. CONNOLLY.

She is a Raving Maniac and Removed to an Asylum.

Mrs J. J. Connolly, wife of the late Dr. Connolly, who a short time since destroyed two of his children and subsequently committed suicide, was yesterday afternoon declared by Dr. Willard Parker to be a raving maniac, and an order was demanded from Judge Dowling to have her forwarded to Bloomingdale Lunatic Asylum. It will be remembered that about a fortnight since Mrs. Connolly was in the French cathedral at Montreal, and while the service was being performed she was seized with a sudden aberration, and has since lost all control of her mental powers. She returned to New York a few days ago, and put up at the Metropolitan Hotel; but she has gradually become worse, until her friends applied for an opinion from Dr. Parker as to her case. The Judge was desired to call at the hotel last night, when an order was signed for her removal to the asylum. The Doctor stated that hers was an almost hopeless case, and in his mind grave doubts arose whether she could ever recover.

THE VAN BUSKIRK CASE.

Madam Van Buskirk and "Doctor" Benjamin Perry, of New York, who were indicted on the charge of having caused the death of Miss Emily A. Post, of Somerville, N. J., were arraigned in the Brooklyn City Court, before Judge McCue, yesterday morning. Mr. Cooney, for the defence, asked for a postponement in consequence of the recent death of ex-Judge Stuart, the senior counsel in the case. Mr. Cooney said that he was unprepared to go on with the trial of the case by himself, and, therefore, he wanted a delay of a few days before entering pleas for the prisoners. District Attorney Morris, for the people, said he would be ready to proceed to-day (Wednesday), but would consent to a delay until Thursday. Mr. Cooney asked for a postponement until Monday, but the Court refused to grant it, and the trial was finally set down for Friday.

HUNTING HOBOKEN HOGS.

At the Common Council meeting in Hoboken, last evening, a resolution was introduced recommending the immediate prosecution of several citizens residing on the meadows for harboring hogs within their doors. A crowd of hog owners was in attendance, and evidently made an impression on the Aldermen, as the latter postponed action on the resolution. Though the hogs are a decided nuisance, it is generally considered very hard to deprive upwards of a hundred paupers of the only means which they have of eking out an existence, especially when the animals are confined to the meadows, which are far more dangerous to public health than the hog tribe.

THE WASHINGTON TREATY.

Mr. Russel Gurney's Arrival in New York—Time Appointed for the First Meeting of the American and British Mixed Commission.

Mr. Russell Gurney, Recorder of the city of London and Commissioner of the British Commission, arrived in this city yesterday on board the Cunard steamship China. The United States and British Mixed Commission, under the Treaty of Washington, of which Mr. Gurney is the Commissioner representing Great Britain, for the investigation and decision of claims of the two countries other than the "Alabama claims," will commence their meetings in Washington on Monday, the 25th inst.

Mr. Gurney's Departure from Southampton—Liberals and Conservatives Unite in Wishing Him Godspeed in His Mission.

Just before his departure for the United States the Corporation and citizens of Southampton, England, presented an address to their Member of Parliament, the Right Hon. Russell Gurney, appointed by the English government one of the Commissioners, under the Treaty of Washington, for the adjustment of the Alabama claims. Both liberals and conservatives took part in paying this compliment to the high character of Mr. Gurney. The address was presented by the Mayor in Hartley Hall, who took occasion to say that a more competent or better man could not have been chosen for the difficult and delicate duties of arbitrator. When Mr. Gurney rose to respond he was received in the most enthusiastic manner, and, thanking the audience for the cordiality of their reception, he said he knew that the meeting was meant not merely to show personal kindness to himself, but especially to indicate a hearty interest in the work he had undertaken and in which he was soon to be engaged. He did not consider the language of the address too strong when it said that there was reason to hope that the Treaty of Washington will form an era in the history of civilization and of the English nation. He said that he did not go as the advocate of British or as the opponent of American claims. "We are to consider," said he, "every claim that is brought before us, without considering for a single moment by whom that claim is preferred or by whom it is opposed, and in so doing I believe I shall be best consulting the interests of both countries. It is a matter of very small importance to a country like Great Britain or the United States whether a smaller or larger sum of money be paid or received by one country or the other; but what is important to both of them is that the people of both countries should believe that the questions that have arisen between them have been fairly and justly decided. I believe that it would be less serious to the interest of either of those countries that they should be called upon to pay almost any sum that can be named than that it should be a matter of belief among the people of the country that the payment had been avoided by unfairness in the arbitration. I confess that I have no fear of any such termination of our labors. I have for my colleague, appointed by the United States, a gentleman who has for a long time filled the office of judge with honor to himself, and I know of nothing so calculated to fit him for the office of arbitrator under the treaty as a long judicial experience, which almost necessarily has the effect of forming habits in the mind of the person who has had it, which prevented his being advocate instead of the judge, and at the same time almost necessarily secures his impartiality. Thus it is not merely that sense of duty which I believe would, under the same circumstances, animate all men alike, but it is the habit of mind and thought, formed by long judicial experience, which will lead my colleague to look to both sides of a question, and to ground his decision upon a fair examination of both sides. For the third commissioner we have a gentleman of high position, who has taken the office at the earnest request of both governments—a gentleman of perfect honor and great intelligence, in whom both governments have unlimited confidence. This, ladies and gentlemen, is the tribunal, and I think, therefore, I am justified in saying that I have every confidence as to the result. I know perfectly well, from information that has already reached me, that the causes which will be brought before us are numerous; some, no doubt, will be of a complicated nature; some will involve difficult questions of maritime and international law; but I have very great faith in our honest endeavors to do right. Feeling as I do that that will be the determination of both my colleagues, and trusting that I myself shall not fail therein, I must again, though it does not become him that putteth on the harness to boast himself like unto him that taketh it off, yet I cannot doubt that we shall be able to arrive at that just decision in the matters referred to us which is most earnestly desired by the governments and peoples of both countries. For myself I can only say that if at any time, amid the difficulties and anxieties of the untried scenes which are before me, I should be disposed to regret the sacrifice I have made of home, ease and comfort, I shall be cheered by the recollection of the kindly feeling that has dictated this address.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

Nineteenth Triennial Conclave of Knights Templar in Baltimore—Four Thousand Knights in Attendance.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 19, 1871.

The Nineteenth Triennial Conclave of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States commenced in this city this morning. Notwithstanding the cloudy and threatening sky, at nine o'clock the several commanderies which took part in the procession left their headquarters and marched to the general rendezvous, in front of Barnum's Hotel, for the purpose of escorting the Grand Commandery to the Masonic Temple on Charles street. The procession was a display of the most brilliant and imposing character. The magnificent but chaste uniform of the Knights—full suits of black, with chapeaux and spotless white plumes and burnished swords—notwithstanding the lack of sunshine, presented a grand spectacle. Thousands of spectators crowded the streets along the line of march. The entire city is dressed with Masonic banners and national flags.

The ceremonies at the Masonic Temple were short and simple, consisting of a welcome address to the Knights by Most Worshipful J. H. B. Latrobe, Grand Master of Freemasons of the State of Maryland, which was responded to by Sir William Small Gardner, Grand Commander of the Grand Encampment of the United States.

It is expected that fully 4,000 Knights Templar will attend this conclave, representing every State in the Union.

NORTH CAROLINA KU KLUX TRIALS.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 19, 1871.

In the Ku Klux trials the testimony on the part of the State concluded at half-past twelve today and the defence announced that they had no testimony to offer. The Court then adjourned till four o'clock P. M.

In the afternoon session T. C. Fuller led in behalf of the defence and spoke for two hours, and was followed by Colonel Mark Erwin, for the prosecution. Mr. Erwin spoke three-quarters of an hour, and the Court then adjourned till ten o'clock to-morrow morning, when George Strong will close for the defence. The case will then be put to the jury. Great interest is manifested in the result.

It has leaked out that Judge Bond has refused the injunction restraining President Warren and Speaker Jarvis from appointing directors and proxies in the North Carolina Railroad Company.

YELLOW FEVER IN CHARLESTON.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 19, 1871.

There was one death from yellow fever during the past twenty-four hours.

The Board of Health, after a thorough examination of the eight wards of the city, publish the following statement:—

The reports from the various wards show the city to be in a remarkably healthy condition, even when compared with years when no yellow fever existed. The number of cases of yellow fever in course of treatment does not exceed an average of two in each ward, and the number of persons sick from other causes is astonishingly few.

NO YELLOW FEVER AT KEY WEST.

KEY WEST, Fla., Sept. 19, 1871.

COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS.

Before Judge Dowling.

The question of overcrowding the street railroad cars has frequently been discussed, but no practical results have ever been arrived at to prevent the city railroad corporations from carrying more than three times the legitimate number of passengers in their cars—much to their own profit, but greatly to the disgust of the general public. About two weeks ago the indomitable Bergh, Chief of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, saw a car belonging to the Forty-second street and Crosstown line loaded almost to suffocation, and, in addition to the load, he saw that the horses were lame. The latter fact at once called for his services as an officer of the society, and he had the car stopped for the purpose of releasing the animals. The crowd stepped off the car and Mr. Bergh counted the passengers, ascertaining their number to be seventy-five. This struck the humane Bergh as being monstrous, not so much against the horseflesh as against humanity, and he immediately arrested the conductor and driver—Thomas Boyle and Peter McLaughlin.

Generally Mr. Bergh's arrests are of minor importance, and the proceedings in the courts unworthy of much public comment; but in this case he maintained that it involved a principle as to whether human beings should be subjected to treatment such as men would scarcely inflict on horses, without the offence being visited with condign punishment. He maintained that to pack made to carry about thirty at the outside was a gross violation of every social and humane law.

The two prisoners were taken before the Court of Special Sessions last week, but as the Court wished to ascertain exactly the bearing of the law upon the case they were remanded until yesterday, so that a proper investigation might be instituted and a judgment rendered according to the statute.

The Court of Special Sessions was closely crowded before the proceedings commenced by conductors and other railroad officials, who evinced a lively interest in the case.

When the case was called Boyle only answered, the other defendant being sick—at least according to counsel engaged to defend him—and on this a motion to adjourn the case was made and promptly denied.

JUDGE DOWLING—It would be useless to prolong a case of this sort, involving, as it does, so much that is of general interest to the travelling public, and I therefore proceed to state my decision in the matter:—

JUDGE DOWLING'S JUDGMENT.

The defendants have been convicted for violating a most humane law. It is true, as has been urged in their behalf, that the law does not restrict them as to the number of passengers to be conveyed in a single car, and, as far as the Court is informed, the conductors and drivers have no orders to that effect from the superintendents or others having the management and control of the city railroads. But this cannot shield them from the consequences of a violation of law. Their own sense of what was just and proper and the common feelings of humanity most assuredly would have taught them that compelling a pair of horses to draw a car containing over seventy passengers was

A MOST UNNECESSARY ACT OF CRUELTY.

Of all animals the horse is most useful to man, and when men so far forget themselves as to abuse or ill-treat them they deserve and should be severely punished. It would be well, if possible, if those having the management of the city railroads could regulate the number of passengers to be carried in each car, so that the conductors and drivers might act understandingly, and if orders were then disobeyed they would have no excuse.

The question of punishment in these cases is one surrounded with embarrassment to the Court. The conductors and drivers are usually poor men, almost entirely dependent on their situations for the support of their families, and in nowise interested in the amount returned to their employers as the result of each trip. To inflict a punishment or penalty upon them would, it seems to me, be a great injustice and hardship. But if, in any case, it can be shown to the Court that these acts of the conductors and drivers are of the railroad companies, or if any of these officers are shown to be upon the cars, countenancing a violation of the law, the Court will visit upon them the severest penalty prescribed for such offence. Under the circumstances of this case, believing that the defendants did not act wilfully and maliciously, but heedlessly and without due thought or consideration, I have concluded not to punish them at this time, but to discharge them with the caution that if again brought for a like offence they must expect no mercy.

Judgment of the Court suspended.

ESSEX COUNTY (N. J.) COURTS.

The Pet Halsted Murder and Other Notorious Newark Criminalities.

The September term of the Essex County Courts opened yesterday at the Court House in Newark. Mr. O'Fake, a colored man, was among the Grand Jurors. Judge Depue delivered his charge, a lengthy document, the most important parts of which are those bearing on

by George Botts, and on the frightful slaughter on the Newark and New York Railroad.

The inquisition taken first in order was upon the body of Oliver S. Halstead, Jr., a known citizen of this city. The charge in the inquisition is that the said George Botts is guilty of murder. It is sufficient on this occasion to say that if the same testimony shall be produced before you in an indictment for the grave offence indicated by the Coroner's jury it should be found that the accused may be put upon trial.

THE DRUILS SWITCHES SLAUGHTER.

The second of these inquisitions was taken upon the bodies of five persons who came to their death upon the Newark and New York Railroad on the 9th day of July last, in a collision between two trains on that road, caused by a misplacement of a switch, which was then in charge of one William Thompson. The Coroner's jury find that the accident resulted from the carelessness of the switchtender. The law on this subject has recently received consideration by the Supreme Court and is well settled. If the omission to perform a duty such as devolves upon a person having charge of a switch upon a railroad is wilful and death results therefrom, the crime is murder. If the default is the result of negligence the offence is manslaughter.

THE TRIAL OF BOTTS

will not take place for ten days. He has lately been extremely morose, and not long ago tried to obtain laudanum with which to kill himself. He still madly loves the woman Wilson. The latter has kept herself entirely secluded, since the Coroner's inquest, in her father's house.

THE FERRY ENCROACHMENT.

The Committee from the Board of Aldermen of Brooklyn Confers With the Representatives of the Union Ferry Company.

At noon yesterday Messrs. Morse and Smith, President and Superintendent of the Union Ferry Company, met the committee from the Board of Aldermen of Brooklyn to confer with them in regard to the question of encroachment of the new ferry house at the foot of Fulton street on city property. Messrs. Smith and Morse were seconded by the counsel for the ferry company, Mr. Benjamin D. Silliman. That gentleman opened the proceedings with a lengthy argument in support of the ferry company. He declared that the company had no selfish or mercenary motives in the construction of the ferry building to its present line, and that it was the desire of the company to harmonize with the city government and to respect the city officials. The substance of Mr. Silliman's argument bore upon the acceptance by the committee of a proposition from the ferry company to pay to the city the nominal sum of $1 for the privilege of using the ground encroached upon by the ferry building. The structure, he said, had cost the company $100,000, and the company would not receive an additional cent more fare by its construction. The city ought to be satisfied to yield the strip of land encroached upon for the public interest and for the nominal sum of $1. The counsel assured the committee in a positive manner that the ferry company was not organized or operated for the purpose of money making. That with its capital of $1,000,000 the directors of the company hold less than $28,000 worth of the stock. Their interests were in Brooklyn and they felt a pride in the growth and prosperity of the city. Of the 10,000 shares but 2,000 are held in New York and Brooklyn; the larger portion of them are held in Queens and Suffolk counties and other localities.

Corporation Counsel De Witt replied to the argument of Mr. Silliman, and considered it a "remarkable address," but he supposed that an examination was to be held between the ferry company and the city. The company, he remarked, had remained in the same position with their old building for twenty-five years, and when the officials of the Brooklyn departments were absent from the city in the summer the ferry company deliberately encroached upon the street and claimed ownership. He did not appreciate their interest as Brooklyn men nor the nominal sum proposed by the company. The company ought to pay rent for the ground encroached upon in accordance with its worth. New York, in yielding up her claim for a nominal sum, obtained one cent ferriage for a portion of the day, and he would suggest that the one cent ferriage be continued through the day.

MR. SILLIMAN said the ferry could not be run for one cent fare, and that of the five ferries of the company the Fulton ferry alone pays expenses.

The committee adjourned and will report the result of their conference at the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

WEDDED WOE.

Another Complicated Divorce Case—Cruel Treatment Alleged on One Side, Extravagance on the Other—A Thirteen Years' Married Life To Be Dissolved—The Case Referred.

The divorce suit in which Maria F. Nooney is plaintiff and Robert S. Nooney defendant, came off yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas, before Judge Charles P. Daly, on affidavits of the parties. The facts as detailed in the affidavits present this as one of those singular cases which of late years, owing to "the progress of the age," have become so numerous as to occupy the attention of courts and juries to a considerable extent. Both the husband and wife, as appears by the papers, are parties moving in the "first society" of this city, and lived in a style of fashion and splendor up to the time of the separation. The plaintiff is a ladylike and accomplished looking person, and the mother of thirteen children, four of whom—three boys and a girl—are still living with her. The plaintiff now applies to the Court for alimony, on the following statement of facts set forth in her complaint:—On the 21st of August, 1854, the plaintiff was married to the defendant in this city, and has lived here since with him until he deserted her a year ago this coming October. Almost immediately the defendant commenced a series of cruel and inhuman acts towards her and her children, which continued until he abandoned her, using the most obscene and shameful language in presence of his children. In January, 1860, the mother of plaintiff being but two weeks dead, and the plaintiff having a nursing baby two weeks old at her breast, her husband asked her for some papers relating to her mother's estate, and because she did not forthwith produce them he beat her,

DRAGGED HER BY THE HAIR

along the floor through the house, nearly killing her, and causing a severe fit of sickness, by which she lost the proper nourishment for her baby, who died soon after. On another occasion he took two of the children out in the street at one o'clock in the morning, in their night clothes, during a severe snow storm. In 1862 he dragged his wife down stairs by the hair. In September, 1864, the house in which they lived took fire, leaving only the cellar for them to live in, and for three weeks the plaintiff and her children were compelled to live in this cellar by the defendant, who would not allow them to go to the house of his wife's relatives, where they could find comfortable shelter. The defendant then removed them to the first floor of a house in Twenty-seventh street, the other floors of which were occupied as a house of prostitution, and during the time they lived there he was absent five nights consecutively, and on his return home he threw dirty water on the plaintiff. On Christmas Eve, 1864, he stabbed her in the shoulder with a penknife, hit her in several parts of the face and tore her clothes. At another time he threw her on her back upon the stairs with such violence as to cause the premature birth of twins. One evening he burned her in the face with a lighted cigar. After continuing this and until the 27th of October, 1870, he wholly deserted her and her children, leaving them without any means of support, and on the 11th of the same month had a notice published in the newspapers forbidding any one to trust her on his account. He has never since made any provision for her support except to a very small extent. After leaving his wife thus he came to see her on two or three occasions, when he renewed his brutal treatment. The plaintiff threatening legal proceeding, he induced her to enter into a written agreement with him on the 25th of last March by which she agreed that they should live separately, she to have the custody of the four children, and that the defendant should allow her to live upon. The plaintiff says she has fulfilled her part of this agreement, but that the defendant has entirely failed to carry out his part, concealing the actual amount of his income; that when she married him he had no means, but that her mother furnished him with money to purchase the business of a meat market, from which he now derives a profit of at least $15,000 a year. The defendant replies to the charges of his wife by stating that she was guilty of gross extravagance, which caused him much embarrassment in his business, she expending fabulous sums of money for dress, ornaments, furniture, &c.; that any misconduct of his has been caused by exasperation at her extravagance, and that she accused him of adultery and all kinds of misconduct. He claims, also, to have fulfilled his agreement with her, made in March last, and that his income does not exceed $7,000 a year. Judge Daly ordered a reference to Murray Hoffman to ascertain the amount of the defendant's income and what would be a reasonable amount to allow plaintiff for alimony and counsel fee.

OTHER KINDS OF BAD TREATMENT

A CASE OF HYDROPHOBIA.

Michael Lyden, a blacksmith, only nineteen years of age, died yesterday at 491 avenue A, of hydrophobia. On the 24th of March last Lyden was bitten by a dog not then thought to be rabid, notwithstanding which, however, the brute was killed the same day. The wound soon healed up, and little more was thought of it by Lyden till a few days ago, when symptoms of hydrophobia were developed. Dr. Powell was called in on Monday, but the patient grew worse, and died soon afterwards. Coroner Keenan was notified to hold an inquest on the body.

SLAUGHTERED ON THE RAIL.

Between five and six o'clock last evening a child named Julius Kaiser was run over by a South Fourth street and Bushwick car at Johnson avenue and Morrell street, Williamsburg, and had both legs terribly crushed. The little sufferer was carried to its parents' residence, 213 Johnson street, where it died in a short time. George Handy, the driver of the car, was arrested and locked up in the Stagg street station house to await the result of an inquisition by Coroner Whitehill.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

The Junior Champions of the North Defeat the Junior Champions of the South.

The Mutuals, of Washington, D. C., who, by the way, claim to be the Junior champions of the South, arrived in this city yesterday morning and were escorted to the Revere House by a committee of gentlemen from the Flyaway Club. In the afternoon they were snugly packed away in a fine stage drawn by four horses, which the Flyaway gentlemen had provided for the occasion, and were driven over to the Capitoline Grounds, where they played the Junior champions of this section, the Flyaways. The game was not remarkable for any particular brilliancy on either side, and was finally won by the New Yorkers, with the following score:—

Clubs.	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th.	7th.	8th.	9th.
Flyaways	4	1	13	0	3	0	0	5	4—[illegible]
Mutuals	4	0	1	2	0	0	0	0	4—11

Umpire—Mr. Rogers, of the Star Club.

Base Ball Notes.

To-day the Mutuals, of Washington, D. C., play the Amitys, of South Brooklyn, on the Capitoline Grounds.

To-morrow the Montauks, of this city, play the Washington Mutuals on the Capitoline.

To-morrow morning the Olympics, of Washington, D. C., start off on a Northern tour, and play the Pastimes, of Baltimore, in the latter city in the afternoon of the same day. The next day (Friday) they play the Mutuals of this city, on the Union Grounds, Saturday they play the Red Stockings in Boston, and Monday they again play the Mutuals on the Union Grounds, Williamsburg. The next day (the 26th inst.) they play the Eckfords, and Wednesday and Thursday they play the Haymakers at Troy. On the 30th inst. they play the Athletics in Philadelphia.

To-morrow (Thursday) the Eckfords and Mutuals play the last and deciding game of their series on the Union Grounds.

The Union nine will be as follows:—Birdsall, catcher; G. Wright, short stop; Martin (of the Eckfords), pitcher; Bellan, third base, Austin, first base; Smith, right field, Martin, second base; Beals, left field, Shelly, centre field and Reynolds as substitute. The Union Ground, Williamsburg, will be the scene of operations.

THE STARVATION OF AN INNOCENT.

More About "the Man with the Iron Jaw"—Story of a Citizen of Carmel—Will the Murderers of the Starved Boy be Punished?

A respectable citizen of Carmel, Putnam county, coming to this city yesterday afternoon called at the HERALD office and told what he knew of the revolting tragedy which has so lately occurred in that quiet village. His story is as follows:—

On Thursday morning the O'Brien Menagerie arrived in Carmel, and the company took lodgings at the hotel in which I am residing, kept by Mr. D. Lockwood. It was soon rumored around that they had with them

A VERY SICK BOY,

who was, in fact, in a dying condition. The manager of the troupe, whose name, I think, is Whittaker, said to the son of the landlord that the boy had been ailing for some time. During the day, however, the suspicious circumstances which have been related in the HERALD occurred. Toward evening I went down stairs from my room and happened to meet one of the showmen. In conversation with him I spoke of the sick boy, and he said:—

"I've just been up to see him."

"How is he?"

The man shook his head and said,

"He is very cold and is about dying. Poor fellow! he is

NOTHING BUT SKIN AND BONES.

He is as white as a sheet and almost as thin. He looks awful."

On the same day one of the showmen went to a drug store in the village several times to purchase alcohol. The owner of the store rode down in the cars with me this morning. He says that the man who came for the alcohol told him for what it was to be used—to bathe the body of the boy, who was covered with bruises, although already a perfect skeleton. "When I think of the poor child," he said with much agitation, "tortured in that way to such

A DEMONIACAL DEATH,

I feel so sorry for him that if I dared I would divulge things that would be sure to hang his murderers." When asked why he did not disclose the whole facts he said that he feared he himself would be implicated. His unguarded exclamations were undoubtedly actuated by remorse. A friend and myself sat up on Thursday night until three o'clock, engaged in playing billiards and smoking. I knew nothing of the boy's death until just before we went to bed, when the son of the landlord returned to the hotel with a coffin. It was a rude affair. Almost as soon as the dawn came,

THE POOR, DEAD, EMACIATED CORPSE

was thrust into it and borne to the Baptist burial ground, where it was quickly and unceremoniously lowered into a shallow grave and the earth tumbled in above it. On the same day the Man of the Iron Jaw and his wife left the village for Pawlings. Now, sir, there has been and no inquest. The body lies there in its nameless grave, and although the attending doctor has said distinctly that the child died of starvation, the authorities, to my positive knowledge, have taken no action to secure the vindication of justice and common humanity.

Another View of the Case.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Sept. 19, 1871.

The authorities and some of the citizens of this town have made an investigation into the reported starving of the boy connected with O'Brien's menagerie. According to the papers in the possession of the French actors it appears that they took the boy from the House of Refuge in New Orleans about the 25th of March last and gave him duties of a light nature to perform, intending to advance him as he became more useful. He had, however, a broken arm at the time they took him, and immediately after was taken with chronic diarrhœa, and was supposed to be afflicted with a certain inherited disease. Mrs. Whittaker and other attachés of the company assert that since the 1st of May the boy has received good medical treatment and such care as could be given him. They say he has always been given sufficient food, though not always such as he desired, as it was deemed best for his health not to do so. It appears from the testimony that the boy had a very unnatural appetite, and would if left alone drink all his medicine or any filthy slops within his reach. Those engaged in the investigation say that if all be true which they have heard from the company in regard to the boy's filthy habits and condition it is surprising that he lived so long without a great deal of care and nursing. The committee do not believe the boy was starved, and think that if the company's statements are true great injustice has been done them. The report is signed by the Selectmen of New Milford and others.

ARREST ON SUSPICION OF MURDER.

Close Confinement, the Object Being to Extort a Confession.

Mrs. Hyer, a very respectable appearing woman, living on the corner of Seventy-sixth street and Second avenue, called at the Coroners' office yesterday afternoon to see Coroner Young in relation to her son, William, a youth of seventeen years, who had been arrested ten days or more ago by the Nineteenth precinct police, on suspicion of having stabbed and killed David Dorian, late of 172 Delancey street, on or about the 5th inst., near a provision and fruit stand in Jones' Wood, during the Scotch celebration. Mrs. Hyer states that her son, whom she alleges is perfectly innocent of the charge, was taken into custody and incarcerated in a close cell and efforts made to extort a confession from him, since which time she has been unable to see or communicate with him, that the fact of the arrest has been kept from the authorities outside the station house, &c.

Mrs. Hyer considers it an outrage that she is not permitted to visit her son and furnish him with some of the necessaries of life during the time of his imprisonment. Her object in seeing Coroner Young, to whom she had been referred by Superintendent Kelso, was to ask permission to see the prisoner, to learn when the investigation in the case of Dorian would take place and the probable length of time that would elapse before her son might be liberated; but owing to the absence of the Coroner Mrs. Hyer could not obtain the information she so ardently desired.

Young Hyer has not a clean record, he having been arrested some months ago for a serious assault, for which he suffered the penalty; but his mother strenuously insists that he is not a murderer, and demands a speedy investigation, to the end that his innocence may be established.

SUICIDE OF AN INVALID LADY.

Coroner Schirmer was yesterday called to No. 13 avenue A to hold an inquest over the remains of Mrs. Mary Pellintz, a German lady, sixty-seven years of age, who committed suicide. Mrs. Pellintz had been an invalid, at intervals, for years past, in consequence of which her nervous system had become completely unstrung. So intense were her sufferings that she was unable to sleep nights, and on more than one occasion she had threatened to terminate her existence; but the family seemed to entertain no serious fears that she would execute the threat. Mrs. Pellintz retired to rest, as usual, on Monday evening, but, during the night arose without the knowledge of her husband, and, by means of a towel, which she secured about her neck, hung herself to a hook in the wall in the rear basement. The act was not made known till daylight, when Mr. Pellintz found deceased hanging, quite dead, and cut the body down. Deceased has left a family of adult children.

THE MUNICIPAL MUDDLE is over. Laus Deo!

THE ERIE RAILWAY now puts in its claim for the refunding of taxes, amounting to one hundred thousand dollars.

PRESIDENT GRANT had a grand reception in Cincinnati yesterday. To be received with honor near one's old home is a reward that few of the prophets enjoyed.

CHIEF JUSTICE MCKEAN, of Utah, charged the Grand Jury of that Territory yesterday, it being composed altogether of Gentiles, that bigamy was a crime in Utah as well as elsewhere, and that it was their duty to present persons guilty of it for trial. Evidently Brigham is in an unsatisfactory situation.

THE WASHINGTON TREATY COMMISSION.—Mr. Russell Gurney, of London, the British member of the Commission to decide upon the claims of British citizens for damages during our civil war, arrived in this city yesterday. The Commission, which was created by the Treaty of Washington, will hold its first meeting in Washington city on the 25th inst.

PROGRESS OF THE CHOLERA.—The cholera does not seem to relax its hold or abate its force in its march over Europe. The telegram from Berlin which we publish to-day reports that the disease increases in virulence in the famous old city of Königsberg, where the ratio of deaths has increased from fifty to seventy and even eighty per cent. For the week ending last Sunday three hundred deaths from cholera are recorded.

MR. BAEZ, THE PRESIDENT OF ST. DOMINGO, it seems, still defers to the wishes and instructions of the United States in matters of domestic policy. Recently he declined to say to the British Chargé d'Affaires at his Court whether he would be willing to patch up a peace with Hayti until he could hear from our government on the subject. Mr. Baez is entirely too modest. We have disposed of the affair between his little island and ourselves, and don't wish to direct his affairs any further.

GENERAL GRANT, in his late reconnoissance of the oil regions, was received from point to point with popular demonstrations of welcome, embracing processions, mass meetings, arches of flowers and evergreens, fireworks, serenades, &c., and was cheered with the good will of people who are in earnest. From these significant manifestations of popular respect we think it may be safely assumed that General Grant in Pennsylvania is good for another election by an undiminished majority.

LITTLE MAC has entrenched himself firmly behind his works in the Dock Department, and declines to attack the Comptrollership

The End of the Political Turmoil—Will It Satisfy the People?

Some very curious features developed themselves in the city complications yesterday; features which cannot fail to awaken serious reflections in the minds of all intelligent people. The situation may be thus summed up—on the one side General McClellan has declined the appointment of City Comptroller tendered him by Mayor Hall, and Richard O'Gorman, Counsel to the Corporation, has addressed a communication to the Mayor, advising him to make no other appointment, but to withdraw his notice to the various departments, and to treat Connolly as Comptroller de facto if he does not regard him as Comptroller de jure. "It seems to me," says the Corporation Counsel, "that you should be governed in this matter more by considerations of expediency and sound policy than by those merely of strict legal power and right;" and he proceeds to argue that the prolonged legal controversy to which a contest for the Comptrollership would unquestionably lead, would occasion financial difficulties and complications, prolong the public excitement and sense of insecurity, and cause great damage to the city treasury and to the public creditors. On the other side, the Committee of Seventy adopted a set of resolutions endorsing the appointment of Andrew H. Green as Deputy Comptroller, calling on all good citizens to give him their moral support as guardian of the public funds of the city, and pledging the committee to aid him pecuniarily and by counsel in all lawful ways to retain his position. Armed with these resolutions a sub-committee waited upon Deputy Green and Comptroller Connolly, the latter of whom assured his visitors of his determination not to be sacrificed by his associates in the city government, bigger rogues than himself, without dragging them down with him, and pledged himself to let the citizens know all the workings of the Comptroller's office and who were interested in them. In addition to this we have a remarkable and scarcely credible statement from the plaintiff in the city injunction case, to the effect that Connolly has placed in the hands of the Committee of Seventy proofs which establish his own criminality and that of other members of the government, and has promised to make restitution of all he "owes" to the city out of his private fortune. Finally, an evening paper announces—first, that Connolly has lodged his resignation in the hands of Messrs. Havemeyer and Tilden, as a security to his new friends that he will not cheat them by removing Deputy Green or resuming the duties and powers of his office; and, secondly, that Peter B. Sweeny endorses the appointment of Mr. Green, and advises Mayor Hall to accept the situation.

Now what is to be the upshot of all this? Mayor Hall will probably act upon the advice of the Corporation Counsel, cease all attempts to remove Connolly and again recognize him as City Comptroller. The injunction against the city may be removed by Judge Barnard, on the ground that Deputy Green is practically Comptroller, and the wheels of the municipal machine will again be set in motion. The Committee of Seventy will continue to meet, to talk and to resolve; the razor-strop journalists will keep up their cry of frauds and their promises of developments in order to bring a few dollars into their empty pockets through the sale of their papers, and by the time the fall election comes on a new city ring will be formed to contest the possession of the municipal spoils with the old Tammany Ring. We unhesitatingly denounce this whole business as a shameful fraud upon the people of New York, who have demanded an investigation into the alleged plunder of the city treasury and the punishment of the public robbers. Every good citizen approved of the legal steps taken before Judge Barnard to prevent the further depletion of the city treasury, and when the judgment was rendered and the Court fixed upon Comptroller Connolly a criminal responsibility for frauds "of the character of highway robbery" the sentiment of the people of New York, outside political jobbers, place-holders and place-hunters, was unanimous in favor of his instant removal from office. The Chief Magistrate of the city, whose duty it was to act in the matter, took such steps as were then within his reach to get rid of the unfaithful officer and to fill his place with a man whose character and competency were unquestionable and unquestioned. Every friend of reform should have joined in the effort to drive Connolly from the Finance Department; but, instead of this, through the intrigues of those who desired to turn the disgrace of the city to their own political profit and advancement, a compromise and alliance was made with the tainted official, and a plot was concocted by which the efforts of the Mayor could be defeated and Connolly retained in office. The pretended object was the exposure of other city officials, who were said to be implicated with Connolly, and against whom he was to turn "State's evidence." The real object was to break the Tammany Ring, through the aid of Connolly, and to form another "Ring" in its place. No person could believe or affirm that General McClellan would not have made a thorough and effective investigation into the affairs of the Comptroller's office, or that he would have screened any guilty party, no matter whom he might be. But he would not have answered the purpose of the politicians who are endeavoring to ride into power on the excitement of the hour; he would not have lent himself to keep up that excitement to subserve political ends. So Connolly was taken in hand by Samuel J. Tilden, a democratic politician whose merits have not been recognized by the Tammany Ring; by ex-Mayor Havemeyer, a respectable citizen, but nevertheless a politician of the anti-Tammany stripe; by Rufus Andrews, a notorious political wire-puller, and the result was the appointment of Andrew H. Green as Deputy Comptroller and the retention of Connolly in office. As we have before said, Mr. Green is, no doubt, an honest and competent man, but we warn our citizens that the whole reform movement, under the bargains and schemes of the politicians, is likely to be defeated; that the threatened developments will probably be used as a political weapon until after election, and will then be heard of no more.

The HERALD has for years denounced the corruptions of politicians of all shades in the city government, and has demanded investigation, retribution and reform. At the same time we have warned the people that the needy English Bohemians and political adventurers who have recently been so clamorous in their outcry against municipal frauds were only using the popular excitement for their own unworthy ends. The result has justified our prediction. There was a direct, legal and peaceable way out of all our difficulties, with a certainty of bringing dishonest officials to punishment. That way was to strengthen the hands of the Chief Magistrate in his efforts to rid the departments of dishonest men and to place officers of established integrity in their places. There should never have been any compromise with self-acknowledged rogues. It is a disgrace to the city to suffer the name of Richard B. Connolly to be attached to its securities or to endure his presence in a city department. It is deplorable to find the advice given to the Chief Magistrate of a great city like New York to "be governed by considerations of expediency" rather than by considerations of "legal power and right." We believe that the people will disapprove of any such compromising policy. If Mayor Hall thinks proper to accept the situation it will no doubt be to save the city from embarrassment, and to prove that he is fearless of any investigation to be made by the chosen representatives of the Committee of Seventy. He may probably be right, although we believe that it would have been more worthy the character and dignity of a great city like New York to have insisted first and foremost upon the unqualified withdrawal of the present Comptroller from office. The termination now reached appears to us not only to establish a precedent which may bring forth evil fruit in the future, but in the present to threaten the defeat of the popular will and the virtual triumph of dishonest public officers.

MR. O'GORMAN in his letter to the Mayor attempts to throw oil on the troubled waters; but they refuse to be still. The best way to calm them is to throw "Oily Dick" overboard.

Germany and Russia—The Shadow of War Again.

In the HERALD of this morning will be found an announcement to the effect that the German army is to be restored to a peace footing immediately and its effective strength reduced to four hundred thousand men. This, it must be admitted, is encouraging news to those who believe in peace. At the same time we cannot overlook some facts of importance which point the other way. The Russian press growls savagely at Prussia, and charges her with bad faith and ingratitude. Russia evidently feels that she has been sold, as Austria and France were sold, by Bismarck. Austria has sent a circular to her representatives at foreign courts, informing them of the results of the Gastein Conference, and instructing them to assure the governments to which they are severally accredited that the negotiations concluded between Austria and Germany are in the interests of peace. We wait now to hear what Bismarck says. In a few days more we shall know exactly what was done at Gastein and at Salzburg. Not till then and not till Bismarck has said his say in the matter will it be safe to pronounce a verdict. In the meantime it does look as if Russia had been fooled and sold. An alliance offensive and defensive, it is almost safe to say, has been concluded between Austria and Germany. Whatever else may flow from the alliance this must flow from it—Russia will have to fight and win, or she will be effectually cut off from the object of her long-cherished ambition. Constantinople will no longer float before her vision as a possible prize. German unity is a great fact; but German unity is not yet completed. Austrian Germany, sooner or later, will be annexed to the empire; and the Hapsburgs may find compensation on the Lower Danube. There are certain provinces on the Baltic which in faith are Lutheran and which in speech are German. These provinces, which now groan under the yoke of Russia, must also become part of the German empire. Germany has bought over Austria to her side. Is Russia prepared to see Bismarck cut and carve Europe at will? Russia, we know, has been courting France; but France cannot be to her of much service. A few hours more and we shall know whether it is to be peace or another devastating war. So far as we can see Bismarck is playing another of his bold games, and the chances seem to be in his favor.

The City Improvements—How Will They Be Affected by the Present Trouble?

Taking it for granted that the rule of the Tammany Ring is expiring and that there will be a change in the city government, it becomes a matter of the deepest interest to consider how this may affect the great improvements projected and partly carried out by the Tammany leaders. The property holders, business men and citizens generally must be concerned about this. None will be satisfied if these improvements should be abandoned, or even long suspended. To make this great metropolis beautiful, healthful and attractive, even by the expenditure of a large sum of money, should be the aim of whoever may succeed our present rulers. That will add to its prosperity and wealth, and will repay over and over again, in the end, the amount expended. Let no mistaken policy of economy, then, interfere with these improvements. With all the frauds and stupendous extravagance of the Tammany leaders who have held the city government these men must be accorded the credit of grand designs to beautify New York. Admitting that their object was selfish, that they expended more money than needed, and that they made use of the works they undertook to enrich themselves, that does not change the character of these works or make them the less necessary. These improvements can be carried out under an honest city government, without squandering the public money and with a strict accountability for every dollar expended. We hope the reformers, if we are ever to have the good fortune to see reformers in power, will not lose sight of these facts, but will carry out the magnificent works already projected.

THE BEST WAY to get at the whole secret of the Ring is to prosecute the fellows who squeezed the municipal "tent" so rudely in their heavy bills for furnishing the County Court House. They are pretty likely to squeal if they themselves are "squeezed."

After the Contractors.

Corporation Counsel O'Gorman has made a movement in the right direction. In a letter to Mayor Hall which we publish to day he suggests that in view of the recent decision of Judge Barnard, which gives a judicial sanction to the prevalent rumors of gross extravagance in the bills of various contractors against the city, legal steps should be taken by the Corporation to recover the money paid on such bills if sufficient evidence of fraud can be obtained to sustain action. The Mayor, in his reply, reminds Mr. O'Gorman that, as the head of the Law Department, he has the full discretion to bring any action at law which he may deem desirable in the interest of the city, and declares he has entire confidence in the Corporation Counsel's judgment in the matter. It therefore remains for Mr. O'Gorman to act promptly upon his own suggestion, and to institute suits at once to compel Andrew Garvey, Ingersoll, the New York Printing Company and others to disgorge some portion of the enormous sums they have managed to draw out of the city treasury. This admirable step will answer a double purpose; it will recover back some of the money out of which the city has been plundered, and it will, in all probability, extort from the contractors valuable and interesting information as to the alleged "divisions" made by them with city officials. It may afford the people an opportunity of ascertaining how much truth there is in the current rumor that no bill against the city could go through the Comptroller's office until it had been purchased or "pinched" by parties inside the department.

But we would suggest to Mr. O'Gorman that he should go a step further, and institute legal proceedings against Comptroller Connolly for the recovery of the plunder which he is supposed to have secured out of the department over which he presides, and which, in fact, according to Mr. Foley's statement, he acknowledges to have pocketed. The Corporation Counsel, in the wide discretion given to him, has full power to commence such a suit, and he has the quasi judicial opinion of Judge Barnard to warrant the action. By all means let Mr. O'Gorman sue the New York Printing Company, Garvey, Ingersoll & Co., without delay; but do not suffer Connolly to escape. The people will look anxiously for the commencement of the promised suits.

READ FOLEY, THE TERRIBLE, on Richard, the Slippery, in another column.

Political Reform—What Is to Be Hoped from It?

The question of political reform, as a communication in another column suggests, is a hobby that has been ridden by political "outs" for two centuries in every country where there was liberty and enlightenment enough to permit politicians to do plastering and furnishing jobs, without risking their heads. It is only in despotic countries, like Russia, Germany, or France under the old Napoleon, that politicians cannot enrich themselves at the expense of the people. The plastering job, if performed in St. Petersburg, would doubtless have subjected the contractor to the knout, and the carpet furnishing arrangement, if it had fallen under the jurisdiction of the old Napoleon, would have been punished by the summary execution of Ingersoll along with the delinquent quartermasters of the army. Frederick the Great of Prussia would have tied Connolly and Keyser together and swung them off the lofty battlements of Königsberg if they had carried on their plumbing game in his time and country; but here, under a cry for reform, the guilty are to be simply replaced by those who will have fully as good a chance to steal and are blessed with a much hungrier edge of appetite. Those who have done the stealing, and all others so unfortunate as to be suspected, are to be politically decapitated by a law-observing and perfectly respectable mob, goaded to cool and calculating indignation by the cry of political reform; and immediately another crew are put in office, who, under the very lead of the so-called reformers, go to work stealing as hard as ever their predecessors did. While we are to have a change let us see that the change is an improvement. Let us have true, honest men, of undoubted integrity, returned to our Legislature this fall and appointed to fill the places of those to be decapitated; and when we have done that let us trust to a merciful Providence that they will not fall before the temptations of the Treasury and be worse than the old gorged birds of the Ring.

ACCORDING TO ST. FOLEY, sinner Connolly made a new departure yesterday. St. Foley declares that the penitent Comptroller confessed his seventy deadly sins to the seventy venerable absolvers and inquisitors of the citizens' reform junta, and expressed his willingness to go to Sing Sing if the other municipal Ringers would bear him company. Misery loves company, although we can't say that Connolly loves the "Ringers."

GREELEY VS. MURPHY.—Mr. Greeley has at last relieved his laboring mind in reference to Collector Murphy, and the budget of specifications brought forward against him as a Tammany confederate, a supporter of Andy Johnson and an opposer of negro suffrage, is awful to contemplate. But how stands Mr. Greeley himself on his war record, beginning with his justification of secession and coming down to his present efforts to get up a one-horse Presidential ticket of republican bolters against General Grant? This question may be answered by the simple remark that the main point with a party man is not so much what he has been as what he is. We presume, however, that the Republican State Convention of the 27th inst., at Saratoga Springs, will settle the question between Murphy and Greeley; but we think it probable that the decision will involve a "new departure" by Mr. Greeley.

IT IS WELL KNOWN that Mr. Green, the Deputy Comptroller, recently gave a batch of documents from his office to the Committee of Seventy. It is now intimated by Mr. Green's friends that those documents strongly implicate high officials of the city government. Why, then, are they not published? Why did not Mr. Green give them directly to the public through the newspapers, instead of consigning them to the Committee of Seventy, which, while comprising in the main many honest men, is not so zealous in the performance of its duties as it should be, and is, moreover, already giving evidence of being moved by a clique of shrewd and unprincipled politicians at its back? Let us have all these implicating documents published at once, just as they are, without erasure or addition, no matter whom they implicate.

The Remedy that Popular Clamor Proposes.

Popular clamor, represented by one or two partisan newspapers, now demands the unseating of every official at the head of the important departments of the city government. Popular clamor in this case, as usual, is deaf to the voice of reason. It is the same kind of popular clamor that a lynching party or a vigilance committee represents. It hangs two or three men for horse stealing and finds the next day that at least one of them was innocent. It makes no distinction between the innocent and guilty, and is too hasty to resort to a deliberate trial of the accused until after they are hanged. Now, while we hold that some of the accused officials are guilty—guilty in the first degree—we contend that others may be and most probably are innocent. It is blind injustice, therefore, to decapitate the whole body on the evidence that convicts only one.

And as the offices are to be filled we would fain know before they are rendered vacant who is to fill them. The voice of the people only a few months ago called these very men to the places which the voice of the people, as the partisan newspapers aforesaid now contend, is calling upon them to resign. Who will be put in their places and how will the new incumbents be chosen? Will the voice of the people be heard through the polls on the subject, or through a mysterious and secret working committee of seventy, or through the one-man utterances of Mr. Havemeyer? Let these matters be settled before we hastily proceed to judgment.

A NEW AND MOST SEASONABLE PROPOSITION comes from the Corporation Counsel. It is to prosecute the men who have charged such large sums for plastering, plumbing and furnishing. This idea will be readily accepted by the people, and we call upon the prosecuting authorities of the city to commence the suits at once.

General Butler's Up-Hill Fight—Another Orthodox Manifesto Against Him.

General Butler, we fear, has too many irons in the fire to come up to time for Governor in Massachusetts; but he has evidently alarmed the tight-laced orthodox radicals of the old Bay State with his unlooked-for successes in the election of Butler delegates to the coming regular Republican State Convention. So the old-school managers have found it necessary to bring Senators Sumner and Wilson to the rescue against the audacious hero of Fort Fisher. And so the Boston Journal and Daily Advertizer says:—"We have seen Senators Sumner and Wilson, and are authorized by them to say that they deeply regret and deplore the extraordinary canvass which General Butler has precipitated on the Commonwealth, and especially the attacks which he has volunteered against the existing State government and the republican party of Massachusetts; and that, in their opinion, his nomination as Governor would be hostile to the best interests of the Commonwealth and of the republican party."

There you have it; and if that don't settle this enfant perdu, this bad boy Butler, we should like to know what will settle him. We suspect, however, that he will not be frightened off even by this manifesto from Senators Sumner and Wilson. General Butler has two strings to his bow. His first is the Republican Convention; his second is the party of women's rights women, labor reformers, anti-ring and temperance men. The Republican Convention, they say, will be composed of nearly a thousand delegates. It will not assemble yet for a week or two, and in the mean time, of some two hundred and fifty scattering delegates elected Butler is reported as having at least a hundred, and he is working like a beaver for more, and he appears to turn up at every little town meeting where delegates are to be elected, just in time to take a hand in the work. The only issue in the State just now is Butler or anti-Butler for the regular Republican Convention. The coalition against Butler will, we conjecture, be too strong for him; but if they neglect him then he will say to the Convention, "Good morning, gentlemen," and proceed to his "new departure."

Wendell Phillips has arranged the programme. General Butler as an independent candidate will be proclaimed as standing upon the progressive ideas of "Down with the Boston ring, up with labor reform! Down with the moneyed monopolies and aristocrats, and up with the laboring masses! Down with the despotism of heartless men over defenceless women, and up with the banner of women's rights! Down with the old fossilized republican party, and up with the new liberty and equal rights' party of General Butler!" This is what we expect will be the upshot of this Butler campaign in Massachusetts. And while he will have a discouraging battle before him against John Quincy Adams as the democratic candidate on the one side and the regular republican nominee on the other, we shall not be surprised if in November we have the beginning of a great political revolution in Massachusetts, though in the beginning Butler may be defeated, and Phillips, as usual, may "come out of the little end of the horn."

THE CORPORATION COUNSEL advises the Mayor to accept the situation. In other words, the Mayor is to be controlled by the Comptroller.

A Connolly-Reform Compromise.

The retention of Connolly in the Comptroller's office, even with Andrew H. Green as his deputy, means a compromise. The demand for a reform will not permit of his retention of the most important financial office of the city government while an investigation of its affairs is going on. However honest and zealous Mr. Green may be, people cannot get rid of the idea that the presence of his superior in the office will serve greatly to hinder any thorough examination of the documents necessary to the conviction of that superior. While Connolly's fame, and probably his fortune, may be hinging upon it, is it probable that he will hesitate to conceal or make away with damaging evidence? Does the burglary at the Comptroller's office give him such a high reputation for integrity that his hand and tongue are still to be free among papers that may be calculated to damage him as much as the vouchers that were stolen? Is Mr. Andrew H. Green so firm and Spartan-like in character that the little amenities that his superior may show him, the contrite demeanor "Slippery Dick" may affect, the continuous humble suggestions of compromise that are likely to be made to him, are not likely to wear away the rugged sternness of his nature and incline him to be just a little kindly to so insinuating a penitent? If we are to have this reform in the city government let us have it without compromise. Let the accused and convicted Comptroller leave his place and give way to any capable man who is untainted. Let that man be Andrew H. Green if necessary. Let the Mayor appoint him, but let him be untrammelled by the presence of Connolly himself.

The Approaching Season of Opera at the Academy.

The season has now settled down in right earnest, and all the jaybirds of fashion are back in their nests once more, leaving mountain and seaside to their natural solitude and quiet, and pluming themselves for the winter and all its attractions. Of these attractions, numerous though they be, there is but one to which the attention of the fashionable world is directed—the promised season of opera at the Academy of Music. That the introduction to this season will be brilliant no one who knows the sterling qualities of Madame Parepa-Rosa as an artist, and the strong company with which she surrounds herself, can deny. The return of Mlle. Vanzini (Mrs. Jenny Van Zandt) is in itself an interesting event, and the introduction of new faces like those of Clara Doria, Karl and Cooke, and old favorites, Castle, Campbell and the Seguins, will engage the attention of all our opera habitués and raise expectations of the Nilsson season, which immediately follows, to fever heat.

The Swedish nightingale has wisely availed herself of her summer holidays to rest from her arduous labors of the last season and to gain the health and strength necessary for her first season of opera in America. Her success in concert has been of such an emphatic character that the highest anticipations are formed of her appearance in opera. Not only has she won the suffrages of a critical public by her delightful voice and artistic rendering of every work in her extensive répertoire, but she has gained a host of friends and admirers by her unaffected, ladylike demeanor in society, and the artless grace that characterizes her every word and action. Success like that which she has merited and won falls to the lot of very few artists. Therefore the world of fashion and art looks forward eagerly to the début of Mlle. Nilsson in opera, and there is little to fear that she will do everything on her part to make the season a grand success.

For the first time in many years the obstacles in the path of Italian opera in this city have been removed, and both the directors of the Academy and the entire musical public are prepared to give it a fair trial. On the management and the company engaged to support Mlle. Nilsson depends a great deal. The company has some strong features in an artistic point of view and also some that admit of discussion. The contralto, Miss Cary, is a thorough artist in every sense of the word, and the tenor, Capoul, comes from Europe with such flattering testimonials that we may safely concede a success to him in advance. The baritone and basa, Barré and Jamait, are entirely unknown to the American public, and they must depend solely on their artistic attainments to prove their right to occupy such important positions in an Italian opera company. The prima donna engaged to assist Mlle. Nilsson in such rôles as Philine, in "Mignon," and the Queen, in "Hamlet," is a Mlle. Leon Duval, who possesses one of the very lightest of French soprano voices. It would be well for the management, if it becomes necessary, to effect some arrangement with a prima donna of recognized ability to sing in such important rôles as those we have mentioned. We have the material here, and there is no need of drawing farther upon Europe. Brignoli, of the silver voice, has been retained for the season, and with him the public are very well and favorably acquainted.

The most encouraging promises are made concerning that bête noire of American impresarii, the chorus and orchestra, which has been hitherto a disgrace to art. The manager announces that a strong detachment in both departments has been secured from Covent Garden and Her Majesty's. If so, and despite the elasticity of managerial statements, we will give this announcement credence, the prospects of a brilliant season are highly encouraging. We may remark here that the chorus and orchestra of the Parepa-Rosa troupe have also been largely reinforced by London artists.

It is not too late before the opening of either season of opera at the Academy to offer a few words of advice to the management. By dealing fairly and liberally with the public and striving honestly to present an ensemble perfect in every detail, the management will receive such patronage as will astonish even the oldest habitués of the opera house, and opera will have a chance at last of becoming a permanent institution in the metropolis. Parsimony in any department, company, chorus, orchestra, costumes, mise en scène, &c., will tend to weaken the faith of the public in opera management. Then the resident vocal and instrumental talent can always be made available for opera, and perfection of ensemble is attainable where competency, energy and skill are at the head of a troupe. Madame Parepa-Rosa opens at the Academy of Music on October 2, for a season of nine subscription nights, six extra nights and three matinées. The new works in her répertoire are "Anna Bolena," "Gazza Ladra," "Lurline," "Lucrezia Borgia," "Satanella," "Columella" and "The Water Carrier." A few performances will be, probably, given in Italian and German with the tenor Wachtel, who is now performing at the Stadt Theatre.

Mlle. Nilsson commences a season of twenty nights at the Academy on October 23. The first opera in which she appears will be "Faust." The following is the cast:—Marguerite, Nilsson; Siebel, Cary; Faust, Capoul; Mephistopheles, Jamait; Valentin, Barré. "Mignon," will be produced about the fourth night of the season, and "Hamlet" has been left over for the spring season. With two such formidable opera troupes and Dolby's singers from London, the Vienna Lady Orchestra and Mrs. Moulton in concert, no one can complain of not having an abundance of musical attractions.

The American Jockey Club Races—October Meeting at Jerome Park.

The American Jockey Club presents for its fall meeting a brilliant programme. Six races are to take place each day, and the meeting will present every variety of horse race "on the flat," from three-quarters of a mile to four miles, as well as steeple chases and hurdle races.

On the first day (October 7) a truly grand entertainment will be given. The first race will be a handicap sweepstakes for all ages, a mile and a quarter, for which twenty-one have been nominated—a good lot, securing plenty of starters. The second race will be the Champion Stakes, for three-year-olds, $100 each, half forfeit, with $1,500 added, &c., two miles, for which there are seventy-seven nominations, including about all the good colts and fillies in the country. A very large field will probably start for this important event. To say nothing of the probability that of so many there must be some good ones yet "in the dark," those already prominent from fine performances are sufficiently numerous to guarantee an interesting contest. Harry Bassett will doubtless be a great favorite, in view of his numerous successes; but he will probably have to contend with Nellie Gray, Monarchist, By the Sea, Elsie, John Merryman, Eolus, Mary Clark, McKinney, Auriola, Hilderic, Alroy, Nellie Ransom, Frank Ross, the Censor-Julia colt and others; and those familiar with the racing of the year will recognize among those named a number of dangerous customers. The third race of the day will be the Nursery Stakes, for two-year-olds, $50 entrance, play or pay, with $1,000 added, &c.; one mile—thirty-four nominations. A glance at the list of nominations will discover more than a dozen probable and hopeful starters—St. Patrick, King Ernest (imported), Blenkiron (imported), Eclipse-Maud colt, Citizen, War Jig, Vandal-Margravine colt (brother to James A. Connolly), Jo Daniels, Woodbine, Victoria, Wade Hampton, Experience Oaks, besides several from the stables of Mr. J. S. Watson, Mr. R. W. Cameron and others. Among such a lot it will be exceedingly difficult to designate a winner, and we predict that this will be one of the greatest betting races of the meeting. The fourth race of the day will be three-quarters of a mile, for all ages. The fifth, a sweepstakes for four-year-olds, $500 entrance, $100 forfeit, four miles—a private sweepstakes—to which the following spirited turfmen are the subscribers, viz.:—Messrs. J. J. O'Fallon, Francis Morris, D. D. Withers, Denison & Crawford, T. W. Doswell, L. W. Jerome & Co., A. Belmont, F. M. Hall, John F. Purdy, Hunter & Travers and M. H. Sanford. Races of four miles are always interesting and generally doubtful, as something more than speed is required to win them; and the money and ambition invested in this one will be likely to secure a good race. The sixth and last race of the day will be a grand handicap steeple chase, about two and a half miles, over fences, hedges, ditches, walls, water, hurdles, &c., for a purse of $800, the entrance to which is free, and there are many good horses in preparation for it. The daring leaps in steeplechases render them intensely exciting, and it has become a necessity to the successful management of race courses to include them in programmes.

Such is the bill of entertainment for the first day, giving promise of an extraordinary amount of sport. The races for the other days of the meeting will be equally numerous and varied. Indeed, the meeting cannot fail to be one of surpassing interest, and, as the club authorities have wisely divided time between sport and business by appointing Saturday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday for racing, and leaving the intervening days for attention to business, the stands should on each day be filled to overflowing.

THE LATEST HOBOKEN TRAGEDY.

The woman Bridget Connors, who, as stated in Monday's HERALD, took Paris green in her husband's presence, at No. 109 Willow street, on Saturday night, expired yesterday morning. It was her determination from the outset to end her life, inasmuch as she experienced nothing but inhuman treatment at her husband's hands. The latter, who was brought before Recorder Bohnstedt for being drunk and attempting to kill, was committed to the county jail for sixty days. Had Mrs. Connors received due attendance from some neighbors she might perhaps have lived, but it was more in accordance with her wishes to be relieved from the misery into which she had been plunged.

THE DUKE D'AUMALE.

What He Is Reported to Have Replied to the Offer of the Presidency of the Republic.

The Duke d'Aumale is reported by the Journal Semaphore to have made the following remarks to a deputy of the National Assembly:—

> We are, you and I, quite powerless. Suppose I accept the Presidency of the republic on the terms offered by your friends, what will follow? Do you think I shall be able to keep the trust which you would confer on me? Is it to maintain and consolidate the republic that you would choose me? You know very well that my ideas, traditions, friends and family will not permit me to fulfil such a programme. But even if I should take advantage of my position to establish a monarchy, what kind of a monarchy, I ask of you, am I to establish? For whose benefit shall I make a coup d'état? For my benefit? I did not think of such a thing, for I should be looked upon as an ambitious adventurer, and people would be right, for I am no more entitled to it than you are. I could only work for my nephew, the Count de Paris; but my nephew would, perhaps, recognize the Count de Chambord as Henri V. Thus I would only establish Henry V. with his white flag, abjuring my past, the past of my family and the conquests of 1830. M. Thiers has made many faults, I grant it, but after all it is around him that we must rally, because by the prolongation of his powers you will gain time.

According to the last report of the Russian Minister of the Interior, published by the Journal de St. Petersbourg, the cholera has spread in new directions. It has appeared north of Archangel and in the south of the district of Romny, chiefly at Kiew and Nicolaiew. In several parts of the empire the cholera is decreasing. In the District of Kostroma it is more virulent than ever. It has almost entirely disappeared in the town of Nijni, but in the northwest, particularly in the province of Vitesbk, it is progressing at an alarming rate.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

Great Fire in Virginia City—Loss One Million Dollars—The Los Angeles Vintage.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19, 1871.

A special despatch says the greatest fire ever known in Virginia City, Nevada, broke out there to-day. It commenced on D street, near Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office. Everything in that quarter is burned except Root's building and the Bank of California. All the brokers' offices on both sides of C street, from Daley and Goodman to the Toltec House, are burned. Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office was partially burned. The fire is now extinguished. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000. It is impossible to obtain full particulars to-night.

A fire destroyed the hoisting works and the timber of the shaft down to the third level of the Julian gold quartz mine, at Greenville, Plumas county (Cal.), yesterday. The loss is $50,000.

The vintage of Los Angeles will exceed the annual average, and the quality throughout the State is superior.

MORMONISM DOOMED.

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 19, 1871.

The Grand Jury for the Third district were empanelled this morning. All polygamists were excused, and the Mormon journals are very bitter on the United States law officers in consequence. Chief Justice McKean, in his charge to the jury, said:—

> You are summoned, not to try criminal cases, but to say what criminal cases shall be presented for trial. In the discharge of this duty you will be governed by the same principles of law which govern Grand Juries in Maine and Montana, in Georgia and Arizona; principles of law everywhere applicable throughout the republic. The crimes of murder, arson, larceny, bigamy, adultery and riot in Utah are the same crimes elsewhere throughout Christendom. If there is anything peculiar in the situation in Utah, it is the peculiar conduct of some men here, and not any peculiar principles or policy that are to be enforced here. Utah belongs to the United States, and the people of Utah, like the people of the rest of the country, are amenable to the laws of the United States. Those who obey the laws must be, shall be protected in their rights. Those who do not must answer at the bar of justice, and those men of influence who in practice defiantly trample upon the laws themselves, and by precept teach others to do so, should be the first to feel the firm grip of the law rather than the obscure men whom they have misled. Gentlemen, it is your duty and mine to enforce the laws. Let us do so without fear, favor, affection, prejudice or the hope of reward.

FIRE IN JERSEY CITY.

A Planing Mill Consumed—Loss $30,000.

At half-past eleven o'clock last night a fire broke out in the planing mill of Darby, Snow & Prentice, Morgan street, Jersey City. The flames gained such headway that the firemen were unable to save the building when they arrived. The most that could be done was to prevent the spread of the fire to the piles of lumber lying around in every direction, and in this effort the firemen succeeded. The loss on the building and its contents, including machinery, does not fall short of $30,000; fully insured.

AMUSEMENTS.

STEINWAY HALL—VIENNA LADY ORCHESTRA.—The first season in this city of this novel and interesting musical organization is now drawing to a close. Only three nights remain, as on Thursday the young ladies pay a visit to Brooklyn. They have been received with undoubted favor by the metropolitan public and showed a marked improvement in each performance. Their programme last night comprised some of the best selections of Strauss and a very pretty arrangement of Schubert's "Wanderer." The appearance of ladies in an orchestra, which has hitherto been the exclusive province of the sterner sex, is a subject calculated to excite discussion and attract the attention of all musicians. The result has proved favorable, as the ladies have exhibited a rare delicacy and grace in their management of the various instruments that compensated to a great extent for their want of power. In a smaller hall than Steinway's the effect would be more decided, and the absence of brass instruments would not be so much felt. The experiment has, however, solved the problem which might perplex the advocates of woman's rights—whether the gentler sex can take the place of those horribly stupid-looking people from avenue C, who generally make up the rank and file of an orchestra. The young prima donna, Mlle. Elzer, has already become a real favorite. Her fine, sympathetic, highly cultivated voice, and broad, dramatic school of singing, appeals alike to the critic and the public. If her histrionic abilities in course of time prove equal to her vocal she must be a valuable addition to the opera, as we have but few prime donne of that school on the stage at present. A finer baritone than Herr Müller has not been heard on our boards in many years, and it is only a pity that he cannot have an opportunity of displaying his talents on the operatic stage this season. The debut, or rather rentree after ten years, of the celebrated Madame Fabbri, whose performances with Stigelli and Formes will be remembered, has been postponed for the present. It is likely that some arrangement may be effected between Mr. Rullman and one of our operatic managers to enable this great artiste to appear in opera. She would be certainly a feature in German opera with Herr Wachtel, as the present prima donna, Mme. Rotter, has no longer the voice to fill important rôles. Mme. Fabbri and Mlle. Pauline Canissa, who has just returned from Europe, would strengthen the German opera company to an incalculable extent. A strong evidence of the popularity of this troupe is the fact that they have given concerts here every night for nearly two weeks to large audiences (averaging such), and the difficulties of producing such a result are known to every metropolitan manager and to the public. Even Bateman, with his concert troupe at the opening of Steinway Hall, did not meet with such encouragement.

NIBLO'S—CARL, THE FIDDLER.—To what further dramatic inanity an admiration for broken English will lead it is difficult to predict. That Mr. Charles Gayler, the champion of the fragmentary drama, is the man most likely to solve the problem, we are fain to admit. This unfortunate being has led himself into the delusion that he can construct a drama from the threadbare incidents which have amused the play-going public for three generations, provided his hero talks the language of Chatham street. To analyze such a play would be as likely to result in a success as the same process applied to the veal pies in "Pickwick" in the hope of finding whose kittens had been sacrificed. It is the old story of a stolen child recovered through the means of a song of happy childhood, which we thought we had heard the last of in "One Touch of Nature," not to speak of the legend known as "The Went of the Wishton Wish." Around this is grouped a number of mechanical figures which fill up what remains of three mortal acts. The stilted dialogue of an order of romantic drama long since relegated to the Bowery and the transpontine theatres of London, has been ransacked to find dialogue for these automatons. The bold, bad, cruel parent, the pure, gentle girl who is asked to wed a libertine, the poor but proud youth who loves the wealthy scoundrel's supposed child, and who becomes the rightful heir in spite of the villain's toils, the wronged woman who has suffered in silence for twenty-five long years, to speak her mind in the last scene—all are dragged from their Oriental graves. Then, of course, comes the triumphant broken Englishman, who smooths all difficulties at the proper pitch of voice. The first act is devoted to the stealing of the child. The second act discovers her ten years after educated to the point of simplicity. She supposes herself Dora Bates, the daughter of Harper Bates, who promises her hand to a mercenary idiot (Hudson Wayne), under the threat of States Prison, made by the idiot's uncle (Dickson Scrawl), a lawyer. But she is loved by Payton Boyd, and in the most frigid manner declares that she returns the youth's passion. It is difficult to say whether this scene takes place by night or day, for the young lady is described as walking in the garden in full view of the young man. A wandering musician, who, by the way, is not a fiddler but a guitar player, is heard singing without by the guests who are assembled at a ball in honor of Dora's birthday. He is sought, and states as well as he can be understood that he is looking for his sister Hilda. He recognizes a dimple on Dora's chin and takes an early opportunity of singing the song of the girl's childhood, which, by a dramatic freak, is wholly obliterated from her memory. What follows need not be told. The villain, beset on all sides, rushes off in the third act, followed by the objectionable lawyer and his idiotic nephew. The concluding happiness comes as a matter of course. Of the acting it may be said that Mr. Emmet is worthy of a better fate; he supplies the only element of dramatic intensity in the piece, and that only in the recognition scene. The same regret may be spoken for Mr. A. H. Davenport, who is crammed into the part of the nephew, a vulgarized dilution of Lord Dundreary, who culminates his offensiveness by appearing tipsy in the last scene. Mr. Hastings as Harper Bates is, if possible, more angular than the part. The heroine is Miss Minnie Maddern in the first act and Miss Frankie McLellan in the other two. The latter lady has much to learn before her simplicity is more than mawkish. The injured Polly Searles, who is disgustingly forced into an admission of her moral shortcomings, is played by Miss Ida Vernon with as much finish as the disgraceful theme of her part will admit. There are some "ladies" and "gentlemen" introduced, who are fair specimens of scene shifters in seedy garments. Since the play has appeared we can only rest our hope in its early demise. An overture composed by G. Operti was played before the piece.

HERR WACHTEL makes his second appearance at the Stadt Theatre to-night in "The Postillion of Lonjumeau," and his third appearance on Friday in "Trovatore."

THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION AT BUFFALO.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1871.

The formal opening of the second International Industrial Exhibition, under the auspices of the Buffalo Mechanics' Institute, took place this evening in the presence of an immense crowd of spectators.

At half-past seven o'clock Governor John T. Hoffman, escorted by the brigade and staff officers of the Sixty-fifth and Seventy-fourth regiments New York State National Guard, in full uniform, and the officers of the Industrial Exhibition entered the music stand in the Rink amid the deafening applause of the spectators. After prayer by the Rev. Dr. Heacock and the opening address by Myron E. Brown, the president of the Mechanics' Institute, Governor Hoffman was introduced and delivered an eloquent oration, which was listened to with marked attention. The Governor was frequently and loudly applauded.

After the opening exercises the Governor, attended by his escort, surveyed the different departments of the exhibition, and was warmly greeted at every turn.

The exhibition is a grand success. Every branch of industry is largely represented. The machinery department is in full operation and claims the attention of every class of society. New entries are continually being made and additional buildings will have to be erected for their accommodation.

Governor Hoffman was the recipient of two serenades to-night at the residence of Mr. Joseph Warren, editor of the Buffalo Courier—the first by the officers of the Mechanics' Institute and the second by the officers of the National Guard. On both occasions appropriate addresses and responses were made.

Meeting of the United States and British Mixed Commission.

The United States and British Mixed Commission under the Treaty of Washington, for the examination and decision of the claims of both countries, other than those known as the Alabama claims, will hold their first meeting in Washington on Monday, the 25th inst. The Right Hon. Russell Gurney, M. P., Recorder of London, is the commissioner on the part of Great Britain; Henry Howard, Esq., is the agent, and James M. Carlisle, Esq. (of Washington), the counsel for the British claims; Hon. James G. Frazer, of Indiana, is commissioner on the part of the United States, and Hon. Robert S. Hale, of New York, agent and counsellor for the American claims. The commissioners will do nothing more on the first day of meeting than to submit their credentials, and make, and subscribe to, a solemn declaration that they will carefully examine and decide, to the best of their judgment and according to justice and equity, all such claims as shall be laid before them on the part of the governments of the United States and of Her Britannic Majesty respectively; and also take measures for framing the rules by which their action is to be governed. Judge Frazer has written a note, saying that he will be present on Monday, and Recorder Gurney is expected to reach New York from London to-morrow. Mr. Carlisle has been advising counsel for the British legation here during the last fifteen years.

Hayti Wants Peace with Dominica—British Intrigue Foiled.

It is stated that Mr. Stephen Preston, Minister of Hayti, who lately returned from a short visit to his country, has been instructed by his government to ask the Cabinet of Washington to use its friendly offices in order to bring to a satisfactory conclusion the difficulties existing between the republics of Dominica and Hayti. The intervention of the United States is to effect the permanent establishment of peace, the settlement of the boundary line separating the two countries, the final adjustment of the claims pending between them, and the prevention of further revolutions by unscrupulous military leaders under the guarantees of the United States and of the principal European Powers. The following extracts of a letter from a high authority in Port au Prince gives an exact account of the situation on this subject:—

> PORT AU PRINCE, Sept. 8, 1871.
> Mr. Spencer St. John, the British Chargé d'Affaires, arrived here on the 30th of July last, after a protracted absence of several months in Europe. On the 12th ult. he embarked for St. Domingo on board an English gunboat. The object of that visit was to present his credentials in the capacity of Chargé d'Affaires near the republic of Dominica. On his arrival he was informed that President Baez had left for Azua. Not deeming it proper to wait for his return Mr. St. John presented his letters to the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who accredited him at once. After having discussed some matters relating to several British claims, which were readily admitted, Mr. St. John asked in an unofficial manner if it was true that President Baez had signified, some time ago, his intention to abandon the project of annexation if the government of Hayti was willing to make peace with him? To that question the Secretary thought proper to give no answer. Mr. St. John is well known in St. Domingo as being opposed to the annexation scheme, as well as for his antagonism to the Salnave party, his friendly feelings for President Saget and for the people of Hayti. This being kept in view, it is not to be wondered at the extreme displeasure felt by President Baez. On learning that the British Chargé d'Affaires, who was presented to him on the following day, had beneficially accredited, Baez could do nothing except conceal his bad humor at this unwelcome addition to the diplomatic corps in St. Domingo. Mr. St. John said to the President that he heard that his Excellency remarked to a French and to an English officer that he had been obliged to ask for the protection of, and the annexation to, the United States on account of the aggressive attitude assumed by the government of Hayti, but that he was willing to give up the project should President Saget consent to treat with him and establish good and peaceful relations between the two republics. Should this be the case, added Mr. St. John, he was authorized, but unofficially, to do his best to help to effect a satisfactory result for both parties. Baez refrained from giving an answer until the following day, and, after having consulted with the American agent, he told the British Chargé d'Affaires that he could not decide positively as to his future intentions before knowing the views of the government of the United States. The day after the Secretary of State, Mr. Gautier, left for New York to see General Grant and make some arrangements in favor of President Baez. Mr. St. John, seeing that he was losing time in trying to prevail upon the Chief Magistrate of St. Domingo to accept his friendly offices, returned to Port au Prince, where he exercises also the functions of Chargé d'Affaires.

Erroneous Charges Against a Steam Boiler Inspector.

Supervising Inspector Menshaw, of the Baltimore district, has reported to the Secretary of the Treasury that the charges made against Inspector E. E. Howes, of Charleston, for neglect of duty in inspecting the boilers of the steamer R. E. Lee, which exploded on the 17th of August, are entirely erroneous. The boilers were properly inspected at the required time, and the statement that he had neglected to do this for years was disproved by the fact that the steamer had been built but two years when the accident resulting in the death of three men occurred.

Refunding Taxes to the Erie Railroad.

David Dudley Field, of New York, to-day made an argument before Commissioner Douglass in favor of the claim of the Erie Railway Company of that State for the refunding and abatement of certain taxes assessed against that road. The amount involved is over one hundred thousand dollars. He claims that money raised by the sale of bonds is not liable to taxation, not being earnings of the road. The Commissioner reserved his decision.

MOVEMENTS OF THE PRESIDENT.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 19, 1871.

President Grant reviewed the Zouave and colored battalion and the Police and Fire Department at the Burnet House this morning. He received an address of welcome by Mayor Davis, to which he responded briefly. At noon he was introduced on 'Change. The President spoke briefly, expressing his gratification at meeting this reception from the people, and all the more because it was from the people of a great nation, and not from those of a divided country.

A large and spirited meeting was held last evening at 105 East Broadway, headquarters of the William M. Tweed Club. Resolutions complimentary to Senator Tweed, endorsing his course as the great upholder of democratic principles, and resolutions nominating Judge Shandley for Register were adopted. Addresses were delivered by Messrs. Delancy, O'Neill, Black and Haggerty. President Sheils presided on the occasion and gave his assistance in a most praiseworthy manner towards the general success of the meeting.

Organization of the Twentieth Ward Tammany Association.

A number of young gentlemen, who last year composed a club for the support of James O'Brien, but who now renounce their allegiance to that eminent personage to come to the succor and vindication of much-assailed Tammany, met last evening in a saloon at the corner of Twenty-seventh street and Sixth avenue, and organized the Twentieth Ward Tammany Association, electing the following officers:—Peter Donnelly, President; George J. Prentice, Vice President; Thomas J. Eagan and Henry Fitzgerald, Secretaries; Alexander Webber, Treasurer. About one hundred and fifty names are already on the roll of membership. Mr. Peter Trainor, who heartily approves the movement, was expected to be present last evening, but did not make an appearance. A larger meeting will be held on Thursday, next week.

KINGS COUNTY POLITICS.

Meeting of the Democratic General Committee—The Primaries—An Inspector of Election in Preference to a Police Sergeancy.

An adjourned meeting of the Democratic General Committee was held last evening at the headquarters of that organization, No. 9 Court street, Brooklyn, Mayor Kalbfleisch in the chair. The meeting was held for the purpose of making arrangements for holding the primaries and electing delegates to the State Convention to be held at Rochester, October 4, and also to the Judiciary Convention. It was resolved that the primaries should be held on Tuesday evening, September 26, to elect three delegates from each ward and county town, to meet on the 28th inst. and elect one delegate from each Assembly district to attend the State Convention. It was also resolved that one delegate from each Assembly district should be chosen to attend the Judiciary Convention, which will also be held on the 28th inst.

A communication was handed in by Deputy Auditor Keenan, from the Sixth ward, declaring the position of Inspector of Election in that ward to be vacant, owing to the fact that the office was nominally held by Sergeant Kane, of the Police Department, which circumstance disqualified him from legally discharging the duties of Inspector under the law. The communication was referred to the Committee on Vacancies which, after a brief deliberation, reported the name of Thomas F. O'Brien as Inspector, vice Kane, and moved the adoption of the report.

Alderman DUNN opposed the resolution, on the ground that no vacancy really existed there, and stated that if his connection with the Police Department debarred him from filling the office of Inspector he would resign his place as Sergeant.

The officer in question then came forward and tendered his shield to the chairman—Mayor Kalbfleisch. The Mayor declined to receive the badge of office in committee, and informed the sergeant that the proper place for him to pursue that course would be in the presence of the Board of Police Commissioners.

Independent propositions submitted:—First, for making bank stockholders liable for three times the amount of their stock; second, for giving counties the right of prohibiting or licensing the sale of spirituous liquors; third, prohibiting county or municipal aid to railroads; fourth, compulsory education, and, fifth, female suffrage were all voted down by overwhelming majorities, female suffrage faring worst of all. It is not expected that further returns will materially change the result.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WALL STREET,
TUESDAY, Sept. 19—6 P. M.

On 'Change to-day wheat was quiet and firm. The cotton market was heavy and lower.

MONEY THREE TO SEVEN PER CENT.

The money market was more active, with a general advance in the rates of interest. The banks early in the day marked up their loans on stock collaterals to five per cent, and this rate being readily accepted, borrowers later in the day paid six and seven per cent currency, and, in some instances, seven per cent gold. This last mentioned rate is equivalent to fully eight per cent currency. Before this activity was precipitated many of the best known stock houses had obtained their money at as low as four per cent. On the other hand, lenders on government securities were fully content with four per cent, and many of the leading dealers in government bonds had balances left with them at three per cent. There were, however, no transactions below three per cent. The activity, while attributed in great part to speculative manipulation in connection with operations in the Stock Exchange, was due chiefly to the calling of loans by the agents of two of the Canadian banks, who, apprehending trouble from the interference of the District Attorney on the ground of alleged usurious charges for the use of gold, withdrew their gold from circulation and were at the same time compelled to call their currency from its employment with the stock brokers. The disturbance of loans incidental to this double transaction readily explains the sudden turn in the interest rate toward the close of banking hours.

Prime commercial paper was naturally less salable, but the nominal rates were without essential change.

GOLD STRONG—114¾ A 115.

The clique in the gold market pressed their advantage over the short interest by advancing the price from 114¾ to 115 and exacting terms for the use of cash gold ranging from 3-32 to ⅛ per cent. In other words, brokers desiring gold for deliveries to-day had to pay $9 37½ to $50 for the use of each $10,000 gold borrowed for that object, the accommodation lasting, of course, only until to-morrow. The same rates were furthermore exacted indirectly by the less questionable process of selling the gold for "cash" ⅛ a ½ per cent above the market and buying it back "regular" at the market. These transactions do not appear in our table below, which is a transcript of the official record of the Board, wherein cognizance is taken only of "regular" sales, or sales consummated the day following the transaction. In fact, the reputed agents of the clique were careful to use this plan almost exclusively; but a majority of the business of the day was done in the ordinary manner, only that lenders, who were more cautious, in view of the threats of legal proceedings on the score of usury, made their loans in whispers, and in many instances solicited confidential treatment by the borrower, the promise of which was ratified by an occasional shaking of hands. The interpolation of these incidents in the usually matter-of-fact routine of the Gold Room was a touch of human nature which, if it did not make the "bulls" and "bears" akin, enlivened the drama in gold. The price of gold had been steadily maintained for some time in the early part of the afternoon at 114⅞ a 115, but toward three o'clock it was rumored that the Secretary of the Treasury had decided to make his gold sale to-morrow, simultaneously with his bond purchase, and as the amount to be disposed of was likely to be enlarged indefinitely there was a sudden reaction to 114⅝. Inquiry at the Sub-Treasury elicited the statement that as yet no orders had been received to change the programme, but the information was substituted that Mr. Boutwell was expected in town and at the Sub-Treasury during the course of Wednesday forenoon. On this gold again advanced to 114 15-16. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	114⅝	1 P. M.	114⅞
10:11 A. M.	114¾	2 P. M.	115
11 A. M.	114⅝	3 P. M.	114⅞
11:11 A. M.	114¾	3:30 P. M.	114⅞
12 M.	114¾	4 P. M.	114⅞
12:20 P. M.	114⅞	5 P. M.	114⅞
12:57 P. M.	115	5:20 P. M.	114⅞ a 115

The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$76,727,000
Gold balances	1,553,910
Currency balances	2,097,320

The gold loan market opened at 3-16, advanced to ¼, and closed at 3-32—all for borrowing. After three o'clock ⅛ and ¼ per cent were paid for the use of gold to-morrow, and the latter figure continued to be bid up to the adjournment of the Gold Room.

GOVERNMENTS STEADY.

The government bond market was steady in currency values, but underwent a sharp decline in gold values. The 1862's were selling at 115½, with gold at 115. Allowing for the pending coupon these bonds were freely offered at a discount of 2¼ per cent from their par in gold. These are the issues which Mr. Boutwell intends redeeming at their full par in gold on the 1st of December prox. The wider this difference the greater the profit of the Syndicate. The foreign bankers were selling governments and buying gold and exchange. The following were the closing street prices:—United States currency sixes, 115⅝ a 115⅞; do., 1881, registered, 117¼ a 117⅝; do. do., coupon, 118⅜ a 118⅝; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 115 a 115¼; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 115⅜ a 115½; do. do., 1864, do. do., 115⅛ a 115¼; do. do., 1865, do. do., 115⅛ a 115¼; do. do., registered, January and July, 113⅞ a 114⅛; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 114 a 114⅛; do. do., 1867, do. do., 114⅛ a 114¼; do. do., 1868, do. do., 114⅛ a 114⅜; do. ten-forties, registered, 111¼ a 111½; do. do., coupon, 111⅝ a 111¾.

STOCKS FEVERISH, UNSETTLED AND STRONG.

The stock market opened temporarily weak, and for a short time at the beginning of business prices were generally lower than on Monday. But a strong reaction took place at the Boards, owing to the endeavors of the "short" interest to cover, the rally being assisted by a vigorous movement on the part of the "bulls." Indeed, a fierce war has broken out between the "bull" and "bear" cliques. The latter, in beginning their recent attack, confined themselves to stocks not held by the "bull" cliques; but the latter, finding their favorites dragged down by the onslaught of the "bears" on the rest of the market, came to the general rescue. The "bears" responded by making money active (the advance to seven per cent being too sudden to be natural), and a fresh struggle ensued, the advantages being decidedly with the "bears," until the rumor went flying through the street that the City Hall troubles had been ended by a compromise of the Mayor with the adherents of the Deputy Comptroller, when the tide of battle again turned, and the "bulls" remained masters of the field at nightfall. The City Hall report was subsequently verified by the official advertisement of the new Deputy Comptroller, announcing that the interest on the city debt due November 1 would be promptly paid on and after that date, at the office of the City Chamberlain.

COMMERCIAL REPORT.

TUESDAY, Sept. 19—6 P. M.

ASHES were steady but very quiet at $7 25 a $7 75 for pots, and $9 a $9 50 for pearls.

CANDLES were only in small jobbing demand at previous prices. Adamantine, 13c. a 15c.; stearic, 25c. a 26c.; paraffine, 24c.; plain sperm, 29c., and patent sperm, 33.

COTTON.—A fair export demand prevailed for low grades, but at decidedly lower prices. Holders, however, were reluctant to grant concessions on the grades of ordinary and good ordinary, and for these descriptions, which were mostly in demand, there was no marked decline. The higher qualities suffered a sharp reduction, good middling being ⅜c., middling ⅜c. and low middling ¼c. per lb. lower than the prices current yesterday. At these concessions values were almost nominal, owing to the irregularity in the prices at which sales of the same grades were effected. The market recovered somewhat toward the close in answer to an improvement in future deliveries, which were previously selling at a decline of ⅛c. a ¼c. per lb. The closing sales were at the following prices:—For September, 19⅝c.; for October, 19 3-16c.; for November, 19⅛c.; for December, 19⅛c.; for January, 19¼c. The sales reported on 'Change were as follows:—

Edward Clear, a lad thirteen years of age, died in Bellevue Hospital on Monday evening from the effects of injuries. The day previous deceased was en route to the Mount St. Vincent Catholic Nunnery, on the upper end of the island, and while standing on the platform of one of the cars of the Hudson River Railroad Company, near 152d street, his hat blew off. In his efforts to recover his hat Edward fell on the track, when the car wheels passed over both legs, crushing them terribly, besides which he received a fracture of the skull. Coroner Keenan was notified to hold an inquest over the remains. The parents of deceased reside at No. 182 Third street, Williamsburg, whither the body will be taken for interment. BEN BUTLER.

The General's Pilgrimage for the Massachusetts Governorship.

SPLENDID RECEPTION AT FALL RIVER.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 18, 1871.

General Butler arrived in Fall River at two o'clock. He came by the twelve o'clock train from Boston, and was met at the Bowenville depot by Member of Congress Buffington, whose sightly cottage on Locust street had been prepared for his reception and entertainment, and he was taken there at once and comfortably and socially installed. He had dinner and afterwards visited many of the mills in the city for the purpose of inspecting them, in the company of his host, which was very pleasant for the General. So were they all pleasant, save the delegation of Butlerites that had en masse and with band proceeded to the Fall River depot in expectation that he would come there, but had watched with many and unrewarded eyes the disembarking passengers. So were they all pleasant, save the anti-Butlerites hereabouts, who are in minority and whose hearts descend in proportion as the so-called self-nominated candidate's bright ethereal star wings zenithward its triumphant way. The meeting, as a matter of record, came off in the City Hall. The hall was crowded. All the seats had been removed, with the exception of those in the gallery, which were reserved for the ladies, and so densely packed was the assembly it is doubtful if even "Cinx's baby" so much a favorite of the General as he is, could have gained admittance after half-past seven o'clock. The hall is not a large one: but no less than one thousand five hundred persons could have been present, and they stood there thirty mortal minutes before the General appeared. When the General, accompanied by the dignitaries of the occasion, entered the hall he was welcomed with an ovation of cheers, and was presented by Captain Brady, Collector of Customs of the First district.

The General was received with shouts of applause, a series of piercing whistles and shouts of "Old Ben," &c., and then he went on with his speech, or rather his hanging, as he has been designated the judge and in Massachusetts, and invariably steps on the stump with bowstring in hand.

THE SPEECH.

After his usual introductory remarks concerning questions the General began his speech. He told about those matters of grave importance; again told about the vituperations and calumnies by which he had been heralded, told about the census, then referring to the Journal article, "A Lie Well Stuck To," and the extravagant expenses of the State government, told about the Auditor once more, and wound up by repeating nearly word for word what he had previously said about making money. But he had one new theory to advance, and that was that the managers of the Boston Journal have taken the course they are now pursuing for the purpose of so deteriorating the stock of that paper as to enable them to buy it up. "Now," said the General, "if I am right you will understand what the Journal is (and here he paused a moment to prepare his hearers for a little bon mot)—a newspaper—(laughter)—if I am not right, then I shall lose your confidence." The new subject for consideration was the Legislature. "Last year," he said, "we had a Legislature and we had a Speaker, and that Speaker has been there four years, and last year they sat six months. Now as to

THOSE MISERABLE NEWSPAPERS,

you can see that my statements are absolutely correct and that their statements are absolutely wrong. I can't stop to follow up every statement, every lie of these lying editors; but you must see that if I had proved this in one case you may take for granted that I can prove it of all other cases. I now speak of that class of editors, because there are editors that are not thus; but life is short, and editors and bad newspapers are plenty." Then the General passed into a discussion of the subject of taxation; but although he was, as usual, lively and interesting, he set forth no additional facts. "Now," said he, "the people are surprised at this exhibit. Why, they say, these sentinels on the watch tower, the editors of the newspapers, have never told us about this. Why haven't they told us about it instead of telling us funny stories about some dog? Well, why have not they enlightened the people upon these matters? I don't know why, unless it is that they do not know anything about it or care less, because they pay very little taxes. Now," said the General, launching again, "I see that one of the gentlemen who have been running for the gubernatorial nomination has withdrawn his name in a letter this morning, having out of a canvass of several weeks been unable to get two delegates out of 1,000. I see he says, there is an attack upon the honor and honesty of those that have to do with the Governor, and he feels it sorely, because he has been Speaker of the House of Representatives. I do not lay these expenditures to him so much as the length of the sessions of the Legislature. I think he ought to cut it off somehow. But we have had honest Governors, honest Secretaries of State, honest Treasurers and honest Auditors. I agree to all that. I hold that the republican party has in its ranks as honest and as pure men as live. Why, then, you reply to me, can these expenses have been run up? Why, I will tell you, my friends. It is because the government of the State has passed out of the hands of the Governor and other officers. All your Governor has to do is to go around attending agricultural fairs, to once a year visit the Hoosac Tunnel and to appoint Judges of the Courts. By the by, I wish they would appoint a Judge for the Courts down in my county; but then I suppose he is not to be appointed until after election, because it might affect that election somehow. Then there is that hospital at Worcester—that lunatic hospital, I mean. Now, in my speech there I stated some solid facts, and here I have been walking about the Commonwealth with a

CHIP ON MY SHOULDER

for my opponents to knock off. I can't get anybody to deny my statement, when I say there were thirty-five inmates of that hospital last September, but they turn round and say that is not the average. Well, I don't know anything about the average. I haven't been in the insane hospital—(laughter)—and I don't intend to go there." (Renewed laughter.) The General next reverted to the question of how he came to take his stand as candidate for Governor and told about the abuse that followed his Springfield speech. After that he said:—"When I struck back they cried out in holy horror, 'Why, General Butler is becoming personal;' or, 'Why, he is really striking back; he is becoming quarrelsome.' 'Now, my friends,' said the General, inserting his thumb under the lappets of his vest, and with an act of internal self-satisfaction, facing the audience—"Well, now, my friends, I don't believe I am quarrelsome. I never commenced a personal altercation in my life. I never commenced a personal attack on any mortal, either in or out of Congress;" and the General told about how he never let up on a man when he did go for him. This was the signal for an uproarious burst of applause. The General enforced his observation with so dry a tone of voice and so sarcastic an expression of countenance that it was irresistible, and everybody appreciated it and laughed at it. Then the General stepped about on the platform something after the manner of a carpenter measuring off a yard with a great deal of straddle, smiled, and while he drew up his coat-tail with his left hand he whipped out his handkerchief with his right and proceeded to remove the beads of perspiration that were slowly trickling down his forehead. "Now," said the General, returning to his subject, "this thing has been going on for weeks, and let me see," he added, counting his fingers, "they immediately put into the field one, two, three, four, five candidates for Governor against me, and they have two or three in reserve yet not brought out, and they get up all manner of candidates, started off in their own way of election. One way is to do exactly as I am doing. That may be a good way or a bad one. It is for you to judge, not me. It is the way I have got, at any rate. Now there is another way of electioneering." To illustrate the General once more read those Somerville campaign documents, "because," he said, "Mr. Conwell received one of these letters, and he stated over his signature that he did, and being confident that he did not dare to publish all the names exactly, and so substituted other names; thereupon they say these are not genuine letters. Nobody wants to be Governor, you know, except General Butler; but a man puts himself in the hands of his friends and offers to pay the bills of anybody who will hunt up the politicians who will make him Governor. That thing is done exactly now. I know these letters are genuine. That little touch about 'Mr. Braistow going for General Butler as he appears to gain in strength,' could not have been counterfeited. It's too much like a politician. Those are genuine letters, with names altered, as Mr. Conwell says. I see in the Journal that they deny the fact; but their denials are worth what you see. Now, one of the candidates that adopts that style of electioneering and sets up his headquarters, and who promised that everybody was for him, after running for three weeks, got but two delegates, so far as heard from, out of 229. He got but two delegates, and he did not dare come before the Commonwealth and meet the question and the people of his own ward, and, although they are going to hold a caucus on Wednesday night, he has concluded to withdraw, saying that he is sorry that he thinks it his duty to save a split in the party. Now, if he had said 'chipping off' it might have done; but I guess

THERE WILL BE NO SPLITTING

with two delegates out of a thousand—(applause)—and then he turns around to say he thinks there is some harm done by General Butler in his electioneering. Well," said the General, sinking his voice to a funeral tone, "he is gone, and I have only to say to you and to the others in language of the old song, 'Three cheers for the dead; hurrah for the next to die!'" (Applause.) The General next spoke of Mr. Rice and the Boston Transcript, which he, as usual, characterized as the tea table paper of the metropolis, bearing about the same relation to the other papers that a poodle dog does to a Newfoundland, and about as snappish and snarlish as a poodle would be on the lap of its mistress. "Mr. Rice is a very respectable gentleman, and he was a very good candidate of the F. L. L.'s, in 1867, and he will show a very strong front with their help this year, I have no doubt, and he is a man of whom I haven't a word to say but that of kindness and regard." The General then repeated what he said on a previous occasion with relation to and the recent enforcement of the Prohibitory law, labor reform and the labor reformers. Although he was quite interesting the audience at nine o'clock largely took its departure.

At this point, and just as the General was endeavoring to show that it is the duty of the Legislature to make a common cause with the workingmen, the only disturbance of the evening occurred, for the meeting was one of the most orderly of the campaign. Suddenly, in the middle of a brilliant rhetorical declamation, an inebriated industrial sang out, "How's Hooker? How's hog—of—hic—Hooker? I say—hic—General—how's hook—hic—Hooker?" And while cries of "Shut up!" and "Put him out!" rang through the hall the orator paused in his speech and surveyed the assembly. All at once there was a rush for the squally element, who still persisted in asking, "Where's General Hooker?" and although the orator interposed to save him and said "Oh, no; don't put anybody out; he's a little bit in earnest; that's all," two policemen had their hands on him, and he was straightway ejected from the hall.

Then the General proceeded and told about Wendell Phillips and that place where all lying editors will go, and then took the Boston Advertiser to task by reading its advice regarding republican caucuses, that any laboring man or temperance man who voted for Phillips last year ought not to be allowed to act. "Now," said the General, "the republican church is full enough of men that don't want to use it for their own purposes, but not full enough for the great reform party of the State. They tell you that I want to bolt from the republican party if I am not nominated. Let's see what the Springfield Republican says. They talk about my bolting, and this is what they say:—

> It is idle to suppose that the men of character who made the bone and sinew of the republican party in this State will ever consent to the nomination of Butler for Governor. If it were possible for him to receive the nomination at Worcester he would undoubtedly be opposed by the same men who are now receiving his furious assaults, and his defeat at the polls would be as certain as the coming of the election day.

"Now," said the General, "there is a distinct threat in that to bolt in case of my nomination. Well, down in Plymouth the only Jewell delegate that was elected—and he had to vote for himself—was Charles G. Davis, the vote standing 49 to 49, and he gave it 50, and said in the meeting when he went there and pledged the whole of Plymouth to Jewell, like another individual who went up to the top of a high mountain and showed all the lands of earth and pledged them when he didn't own a foot of them—this man said he would bolt and vote for Jack Adams. Well, let him bolt. All I can say is, if he will bolt I will find a sledgehammer to drive it. They threaten and then they ask me whether I will vote, and to that I mean to make answer, once for all:—In case the will of the people is fairly heard and fairly expressed at Worcester I shall bow to the will of the people. (Applause.) But if the will of the people is choked off, preventing its expression by tricks, chicanery, secret meetings or conspiracy, why, then I will take care to illustrate the maxim of the law that frauds bind nobody. Fair play and I will be bound; tricks and cheats it is my mission to expose and take care of. They want to bolt, do they, in case the people choose to nominate whom they please? Let them bolt!

IT IS A PART OF MY MISSION

to purify the republican party, and the quicker they get out of it the better. No, my friends; don't be frightened out of this thing. They say that I am to bolt, with the majority of the republican party. The majority will really bolt from the minority! Well, perhaps so; but that is an entirely new definition of bolting. No, my friends, let us go and see exactly what is needed and what these men mean. The General concluded by putting in a word in favor of the re-election of General Grant, repeating his former remarks with relation to strikes, telling about prohibition, Bridget Flaherty and gilded saloons, "where you and I go," and perorating on the subject of caucuses. He was frequently applauded and cheered, and when he had finished the band played, the ladies vacated the gallery and the sturdy yeomanry of the city swarmed over the platform to grasp the orator by the hand. It was a ludicrous scene, truly. The General was completely overpowered. He wanted to shake hands with everybody, but his friends were so many and so vigorous that it was discouraging, quite. Several persons, indeed, were knocked off the edge of the platform, so great was the rush when the General bolted for the floor, and in a corner of the hall at the bottom of the steps leading up to the speaker's stand, he surrendered at discretion. The crowd which filled the hall, surged back and forth, and rose and fell like the waves of the sea, closing in on the General, who was pulled hither and thither, and on whose brow were great beads of perspiration as he vainly attempted to close on each individual's hand, and flowing out to the entrances in a constant stream. To those on the platform, overlooking it all the scene was most enlivening and the best appreciated. It was an incident of the campaign and a striking manifestation of the estimation in which the General is held.

Characteristic Speech at East Abington—What Was Said of Butler During the War—His Republicanism Unquestioned—A Thrust at the Bucolic Candidate for the Presidency.

EAST ABINGTON, Sept. 19, 1871.

Abington is a small place, but it thinks a great deal of General Butler; for when he arrived here by the five o'clock train from Boston this afternoon he was met at the depot by a delegation of the townfolks, and immediately taken charge of, confiscated, jammed into a carriage, trunk, bag, hat and overcoat, and bundled off to the residence of Mr. Washington Reed by that gentleman himself. A crowd of curious lookers-on cheered lustily, the engine bell rang, the small boys in the vicinity gave utterance to all the nameless cries known to them, and with a "G'lang there" and a horsely whinney the wheels of the carriage spun over the ground, throwing up a cloud of smoke in the rear, and the whole of the machine vanished in the distance. Then the people of East Abington quietly went home to supper. It is a small town, it may be said again, containing hardly more than 3,000 inhabitants, yet it has sent seven Butler delegates to the State Convention, and will give at the polls, without any doubt, a triumphant majority of ballots in favor of the people's candidate. Like soaring into the illimitable depths of space, the General wings upward his successful way. Pheonix Hall, on the main street of the town, was the scene of the gathering. It is a small but handsome hall, capable of accommodating 800 persons, and it was filled by as select and respectable an audience as is usually seen in any lecture room.

At a quarter to eight o'clock the door of the anteroom was flung open, and, accompanied by Mr. Reed and Mr. Ira F. Rowell, the General made his appearance. He was warmly but decorously greeted. Mr. Lowell, who is a leading shoe manufacturer of the town, presided and introduced the orator, as follows:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, FELLOW CITIZENS—I take pleasure in introducing to you this evening one to whom we never have had the happiness of listening in this place. He has come here to give you an idea of the principles by which he believes, and I hope we believe, that we should be governed in the immediate future of Massachusetts. He has come here as a man who has never learned to "bend the suppliant hinges of his knee that thrift may follow fawning," but has come here to teach us how to stand up as independent men and republicans for the principles which we believe will carry us on to prosperity. I hope that the good sense of the republican party, which is to meet in convention at Worcester on the 27th of the present month, will give us republicans the privilege of voting for General Butler for nominee for Governor. Now, fellow citizens, I take pleasure in introducing to you the next Governor of Massachusetts, as I believe, Major General Benjamin F. Butler. (Applause.)

BUTLER'S SPEECH.

Thus heralded, the General took the stand and commenced his speech:—

FELLOW CITIZENS, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—May I ask you for a few minutes to bear with me until I get back my voice, which I have lost from over work, and then I am quite sure I shall make each one and all hear me, and for that purpose may I ask you for as much individual quiet as the discomforts of your situation will allow. And with these brief prefatory remarks the General spoke about the gravest business of life again, and about those thousand calumnies and those million vituperations. Then he alluded to Sumner and Wilson. "I remember in 1863," he said, "the emancipation year, when Mr. Sumner was about to be a candidate for Senator. I remember that he went all over the Commonwealth and on every platform addressed the people upon such topics as he thought would best advance his election or advance the good of the party; and I remember, also, later still, our junior Senator, Mr. Wilson, last year did the very same thing that I have done—went to Springfield during the the election of candidates for Representatives who might be supposed to elect him Senator and addressed the laboring men, and went all over the Commonwealth and addressed the temperance men upon the impropriety of their splitting off from the republican party. So, if I am offending in this, fellow citizens, I am offending with good precedents and good examples."

The General then told what he knew about farming, the census statistics, &c., but presented no new facts until he got hold of the newspapers once more. "Some of you," he said, "take the Boston Journal, but I trust, if you have any desire to learn the truth, you won't take it much longer." (Laughter.)

THAT LIE WELL STUCK TO,

the Auditor's report, those anonymous scribblers and the Board of Commissioners all came in again for their share of the General's attention, and then he struck out into an entirely new field of cultivation and went at the newspapers as follows:—"Strange," he said, "that they have so altered their tune with relation to me. Let us look at the Boston Daily Advertiser of June 13, 1863. Here is what it says:—

> We are all prone to be captious in scrutinizing the conduct of our public men, but the multitude will applaud in General Butler the citizen soldier, who abandoned a lucrative position in private life, at the first call of his country, who has served her with untiring industry and unflagging zeal, and who has suffered no associations of party or predilections of political pride to blind his eye to the true character of its struggle in which the nation is engaged.

"Now," said the General, "look with me at the Boston Journal, of June 13, 1863, not 'a lie well stuck to.' It is of the ovation accorded to General Butler in Faneuil Hall:—

> "He deserves it and the people know it. He has been allotted to an exceedingly difficult place in this struggle for national existence—a place unprecedented in the annals and requiring the highest executive ability, and he filled it with complete success. Of how many others of our civic and military leaders can the same be said?

"Now," said the General, "the Daily Transcript—the Snarlyow of the press—supported me then. Ah! here is Warrington: Boston, January 1, published in the Springfield Republican, January 3:—

> "The people here think that Butler's removal is a mistake. (That's from New Orleans.) But there are not facts enough yet to make up judgment. Butler has certainly maintained a stable government longer than any other of our officers. Banks has ability, no doubt, and if he will act independently, as Butler has done, he will make a successful administration; but if he is to be governed by the intriguer at the head of State affairs he will hardly win as fresh and enduring laurels as those which General Butler brings home.

"Ah, here is something in the Springfield Republican written from New Orleans about that time, April 12, 1863:—

> One universal sentiment is that General Butler should come back. It is no venture to say that the removal of General Butler is the greatest blunder of the war. Millions have been spent on the Banks expedition, and yet General Banks, with 50,000 men, doesn't hold as much territory as General Butler did a year ago with less than 10,000. If the government had given Butler 20,000 men six months ago he would have taken Vicksburg and ascended the river. The civil condition of this department is worse than when General Butler was here.

"Now, again, I read from the Springfield Republican of April 11, 1863, about a meeting in New York in honor of one man:—

> "We have had no such demonstration since the war broke out. There is a fine presence about General Butler.

"Well; ladies, they thought me a handsome man; they," said the General, with a smile at the fair portion of his audience—(tremendous laughter)—"now, if you will believe the newspapers, I am an undignified candidate! Now you see some of my friends took the trouble to pick out these things. These laudatory things are in writing; I have got a scrapbook full of the other kinds," and the General eyed with loving eye that monstrous folio of his. "Well, my friends, that is the story at one time—undeserved, largely, I know—and the story upon the other side I have just given you. Now, why all this? what have I done? Why, I said in view of this state of facts that I

if the people wanted me, and I thought I had a right to say so; therefore they poured out the vials of wrath on me;" and the General again descended on the little spaniel paper, the Transcript, and told about capital and labor, the new reforms, prohibition and the republican church, which he said was full, but with the deacons' pews only occupied. "Who," he asked, "are these self-righteous men in the republican party that attempt to beat men like Wendell Phillips? and like the younger disciple, who has sometimes been compared to Paul, and yet sometimes there are those who prefer Judas, because he is the older disciple. Who are they? Why, they are men who will get their names on to democratic tickets whenever they run for office, that's what they are." "Now," said the General, with oily tongue. "If I am slandering anybody in this neighborhood I will beg his pardon. (Applause.) Then the squally element broke out. "That was only an accident," said a man half way down the aisle. "What, sir!" exclaimed the General sharply, "only an accident." Repeated the man, "It's all right." "Well, said the General, turning to the audience, "I suppose it is only an accident that you voted the labor reform ticket, or somebody else did. Accidents count against us, that is all. That's the only difficulty. Now, I want to show my friends whether this is so? How are you going to get your party big enough? It is big enough now for ring purposes and clique purposes, and men have got hold of the public crib, and they hold on and suck and suck; and squeal and squeal when you attempt to make them let go. (Laughter and applause.) Now, I want to see every man that wants to come in the party come into the party and take part in the party, and I want everybody that voted for Grant last time, and a great many more, to vote for him again for President; and they will, unless they are driven off by these men who don't want to have the republican party any bigger than the old whig party of 1851—conveniently small and exclusive. Why, I find in this same Boston Journal of September 5 an article saying that our State Convention better not endorse the renomination of General Grant. 'It can do no good.' I give their very words. Now what does that mean? It means more than you see on the surface. Read the daily papers of New York, and you will see that in the State of New York there are Greeley republicans and Grant republicans being elected to the State Convention in the State of New York. Read the daily papers, and you will see that Mr. Greeley, of the New York Tribune, is stumping the great West against Grant, and dreaming that he himself is running for the Presidency. You will find that everywhere he is abusing General Grant. He made at Chicago, as at Detroit, the statement that when the people should get hold of Grant they would handle him without gloves. He said that because President Grant loves a horse as much as Greeley, as an agriculturist, loves a cow. (Laughter.) Perhaps I should have said loves a cabbage. You may put that in the report instead of cow," added the General, addressing the reporters, "and the Tribune heads my abusers here and my detracters, and you will find that every man that is opposed to General Butler and the true republican party of this Commonwealth. Now, my friends, I have forwarned you, and when you find a man coming out very strong against General Butler you just hunt him up carefully, and you will find that he is in some way a part of the conspiracy going on against the integrity of the republican party.

The General, in conclusion, again alluded to the Prohibitory law and showed the audience Bridget O'Flagherty in all her virgin purity, and told about those gilded saloons "where you and I go," and talked about the Butler delegates to the Convention. "The Journal," he said, "states that fifty-six delegates in my favor are from Essex county and that Lowell will send a full Butler delegation, with no opposition. Now, I have represented the Fifth district in Congress two terms and they all know me well. How very singular, then, it is that there they heap the honors upon me, and if I were a double-dealing, dishonest, untruthful and improper person in every form how I must have deceived my neighbors all my life." The General then wound up and the usual scene occurred. At the close the band played its Pot Pourri, the ladies vacated the hall and the friends of the General thronged upon the platform to take him individually by the hand.

STABBING AFFRAYS.

About three o'clock yesterday afternoon Sarah Dobson, white, and Martha Jackson, a colored woman, residing at 75 Thompson street, had an altercation, during which the former cut the latter on the thigh with a razor, inflicting severe wounds. The wounded woman was removed to the Eighth precinct station house and attended by a police surgeon. The would-be murderess made her escape, and is still at large.

About the same time William Swanton, aged twenty-three, of 229 Fifth street, was stabbed in the shoulder, at the corner of Fifth street and Bowery, by George Patterson, of 557 Sixth street. The wounded man was removed to the Seventeenth precinct station house and attended by a police surgeon. Patterson was arrested by officer Long, and will be arraigned at Essex Market this morning.

John Huld, aged forty, and Frederick O. Leo, aged fifteen, yesterday afternoon got into an altercation, during which Huld stabbed Lee in the eye, cutting it completely out. The wounded man was attended by Dr. Frazer and sent to Bellevue Hospital. Huld was arrested by Officer Emery, of the Twentieth precinct, and will be arraigned at Jefferson Market this morning.

SHOT AND KILLED.

At ten minutes past ten o'clock last night a boy named Christian Kraft, aged twelve years, residing at 617 East Eleventh street, employed in the lager beer saloon of William Hahn, at the above number, was accidentally shot in the left breast by a boy named Peter Strauss and instantly killed. Strauss was arrested by an officer of the Eleventh precinct, and will be held to await the action of the Coroner, who has been notified to investigate the case.

Marine Disasters.

SHIP ARCADIA—RIO JANEIRO, Aug 25.—A telegram received here from San Francisco (province of Santa Catharina), reports the loss of the ship Arcadia, Capt Weeks, in the following terms:—On the 22d the American ship Arcadia, on a voyage from Leith (June 17) to San Francisco, California, with a cargo of 800 tons coal and 1,000 tons of other articles, was lost off Prais Grande do Cardu, six miles south of the mouth of the river San Francisco, and of the cargo nothing could be saved. On the 20th fire showed itself on board, in lat 30 S, lon 47 W, and the captain tried to make for the nearest port; but the fire raged with such frightful violence that he had to abandon the vessel, taking with him the crew of 22 persons, all of whom are safe. Two hours after the abandonment there was an explosion on board, and the vessel sank a mile from the coast.

BARK ZEPHYR—The schooner Ellen Rodman, from a whaling voyage, arrived at Bermuda 7th inst, reports that on the 2d inst, in lat 31-30, long. 67, spoke bark Zephyr, out 110 days from the western coast of America, bound to Philadelphia, in want of fuel, having burnt everything available, and would have sent down topmasts for same purpose had they not fortunately received a supply of coal and wood from the Ellen Rodman.

BARK WOODLAND (Br), Burns, 77 days from Fernandina, with lumber for Montevideo, put into Pernambuco 18th ult leaking badly, and will have to discharge.

BRIG SOPHIA, from Trinidad, anchored in Hampton Roads, was run into 19th by the schr Fanny R Shaw, and had her cathead stove and her forward rigging damaged, but not seriously.

SCHR DUTCH PRINCESS, Hassell, from New York, bound to Maracabo, arrived at Bermuda on the 7th inst, in distress, having encountered on the 30th ult, in lat 29 N, lon 67 W a violent hurricane, in which the vessel was thrown down and to right her had to cut away her foremast, which in going over took with it main topmast, jibboom and all attached. Vessel being much disabled was compelled to bear away for Bermuda, and arrived as above.

SCHR HENRY G FAY (of Calais), from Wehawken for Boston, at Vineyard Haven, struck on Handkerchief Shoal morning of 19th inst, and was hauled off by steamer Island Home and arrived at V H 19th with loss of boat and two feet water in hold.

MAGDALEN ISLANDS, June 20—The schr Samuel E Sawyer, of and from Gloucester (US) for this port (salt, &c), was totally wrecked at Sandy Hook Shoal April 21.

MANILA, no date (by telegraph from Singapore)—The Cingala, from Hong Kong for New York, is a total wreck on the west coast of Panay; part of cargo saved.

ST THOMAS, Sept 13—The American brig Julia Carney, already advised as having been towed in as derelict property, lies in the lower bay. Some flour, pork and beef and lumber has been sold from her at public auction. The flour averaged $2 50 per barrel, some 400 bbls having been sold; pork, $17 to $18; beef from $15 to $16. Lumber, sold in small lots, realized about $25 per 1,000 feet. The remainder of the stuff will be sold and then the hull; she is not fit to be repaired.

The damage to the Grasmere proved to be greater than was anticipated. She is now thoroughly repaired, and leaves to-morrow for St Domingo to carry out charter party.

The Florida recovered her lower masts, and is getting new topmasts made; the hull did not suffer.

Vessels for charter continue very scarce. There are still orders for vessels to load sugar in Porto Rico at 40c to 42½c, gold, per 100 lbs, to United States. Plenty of orders for vessels at Turks Island at 12c a 13c currency, and wood from St Domingo at $7, gold, free on board.
